Students To Plant Coconut Palms On Arbor Day

rbor Day was started in 1872 and the tradition will continue at Edison & Ford Winter Estates on Friday, April 29 at 9 a.m. when trees will be planted by students, under the direction of Edison Ford horticulturist Debbie Hughes, to commemorate the day.

Students from Edison Park Creative and Expressive Arts Elementary will paint coconuts from the palms at Edison Ford, and this year they will also plant the sprouted palms.

Students from the second grade class of Mrs. Schwartz will bring this year's newly-painted coconuts and learn how to plant the sprouting palms from previous years.

The first Arbor Day celebration was held in Nebraska City in 1872 and as many as one million trees were planted there. Thomas and Mina Edison planted coconuts along the fence line of the estate in celebration of the holiday for many years.

The tradition was brought back with the involvement of Edison Ford patron and garden lover, the late Berne Davis.

Over the years, many other trees have been planted at Edison Ford in celebration of National Arbor Day, including mangoes, Hong Kong orchids, live oaks, geiger, citrus, calabash, royal poinciana and jacaranda. Edison Ford has become a well-known historic

Historic Downtown Fort Myers, Then And Now: Daniels Brothers Boatways

by Gerri Reaves, PhD

A mong the region's most prominent names in boatbuilding and boat-design history are J. Frank and J. Henry Daniels, the founders of Daniels Brothers Boatways.

The brothers came from a seafaring and boat-building family and grew up in the remote regions of Southwest Florida in Lostman's River in the Ten Thousand Islands.

They later moved to Marco Island, and while still quite young, Frank delivered mail by boat between Marco and Punta Rassa.

In 1919, he teamed up with his much older brother Henry, who had been building fishing skiffs for years. Frank learned the craft from his brother, and they subsequently moved to Fort Myers and worked downtown at Bard Hendry's boatyard at the Ireland Dock at the foot of Hendry Street.

They later worked for the SE Williams Boatways in East Fort Myers, which was located near today's Oasis Condominiums. Williams, too, is an illustrious name in boat design and building.

In 1929, the brothers opened their own business at the City Dock at the foot of Jackson Street. Word of their superb craftsmanship spread, and wealthy clients hired them to build custom vessels.

The brothers' expertise attracted ordinary local fishermen and guides who wanted commercial fishing boats, as well as wealthy seasonal visitors who wanted high-end pleasure crafts and sports boats.

But in the early 1930s, the brothers had to move the business. The riverfront was to be renovated and the old docks dating from the city's pioneer days were to be demolished. Eventually, the Yacht Basin and riverfront park would be constructed.

The Daniels purchased land east of downtown and founded their own boatyard. Lady Suffolk of England, a wealthy client, helped to make it possible with a loan and her best wishes.

The boatyard opened in 1934 on the Caloosahatchee River on the east "corner" at the mouth of Billy's Creek. It prospered.

During World War II, it suspended ordinary operations, when it was leased it to a shipbuilding company who had contracts with the United States government.

Henry retired in 1947 and sold his interest to his Frank, who sold the boatyard in 1954, the same year that that WINK-Radio across the street heralded a new era in local media history by adding WINK-TV. Daniels Brothers continued under the same name, selling, storing and repairing boats.

Henry died in 1962 and Frank in 1989 at ages 82 and 91, respectively.

Today, Alta Mar Condominiums is located where the Daniels Brothers founded their boatworks in 1934.

Explore the "East End." Walk – or ride the free trolley – to the site where two brothers made history for designing and building boats.

Then, visit the Southwest Florida Museum of History at 2031 Jackson Street to learn more about the rich marine history of Fort Myers.

Call 321-7430 for information, or go to museumofhistory.org. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday through Saturday.

Be sure to visit the Southwest Florida Historical Society's research center on your "to do" list.

The all-volunteer non-profit organization is located at 10091 McGregor Boulevard on the campus of the Lee County Alliance for the Arts.

The center is open Wednesday and Saturday between 9 a.m. and noon and Wednesday 4 to 7 p.m. Call 939-4044 or visit swflhistoricalsociety.org for more information.

Fort Myers Art: Movie Sparks Controversy And Debate At Fort Myers Film Festival

by Tom Hall

ttendees at the recent Fort Myers Film Festival's TGIM had the chance to view a short documentary titled Proud to Serve. It was produced and directed by University of Tampa film student Kaitlyn Traurig, who made the two-hour drive to gauge reaction to her film.

As Traurig anticipated, reaction from the judges was sharply divided. The film sought to break through stereotypes and humanize police officers by having a local sheriff's officer talk about his calling and its challenges and opportunities while driving around town in his squad car and answering myriad calls. But celebrity judge, actress Stella Ruiz, was having none of it, pointing to the long succession of police shootings and abuses over the past several years, in essence saying that the film was an unabashed apology for a profession that doesn't deserve the benefit of such consideration, since they prejudge, profile and stereotype everyone they come into contact with. So when they are stereotyped by a wary public, the police are, to borrow a cliché', hoist on their own petard.

Matlacha artist and Bealls phenom Leoma Lovegrove could not have disagreed more. She applauded the film and defended the honor and integrity of the men and women of the Lee County Sheriff's office and police officers around the country.

Entertainer and former Platters vocalist "Big Al" Holland told the stunned audience that he has found himself at the other end of a SWAT team member's rifle one time when he and a group of friends were playing guns as children only to find themselves surrounded by law enforcement as a police chopper flew overhead. That notwithstanding, Holland expressed sympathy for the difficulties officers face daily in the discharge of their duties, stating that there are good officers and bad officers just as there are good and bad lawyers, doctors, construction workers and entertainers.

At TGIM, the judges simply serve as catalysts for broader discussion by the audience, and host Eric Raddatz noted in opening the film for discussion by the audience that his goal when screening any film is to prompt intellectual thought and spirited (though respectful) conversation. The film certainly achieved that goal with local gallery owner Terry Tincher and a host of other audience members chiming in with their views about the police and what they'd just seen and heard. But it was only toward the end of the audience participation segment that anyone focused on the film itself, such as the cinematography, sound, lighting and the logistics of obtaining permission from the sheriff's department to make the picture, film an officer in the discharge of his duties, and accompany him into the jail and police headquarters.

On the latter subjects, Raddatz brought the neophyte filmmaker to the front of the Davis Art Center grand atrium to field questions and elicit even more feedback that she can process, ponder and incorporate in her next and successive filmmaking projects. In that regard, young Kaitlyn Traurig undoubtedly learned in the course of an hour more than she has in any single semester-long filmmaking class. And the audience enjoyed a bird's eye view of the logistics associated with making a documentary on a subject as politically charged as police-public relations.

Republican Women Lee Meeting May 9

The Lee Republican Women Federated's next lunch meeting will be held on Monday, May 9 at Pinchers – The Marina at Edison Ford, 2360 West 1st Street in Fort Myers. The meeting will begin at 11:15 a.m. with a social hour, followed by lunch and the program featuring guest speaker Glo Smith, business and political consultant.

Smith, state director of the Douglass Leadership Institute, also serves as the campaigns and elections chair, for the Florida Federation of Republican Women and the campaign chair, Florida Spearhead for the National Federation of Republican Women.

Growing up in the poorest part of Jacksonville, Smith was no stranger to poverty as a child. Before her mother remarried, their large family was living off a single mother's salary and was dependent upon government assistance. For years, Glo's mother relied on government provisions and commodities to feed and care for her children. Regardless of the financial hardship, Smith was determined to succeed.

After obtaining a master's of business administration degree, she launched a 30-year career in public service and entrepreneurship. As an entrepreneur, she started a small business. In an effort to help others succeed, Smith developed curriculum for the University of North Florida's Small Business Resource Center. With her guidance, the program established high-quality childcare businesses in low-income areas of Northeast Florida, empowering the community economically.

The cost to attend the lunch meeting, which is open to the public, is $22 per person. To RSVP, visit www.leerepublicanwomen.com/event or contact Wren Morefield at 270-210-1284 or wrenspet@hotmail.com. 🌣

Everyone who attended Monday's season-ending TGIM got exactly what they bargained for when they showed up and paid the small price of admission – a film that challenged them to think critically about an important social issue in the context of the art of film. It's a win-win for everyone, which, after all, is the mission of the Fort Myers Film Festival in the first place.

The festival is an intelligent independent filmmaker's preferred event to create, unite and showcase the finest artistic cinematic works. It is known for world-class swagger and support of local filmmakers. The event has featured hundreds of local filmmakers and is a must attend for cineasts who love independent film and film festivals. The festival was awarded the prestigious 2015 Chrysalis Award for Cultural Achievement. Celebrated Cast To Star In Gulfshore Opera's Charming Performance

Trish tenor Anthony Kearns returns to Southwest Florida for a full-scale comedic opera, Gaetano Donizetti's L'elisir d'amore (Elixir of Love). Gulfshore Opera will present the performance at CPAC in Punta Gorda at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, April 15 and at Artis-Naples at 8 p.m. on Thursday, April 21.

Gulfshore Opera has created a show that includes both celebrated and up and coming artists from around the world, the Gulfshore Opera Orchestra and Chorus, and a collaboration with Gulfshore Ballet located in Fort Myers. General Director Steffanie Pearce said, "It's a fun filled evening with English translations on a surtitle screen so you can laugh along." The Artis-Naples performance on April 21 will be a collaboration with the Naples Philharmonic orchestra.

Composer Donizetti's light-hearted comedy bubbles with effervescent arias and charm as the elixir causes as many problems as it solves. It is a story of Nemorino, a poor peasant in love with a beautiful landowner, Adina. Nemorino is tormented by her utter indifference. The Elixir of Love is one of Donizetti's most popular works.

Performed regularly throughout the world, this opera is full of comedy, romance, vocal fireworks and a happily ever after ending. Kearns will debut the lead role of Nemorino. "I'm delighted to be a part of this production. A challenging work, but with a stellar cast it should make for a wonderful experience for all," said Kearns. "This opera is fast paced, full of energy and life that is sprinkled with moments of beauty too. A perfect example is in the heart stirring aria Una furtiva lagrima.

Cast of Elixir of Love

It's at this point that Nemorino realizes that truly Adina loves him back."

South Aftrican bass-baritone Musa Ngqungwana will be playing the role of the charlatan medicine man. "I'm looking forward to revisiting the role of Dr. Dulcamara and having the chance to perform for the opera-loving community in Southwest Florida," said Ngqungwana.

In addition to being an opera singer, Ngqungwana is an inspirational speaker and author. In 2014, he self-published a memoir about his upbringing in South Africa during and following apartheid, focusing on his path to becoming a singer amidst a system of segregation and an impoverished background. Ngqungwana now has a flourishing singing career with engagements on some of the world's major opera stages. He will be giving several inspirational talks throughout the tri-county area while in town.

Rising star and lead soprano Danielle Talamantes will perform the role of Adina, the object of Nemorino's affections. "Donizetti knew how to write for the voice; both in sheer beauty of line as well as for the Commedia dell'arte type characters of Belcore and Dulcamara. My season this year has been filled with dramatic concert work and intense operas, so Elixir is going to feel wonderfully refreshing and playful," said Talamantes.

Ryan McAdams, an international rising star of the conducting scene, will be at the helm. He is quickly establishing himself as one of the most exciting and versatile conductors of his generation, equally prized as a symphonic, operatic and contemporary music conductor.

"As a child growing up in St. Louis, my mother sang in the ensemble of Opera Theatre of St. Louis, and that experience showed me what a major opera company could be for its community, how it gives audiences a sense of ownership and involvement in a production, and how it could showcase local talent. For much of my career, I've sought out companies with a similar philosophy, and I'm honored to be working with a company that brings together both internationallyrenowned and extraordinary local musicians, dancers and artists. I so look forward to leading this deeply silly, beautiful and heartfelt opera."

A former classmate of Ngqungwana's, Wes Mason, will play the role of Belcore. "It is such a pleasure to be heading to the Gulfshore Opera to join this magnificent cast in one of Donzetti's masterpieces, Elixir of Love. Belcore is one of my favorite roles and I haven't had an opportunity to play him since my time with Musa Ngqungwana at the Academy of Vocal Arts. I can't wait to see what magic we will create," Mason said.

Stage director David Grabarkewitz explained the charm of Elixir of Love, "We are combining Donizetti's beautiful, bubbling score with both a tremendous cast of professional singers and a lively group of dancers to enhance the music. I have always considered Elixir to be one of the great romantic comedies, and, although we are traditional in sets and costumes for this production, it is the delightful sparring of Kate Hepburn and Spencer Tracy in Desk Set or Rosalind Russell and Cary Grant in His Girl Friday that are easy examples of how fun a story this can be."

Artist sponsors are Anthony Kearns, and Don and Mary Jo Kittle.

With a mission to be inclusive and accessible, Gulfshore Opera offers a limited number of $25 sponsored seats to those who otherwise would not be able to attend. Single tickets start at $25 (sponsored tickets). Visit www. gulfshoreopera.org or call 239-529-3925.

CPAC is located at 701 Carmalita Street in Punta Gorda. Artis-Naples is at 5833 Pelican Bay Boulevard in Naples.☆

Meet The Authors At Edison Ford Shoppe

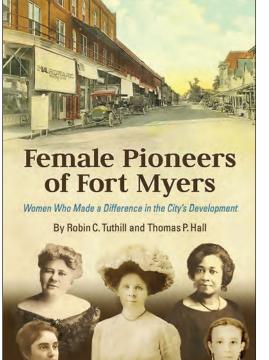

n April 16, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., authors Tom Hall and Robin Tuthill will talk about their book, Female Pioneers of Fort Myers: Women Who Made a Difference in the City's Development, at the Edison Ford Shoppe in Bell Tower Shops. They also will be available to sign copies of the book, which can be purchased at the Edison Ford Shoppe or the museum store at Edison & Ford Winter Estates.

According to Hall, the book includes "short bios and all kinds of interesting facts and vignettes about the 24 women who helped settle our town, keep it from being abandoned and transform it from a crude, rough-and-tumble cow town of the late 19th century into a modern-day commercial, cultural and tourist destination."

"For myriad reasons, the names and accomplishments of these female visionaries were largely relegated to footnotes and parentheticals in the annals that recounted the achievements of their male counterparts," he said.

Coinciding with the book signing is the Founding Females Portrait Exhibit running through May 27 at the estates. The exhibit "puts a face with the names of the women who settled in Fort Myers in the years following the end of the Civil War," said Hall.

Law & Order Ball Returning This Fall

Revent recognizes our everyday heroes from all seven Lee County law enforcement agencies. Germain Arena provides an exceptional space to not only recognize the men and women who put their lives on the line every day, but to also showcase emergency vehicles and equipment. Guests will have the unique opportunity to get in the driver seat and take photos of one or all of the vehicles onsite that may include a helicopter, boat, motorcycle and SWAT vehicle.

With the success of the first two annual Law & Order Ball events, the original sponsors have already stepped up and committed to take part again this year, many at an even higher level than they have in the past. Additionally, several new sponsors will take part this year to show their support for all that Lee County Law Enforcement does for the community.

Creighton Construction and Development and Ada's Market will once again be presenting sponsors. Other sponsors include LeeSar, Survival Armor, NBC-2, The News-Press Media Group, TOTI Media, Edison National Bank, Enterprise Holdings, Galloway Family of Dealerships, Tech-Tronics, CONRIC PR & Marketing, The Eventful Company, Mark Loren Designs, Rapid Print, Siesta Pebble, Eye Centers of Florida, Henderson Franklin Attorneys at Law, Brilliant Lens LLC, Gendron Funeral and Cremation Services, Inc. and HBKS Wealth Advisors.

The agencies to be recognized are Cape Coral Police Department, Florida Gulf Coast University Police Department, Florida SouthWestern State College Police Department, Fort Myers Police Department, Lee County Port Authority Police, Lee County Sheriff's Office and Sanibel Police Department. Nominations from each agency for the Officer of the Year Award will be accepted. One special hero will be awarded and receive a custom designed piece by Rotarian Mark Loren of Mark Loren Designs.

April Weather Proves Challenging

by Capt. Matt Mitchell

ishing, much like hunting, is about patterns and figuring out what that pattern is to be successful. Water temperature, tide and wind are the main factors in where and when fish are in certain areas. With our weather all over the place the last few weeks, staying on fish or even partly working out the pattern has been a real challenge. Constantly changing strong winds from a different direction almost daily, along with fluctuating water temperatures from cold fronts, has made each day on the water a new puzzle to crack.

I do like the challenge of figuring it out and did to some extent during most trips this week. Every charter involved fishing lots of different places to finally find where and when the fish were feeding. Usually after locating good numbers of fish, I return for a few days on the same tide and wind set-up and catch them consistently. With wind directions being so random, this was not the case at all. One day I would catch lots of snook on a certain shoreline or oyster bar, then the next day the wind would be totally different and the fish were long gone. One thing that did prove consistent for the last few weeks was it was going to take work to get clients on action and nothing was going to come easily.

Snook have been my main target species for the last few weeks and most trips have consisted of catching a dozen or more fish. The last few years we have been spoiled, catching 50-plus fish a trip in April as the fish were already stacked up in the passes. April can be a big transition month with snook if we have had a cold winter. This year, they are just still spread out, still being found all through the back country and out into middle sound as they have not made their way to to the passes in any large numbers yet.

Oyster bar fishing will be a good choice to catch a snook for the next few weeks as they use them as stopping off places, almost like a rest area, as they cross the sound. Most oyster bars require a middle to higher phase of the tide to fish. On low water, they are just too shallow to even reach except on super shallow draft boats. Bouncing bar to bar this week I found some of the better snook action of the week. The hardest part was finding an oyster bar that was fishable on the daily changing wind direction.

Open water flats fishing for trout, mackerel, jacks and ladyfish was still the fastest paced action around when you could find a flat that was somewhat sheltered from the winds. Look for clear water in depths of three to five feet on either side of the sound. Rig up with a live shrimp on a popping cork and this can be as easy as it gets. Most of these trout on the flats are on the small side of the slot so bring lots of shrimp. On the low outgoing tide while fishing some of larger sheltered bays in "Ding" Darling, we experienced some of the best trout fishing I have seen in months. Live shiners fired these fish up, with some of them even going over the 20-inch max. While traveling between spots, I also ran into a few bonus tripletail scattered throughout the bay on random crab buoys. Our largest was right around 20 inches.

Having plenty of shiners to fish with at times this week brought every species out to eat, but at other times, even having the perfect baits could just would not get the bite going. Shiners have gotten easier to catch in the middle sound finally, making the bait part of going fishing much easier than it has been for the last few months. As we get closer to May, hopefully the weather and our fishing will get a whole lot more consistent. April is often a challenging month for anglers and can either be really good or really tough. So far this month, the unpredictable weather has been a major factor.

Capt. Matt Mitchell has been fishing local waters since he moved to Sanibel in 1980. He now lives in St. James City and works as a back country fishing guide. If you have comments or questions email captmattmitchell@aol.com.举

crow case of the Week: Kemp's Ridley Sea Turtle

by Bob Petcher

The Kemp's ridley sea turtle (Lepidochelys kempii) is a somewhat rare species of sea turtle to the Southwest Florida area, which is generally more populated with loggerheads and green turtles. In fact, it is considered the world's most endangered sea turtle by National Geographic magazine. While Kemp's ridleys are found primarily in the Gulf of Mexico, this particular sea turtle can be seen as far north as Nova Scotia.

Kemp's ridleys may live to be approximately 50 years old. They are considered the smallest marine turtle in the world.

Not big into deep diving, the adult Kemp's prefers shallow waters to reach the bottom to feed on fish, jellyfish, mollusks and occasionally seaweed and sargassum. But their favorite food is crab. Interestingly, each indicator species of the sea turtle has a specific function in the ecology of the oceans. The function of the Kemp's ridley is to keep the crab population balanced. Compare that function with greens, known as the "farmers" of the ocean because they eat turtle grasses, and that trimming helps water flow.

With sea turtle nesting season right around the corner, take heed of the reptiles swimming in open waters. The season that supports the prehistoric annual ritual of nesting upon our beachfronts for all sea turtles is from May 1 to October 31.

Last week, a Venture Out Charters captain spotted a Kemp's ridley sea turtle swimming in circles and unable to dive in the Cape Harbour region. Charter boat officials first thought the turtle was entangled in fishing line but soon realized, on closer inspection, it was not trapped but somehow injured.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission was contacted for assistance. FWC put CROW and the Lee County Sheriff's Office in contact with each other to arrange the rescue. Lee County Sheriff's Office transported the injured sea turtle to a Sanibel boat ramp where CROW staff received it for the drive to the rehabilitation clinic.

CROW officials stated the adult turtle arrived with mild dehydration and was given fluids. First diagnosis determined the patient had brevetoxicosis, known as red tide poisoning. It was placed in the facility's turtle tank where it could swim and build muscle for strength.

Currently, the patient is receiving food and fluids daily. At first, it was fed squid. Eventually, crabs were re-introduced into its diet.

Patient #16-986 was found to have red tide poisoning

CROW officials said it can take 90 days for red tide poisoning to clear the sea turtle's lungs and body. That being said, the release date is pending and will be based on the speed of its progress.

"Harmful algal blooms are known to cause morbidity and mortality in fish, marine mammals, sea birds and sea turtles. The effects of these algal blooms on marine organisms are due to the various toxins produced by the different algal species," said Dr. Heather Barron, CROW's hospital director. "The Kemp's ridley sea turtle at CROW was very debilitated and exhibiting clinical signs consistent with brevetoxicosis including disorientation, inability to dive in the water, depression and a very low heart rate. Diagnostic tests revealed some severe electrolyte abnormalities and high brevetoxin levels. An intravenous catheter was placed and fluid therapy and supportive care started. The turtle is responding well to treatment and is now able to swim normally. Toxin levels in the blood will be monitored and the patient released when clinically normal and the toxin levels are low or gone." CROW (Clinic for the Rehabilitation

CROW (Clinic for the Rehabilitation of Wildlife, Inc.) is a non-profit wildlife hospital providing veterinary care for native and migratory wildlife from our local area. The hospital accepts patients seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mail donations to PO Box 150, Sanibel, FL 33957. Call 472-3644 or visit: www.crowclinic.org.

Being There Matters To The U.S. Navy

Seaman Brandon Carbone, a resident of Fort Myers, stands watch at the helm in the bridge aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Kearsarge (LHD 3). Kearsarge is the flagship for the Kearsarge Amphibious Ready Group (ARG) and, with the embarked 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit (MEU), is deployed in support of maritime security operations and theater security cooperation efforts in the U.S. 5th Fleet area of operations. U.S. Navy photo by Mass Communication Specialist 2nd Class Travis DiPerna

On our planet, more than 70 percent of which is covered by water, being there means having the ability to act from the sea. The United States Navy is uniquely positioned to be there; the world's oceans give the Navy the power to protect America's interests anywhere, and at any time. Your Navy protects and defends America on the world's oceans. Navy ships, submarines, aircraft and – most importantly – tens of thousands of America's finest young men and women are deployed around the world doing just that. They will be there when you are sleeping tonight. They will be there every Saturday, Sunday and holiday this year. They are there around the clock, far from our shores, defending America at all times.^{*}

14 | THE RIVER - APRIL 15, 2016 Plant Smart Traveler's Tree

by Gerri Reaves

Traveler's tree's (Ravenala madagascariensis) gigantic fanshaped crown creates a distinctly tropical look in the landscape.

You might know this native of Madagascar by another name, traveler's palm, but in fact it is not a palm.

The tree gets its name from the rainwater that collects in the base in the leaf sheaths – an oasis for thirsty travelers. Each tightly overlapping base holds about a quart of water.

Young specimens have an underground trunk. Mature trees develop a short above-ground palm-like trunk that is about a foot in diameter with numerous leaf-scars rings. Thirty to 35 evergreen leaves of up to Thirty to 35 evergreen leaves of up to 10 feet long make-up the large Chinese-folding-fan formation with the leaves on the same plane.

The wide, smooth, flat leaves resemble those of the tree's relatives, banana, ginger and bird-of-paradise. Because the leaves are usually a bit tattered or shredded by the weather, they have a feathery look.

The inflorescences of small creamy white flowers measure up to foot long and are cupped in boat-shaped bracts. In its native habitat, the tree is pollinated by lemurs.

contains blue seeds, which along with the oily blue arils (appendages attached to the seed) are edible.

Traveler's tree has a moderate growth rate and can reach up to 50 feet tall. Its height and large breadth make it a striking specimen for a big landscape.

'Ding' Darling To Host Federal Junior Duck Stamp Judging

The public is invited to attend the judging of the Federal Junior Duck Stamp (JDS) Contest at JN "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge on Sanibel in celebration of Earth Day on Friday, April 22 from 10 a.m. to noon. This is an inaugural national contest for the refuge, which annually hosts the contest judging at the state level.

"This is beyond exciting," said Ranger Becky Larkins, the refuge education specialist who also runs the Florida JDS program. "It's only fitting that we get to host a judging, because the Junior Duck Stamp program actually started right here on Sanibel Island, and it was Jay 'Ding' Darling who started the Federal Duck Stamp Program that the junior program spun off from."

Jay Norwood "Ding" Darling initiated the Federal Duck Stamp Program in 1934 as head of the U.S. Biological Survey (precursor to the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service) to raise funds for purchasing refuge lands across the country. He also designed the first federal duck stamp.

The JDS is an extension of the Federal Duck Stamp program. Former Sanibel Elementary art schoolteacher Jaye Boswell began the junior program with her

The '60s chic themed event will take place at 6 p.m. and promises an evening full of fun, food, dancing, open bar and a silent auction as well as a historical look back at the organization's 50 years of volunteering and making a difference in Southwest Florida.

Proceeds will support the Junior League's work in the community. To purchase tickets or tables, visit www. jlfm.org. For more information, call 277-1197.

Biology Ranger Jeremy Conrad and Jaye Boswell, known as mother of the Junior Duck Stamp Program, were among the five Florida JDS contest judges on March 29 students in 1989. The first national Junior Duck Stamp Art Contest, sponsored by the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, was held four years later in 1993.

Each state holds its own JDS contest for students from Kindergarten to high school seniors. Larkins held this year's state JDS judging on March 29 at the refuge with 2,766 entries. Best of Show winner Megan Zou from Miami will advance to the federal contest.

Best of Show winners from all the states, Washington, DC and several territories are also entered into the federal judging. For the past 20-plus years, that contest has taken place in the Washington, DC area.

"The winning artwork selected at 'Ding' Darling will grace the 2016-2017 Junior Duck Stamp," said Supervisory Refuge Ranger Toni Westland, who is organizing the event with the help of the "Ding" Darling Wildlife Society-Friends of the Refuge (DDWS). "The five-dollar purchase price of the stamp goes directly to funding the environmental education opportunities and recognition for the children who participate in the program, as well as awards for the top winners."

The judging will take place in the Refuge Visitor & Education Center on April 22. Admission is free but seating will be limited and on a first-come basis. The 2016-2017 Federal JDS winner will be announced at noon.

"We have yet to place a first-place winner from Florida," said Larkins. "We're hoping this is the year!" $\overset{}{\not\sim}$

The 2016 contest began at 6 a.m. on April 1 and runs until midnight on Saturday, April 30.

Participating is easy: anglers simply take a photo, enter detailed catch location or GPS coordinates, and report nonnative freshwater fish catches to IveGot1.org during the contest sample period. Spieth's Disaster Adds Another Chapter To The History Of Final Day Collapses At The Masters mid the splendor of the Georgia pines, millions worldwide watched Jordan Spieth's sudden Masters disaster last Sunday.

Those majestic Georgia pines at the Augusta National Golf Club have served as the setting for some of the saddest meltdowns by some of the world's greatest golfers at the most famous tournament of them all – The Masters.

Last Sunday's final round of the 2016 Masters, saw a young Englishman, Danny Willett, who became a father for the first time just 10 days prior, capture the famed event by firing a superb 67 on this treacherous layout.

But, what nearly everyone has been talking about since was the collapse of 22-yearold Spieth, the defending champion, who had led the tournament from day one, and began the final nine holes with a commanding five-stroke lead. Spieth went wire-to-wire to win last year's Masters and was atop the leader

Spieth went wire-to-wire to win last year's Masters and was atop the leader board the first three days this year, a record. And, after shooting 32 on the front nine Sunday, tournament officials most likely had his second green jacket ready for presentation.

Golf can be a cruel game as so many have learned. It was 20 years ago when Hall of Famer Greg Norman blew a six-stroke lead entering the final round in perhaps the greatest meltdown in Masters History. That fate struck again last Sunday to the personable, likeable Spieth.

He bogeyed No. 10. He bogeyed No. 11, and then dumped two balls in the water on No. 12 for a quadruple bogey seven. His lead had vanished along with his hopes for a second Masters title.

Norman's demise in 1996 also occurred in similar lightning fashion. He bogeyed 9, 10, 11 and, like Spieth on Sunday, dunked his tee shot in the water on 12. His ball also found the water on 16. It was all over for Norman as Nick Faldo waltzed to the championship.

And yes, those Georgia pines have served as the backdrop for other Masters disasters on the final day:

Rory McIIroy in 2011 began the last round with a four-stroke lead; triple-bogeyed the 10th hole and shot a final round 80.

Greg Norman in 1986 began the final 18 in the lead and needed just a par on the last hole to force a playoff with Jack Nicklaus. Instead, he hit his approach shot into the gallery and handed Nicklaus the last of his six Masters titles.

Ed Snead in 1979 began the final 18 with a five-shot lead but bogeyed the last three holes and fell in a sudden death playoff to Fuzzy Zoeller.

At just 22 years old, Spieth will recover from last Sunday's debacle and will no doubt be fitted with other green jackets in the years ahead.

What is certain, however, those Georgia pines will serve as the graveyard for future meltdowns just as they have in the past.

Horrible Start for the Twins

It was a disastrous first week for the Minnesota Twins losing all seven games. In the history of baseball, no team has ever made the postseason playoffs by losing the first seven games lof the season.

The first three will be against Jupiter and a Friday through Sunday series next week against Charlotte.

Games three, four and five will be in Wheeling. Games six and seven, if necessary, will be here. This is the first time that Florida has faced Wheeling in the playoffs. Wheeling took two of three games from the Everblades in the regular season.

Florida concluded the regular season with a 46-21-1-2 record. Wheeling posted a regular-season record of 37-26-5-4.

Tarpons – The Tarpons host the Georgia Firebirds at 5:30 p.m. Sunday at Germain Arena. A member of the 20-team American Indoor Football League, Florida is 2-0 this season after defeating the Central Florida Jags 65-22 Sunday.

Valerie's House Raises $50,000 At First Fundraiser

Valerie's House for Grieving Families, a not-for-profit organization devoted to helping children and families work through grief following the death of a loved one, held its first fundraising event on March 31, raising more than $50,000 to support growth and expansion. More than 60 people attended the event, including elected officials, business and community leaders, program participants and the media.

The evening began with a guided tour conducted by several of Valerie's House teen ambassadors who attend the program. Founder and board president Angela Melvin and board member Stephen Bienko of 42 Holdings/College Hunks Hauling Junk shared the story of how Valerie's House came to life and the impact it is already having on local families. Brandon Phillips, President and CEO of Global HR Research, also a child of loss, spoke on the vital need for Valerie's House in the community and encouraged attendees to lend financial support through a matching pledge. During the presentation, two Valerie's House families and their children shared their stories of grief and their journeys from hopelessness to hope through the work of Valerie's House. Attendees also experienced the power of a grief activity, as Valerie's House social worker Danielle Visone

Nicholas Mills, Jessica Mills and Alexa Bustamante

Stacy Brown, Fort Myers Mayor Randy Henderson, Buffy Hagood and Anne Hoffman

led attendees through a grief exercise, similar to what children in the program experience.

"We are overwhelmed by the community support," Melvin said. "We had people come through our door who had no idea what we were providing to children, the need or the impact. Now, they want to get involved and help us grow, which will allow us to expand these much needed services to other children."

Valerie's House opened in January and is currently serving 52 children and caregivers from Lee, Collier, Charlotte and Hendry counties. The organization provides a safe, comfortable place for children to share, grieve and heal together following the death of a close family member.

Valerie's House is located at 1618 Avalon Place in the historic Dean Park community of downtown Fort Myers, with plans to expand to Naples and Cape Coral. Financial Focus Which IRA Is Better For Younger Workers?

by Jennifer Basey

If you're at the beginning of your career, you might not be thinking too much about the end of it. But even younger workers should be aware of – and saving for – their eventual retirement. And since you've got many years until you do retire, you've got a lot of options to consider – one of which is whether an IRA may be appropriate for you and, if so, what type.

Essentially, you can choose between a "traditional" IRA and a Roth IRA. (Other types of IRAs are available if you're self-employed.)

With a traditional IRA, you contribute "pretax" dollars, so your contributions are generally tax-deductible, depending on your income limits and whether you also have a 401(k) or other retirement plan at work. In 2016, you can contribute up to $5,500 to your traditional IRA, although the limit rises once you reach 50. You can fund your IRA with many types of investments – for example, stocks, bonds, and government securities – and your earnings grow on a tax-deferred basis.

A Roth IRA has the same $5,500 annual contribution limit and can also be funded with many types of investments. But there are some key differences. You can only contribute to a Roth IRA if your income is below a certain threshold, but that threshold is quite high, especially for younger workers starting their careers. So you'll likely be eligible. However, your contributions are never tax-deductible, so you're basically funding your Roth IRA with money on which you've already been taxed. But your earnings can grow tax free, as long as you don't start taking withdrawals until you're 59½ and you've had your account at least five years.

Assuming you can contribute to either a traditional or a Roth IRA, which should you choose? There's no one right answer for everyone, but as a younger worker, you may be able to gain two important benefits from contributing to a Roth.

First, since you're probably earning much less now than you will later in your career, you're likely in a relatively low tax bracket. Usually, the only way to get money from a traditional IRA before you retire is through a short-term loan; otherwise, you can get hit with both taxes and penalties on early withdrawals. But with a Roth IRA, you can withdraw your contributions (not the earnings) penalty free to help pay for your first house or to go back to school.

Still, as mentioned before, there's no hard-and-fast rule as to which IRA is better for younger workers. For example, if you are certain you'll be in a lower tax bracket when you retire, you might be better off by taking the yearly tax deductions from your traditional IRA and then paying taxes on the withdrawals when you retire. But that's a hard prediction for anyone to make.

Your tax advisor may be able to provide some guidance on whether a traditional or a Roth IRA is better for you, but either one can be a valuable resource for that day, many years from now, when you say "goodbye" to work and start a new phase of your life. According to Jeanne Sweeney, founder and president of the organization, the summit will feature an open job fair from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. for those seeking quality employment opportunities, and a panel discussion and luncheon from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. for business owners, professionals, human resource managers and investors.

The region's workforce has ridden the roller coaster from more than 10 percent unemployment to an impressive sub-5 percent. Industries in Southwest Florida are in need of qualified workers, including healthcare professionals, skilled laborers, airport workers and more. A panel of local industry leaders will join their counterparts from Puerto Rico to discuss topics that include what may be an untapped resource of skilled workers, collaborative business opportunities, and economic growth in Southwest Florida.

Connie Ramos-Williams, president and chief marketing officer of CONRIC PR & Marketing, will emcee the event. Several dignitaries will also be taking part in the summit, including Fort Myers Mayor Randy Henderson, Puerto Rico Senator Carmelo Rios and Puerto Rico's Secretary of Economic Development and Commerce, Alberto Baco Bague.

Summit sponsors include Gulfshore Business, Lee Memorial Health Systems, Storm Smart, Strategy Corp, CONRIC PR & Marketing and Telemundo. Other sponsorship and vendor table opportunities are available. Companies that have job opportunities may purchase a vendor table at the job fair to conduct interviews or collect resumes, or may become a summit sponsor to promote their business and employment opportunities. Telemedicine Keeping Babies And Families Closer To Home hanks to advanced technology and a new telemedicine program between Golisano Children's Hospital of Southwest Florida and Nicklaus Children's Hospital in Miami, some of the most fragile infants now have access to highly specialized genetic services, making it possible for more families to receive care closer to home.

"The ability to have our neonates seen by a pediatric geneticist without moving them - even an inch – is just amazing," said Kathy Bridge-Liles, Chief Administrative Officer of Golisano Children's Hospital. "A 15-minute remote consult provides care quicker and saves an entire family the inconvenience of traveling to Miami for specialty services. It is an amazing accomplishment and the result of working together to bring the best care possible to our young patients. I am so proud to be part of this incredible team.

Lee Memorial Health System has developed its own portable telemedicine device, which can be moved from room to room. Physicians from Nicklaus Children's Hospital in Miami communicate with local physicians about the patient's care through a secure technology with the advantage of incredibly precise optics. The remote physician can view the patient and see conditions and illnesses close-up, giving them a more detailed perspective than the natural eye can see alone.

Golisano Children's Hospital physicians are using the telemedicine services in the neonatal intensive care unit (NICU) for genetics and metabolic disease consultation.

'Telemedicine is an example of how technology can benefit people by bringing them closer together," said William Binder, M.D., neonatologist with Pediatrix Medical Group of Florida who cares for patients of Golisano Children's Hospital of Southwest Florida. "It allows the off-site specialist in Miami to come to the bedside, examine a patient and discuss his or her assessment and plan, with care providers and families in a virtual way. It is really very similar to having the specialist in the hospital.

Nicklaus Children's has made a significant commitment to telehealth technology as a way to share the expertise of our renowned pediatric subspecialists," added Narendra Kini, M.D., Chief Executive Officer of Miami Children's Health System, parent organization of Nicklaus Children's Hospital. "We are pleased to support families of newborns in Southwest Florida in accessing our genetic and metabolic disorders team. Our commitment is to be where the children are, and our telehealth program enhances our care reach, enabling us to make a difference for families in neighboring communities and around the world."

This type of telemedicine application is a way to bring major-city services to less urban areas. This specialty is particularly well-suited to this application because pediatric geneticists are a rare specialty, and their practices require high population-tospecialist ratios.

Jonathan Witenko, senior business systems analyst and project manager for Lee Memorial Health System, played a major role in the creation of the telemedicine device. Subsequently, his own daughter required a neurological telemedicine consult, and couldn't be more grateful for the collaboration with Nicklaus Children's Hospital.

"I know personally the massive efforts that were involved in providing this service," said Witenko. "To see my own daughter's care expedited and enhanced by the efforts of so many was an incredible experience and I'm thankful to be a part of a system that truly cares.

"This is a perfect example Telemedicine in action of combining technology and human collaboration to extend the reach of top-notch specialty care to all of the children of Southwest Florida," explained Binder. "Golisano Children's Hospital is demonstrating their commitment to the total care of the children of Southwest Florida through this high-tech collaboration with Nicklaus Children's Hospital.' "This is the door to our future," Bridge-Liles added. For more information, visit ChildrensHospitalGoal.org.*

Doctor and Dietician Things People With Spinal Instability Say

by Ross Hauser, MD and Marion Hauser, MS, RD

One: "I hear my neck or back pop all the time." It is not normal to hear audible pops and cracks in our spine. This is known as crepitation, and typically occurs because the ligaments are not holding the vertebral segments together properly. Ligaments connect bone to bone and allow our joints to move within a normal range of motion. But when they are overstretched, whether through a trauma such as a whiplash or from continuous poor posture at the computer or hunched over a phone, they can allow for too much movement and trigger back and neck pain. 2: "I crack my spine throughout the day." Manipulating your own neck or back can become an addiction and lead to further instability. The ligaments begin to become so lax that they are incapable of holding adjustments and allow for continuous subluxations. This becomes a vicious circle and worsening chronic neck and back pain.

3: "My neck and back muscles are tight and spasm." When the spinal ligaments become lax, the muscles have to take over, which is not the job they are designed to do. They are recruited to hold the vertebrae together, but this can lead to overuse, tightness and constant spasms. Though massage and other therapies may relieve the pain temporarily, the pain and tension return if the underlying ligament laxity is not addressed.

In order to alleviate most low back or neck pain, repairing the lax ligaments is an important, though often overlooked, step. A regenerative medicine specialist can perform a proper physical exam or Digital Motion X-ray for spinal instability. To stabilize the spine, regenerative treatments like Prolotherapy can be used to alleviate chronic back pain and muscle spasms, and allow the spine to stay in alignment.

Mom And Me

by Lizzie and Pryce

Lizzie and Pryce answer your questions and give advice about aging concerns from a two-generational perspective. A mother and daughter team, Lizzie is a retired RN and health educator, and Pryce is a licensed psychotherapist in private practice who specializes in the care of elders and people with chronic illnesses.

Dear Mom & Me,

I waited for three years to get the accommodations I wanted at our local retirement home.

When they finally called, I immediately put my house up for sale, disposed of all of the household items I would not need and moved in. I have been in the retirement home for six months and it is lovely, but I will have to move out next month. My house has not sold and the asking price continues to go down so I will be moving back. Where did I go wrong? Clarissa

Dear Clarissa,

You did not do anything wrong - you were in the wrong place at the wrong time through no fault of your own. You applied the advice you were given and waited until it was time to make a move, and then made your move. You, as well as many, many other people, have been caught in the housing market difficulty.

It is important to talk to the director at the retirement community to let him/ her know what is happening to you and what you would like to do in the future: move back if your home sells. Also, they should be able to advise you of the home support services available if you need assistance when you return home. Pryce

Dear Clarissa,

I am also shocked at the downturn in the economy when I always thought that there were firm controls in place to prevent such a thing. We are told that this is not a depression but a recession, but the housing sector has been severely affected.

I would suggest you contact an attorney who may have suggestions for people in your situation. The attorney may have a possible solution and could contact your retirement complex, and maybe they can come to a reasonable solution. They probably do not want you to move out, and they may want to help you to stay.

Your real estate agent may have some suggestions you could consider. Houses are selling but at a much slower rate, and if they suggest having a staging expert see your property, I would suggest that you consider it strongly. Best of luck.

dogs, students are more apt to be open and share information," Morgan said. "Dogs promote safety and security. Even if the kids know me, they feel safer to discuss something that makes them vulnerable.

Throughout Texas, security dogs patrol school halls, staying on the lookout for criminal activity. The nonprofit K9s4KIDS provides Kindergarten through grade 12 and college campus police with trained canines who can sniff out narcotics, weapons and explosives. "The dogs almost act as a mascot," Schiller, owner of K9s4KIDS, said. "There are a lot of ways they comfort children.

Of course there are concerns about students who are allergic to pet dander. Schools are finding if the students with allergies do not pet the dogs, they typically are OK. Of course, if a child were severely allergic, a plan would need to be developed to protect him. That would also hold true for any children who are fearful of dogs. A behavior plan could be created to help reduce or eliminate a child's fear of dogs.

Given the role that dogs now have in schools I think that your child will benefit from the dogs in her new school setting. However, if you have any problems, you should contact your child's teacher or counselor right away to resolve them.

Alumni, Community Drive For FGCU

Norida Gulf Coast University is asking its alumni and other supporters in the community to get into the swing of giving this spring by pledging a gift to the university by making a gift at Give2FGCU.com.

FGCU Give Day got its official kickoff last week at the baseball game between the FGCU Eagles and the University of Miami Hurricanes. It was a fitting starting pitch for the campaign, which will take place on Tuesday, April 26.

The one-day fundraiser is an effort to build enthusiasm and giving among the growing alumni base as well as faculty, staff and the many members of the community with ties to the university.

"As a Florida Gulf Coast University alumna, I am honored to be an ambassador to the first ever Give Day," said Caroline Glenn Thomas, Class of '06. "I'm looking forward to raising awareness of The FGCU Effect by celebrating and highlighting philanthropic accomplishments.

For nearly 20 years, the university has made an indelible impact upon Southwest Florida, providing educational opportunities, conducting meaningful research and serving as an economic and cultural hub for the region.

The Faramo family is a prime example of why the university is so important to Southwest Florida.

With eight family members graduating from FGCU (some with multiple degrees), we all appreciate the commitment FGCU has made to addressing the educational needs of the rapidly growing Southwest Florida population," said Jeff Faramo.

Donations of any size are welcome and will help students achieve success.

Wear blue, give green and show your pride in FGCU by giving during the one-day drive.

ear Shelley, We are moving out of state soon, and my daughter's new school has guite a few dogs there would a school have dogs other than for blind children? Do you think it's safe to have dogs at an elementary school?

Lucinda Z., Fort Myers, Florida Lucinda,

Dogs have become an important member of schools. There are now therapy dogs, security dogs and service dogs that walk the halls alongside students in many schools. These dogs are welltrained and provide valuable services for both students and teachers.

Most of us are familiar with guide dogs for the blind and visually impaired. The role of the service dog has expanded greatly in recent years, and we now see service dogs used for disabilities and illnesses that include seizure disorders, muscular dystrophy, mobility disorders, hearing impaired, autism, diabetes, PTSD and more. Service dogs can enhance a person's independence by helping with tasks such as pulling a wheelchair, opening doors, turning light switches on/off or picking up objects as small as a dime. It's quite astounding to see how well these highly trained dogs can assist people.

Dogs and their handlers are trained to help students with reading, behavior and to help kids with anxiety. There are a variety of reading programs that use dogs but they all operate with the same premise. The dogs help the struggling readers gain confidence and improve literacy by acting as the child's audience when reading aloud to their furry friends. The dog handlers are always close by and, in some reading programs, they interact with the students always taking the role of the dog and assist with vocabulary and comprehension. "Young students really believe the dog is listening to them," says Mara Kahn, 4Paws coordinator of Sonoma County. "It's greatly improved their reading.

A recent study from the University of California-Davis found that reading aloud to a dog for 10 minutes, once a week for 10 weeks, improved the reading fluency of third-grade students in another Northern California district, Dixon USD, by 12 percent. A control class that did not read aloud showed no improvement in reading fluency over this period of time

Service dogs are making it easier for non-verbal children to speak. "We found that most of our students, particularly those who are nonverbal, responded really well to having the dogs be part of their lessons," said Walter Curioni, Randolph's director of special services in Randolph Township, New Jersey. "Students are more available to learning as a result of this experience. The challenge for students with disabilities in the classroom is getting them to speak, and there is no more authentic way than to bring in an animal - you get that spontaneous language you can't always simulate in a speech lesson," Curioni said.

ear Pharmacist: We take for granted the comfort we feel in our hands and feet, but some people have lost that comfort, and they suffer all day long with strange nerve-related concerns. There is new research about aspirin which could help you, but first let's talk about nerve pain, termed "neuropathy."

It feels like you are touching or stepping on pins and needles! It can affect you all over, not just your hands and feet. Depending on various factors (race, age, weight, alcohol consumption, insulin and A1c), your experience of neuropathy may also include pain, vibration or buzzing sensations, lightheadedness, burning sensations (even in your tongue), trigeminal neuralgia or cystitis.

Recognizing what your neuropathy stems from is critical to you getting well. For some, it is due to a vitamin deficiency. For example, vitamin B12 or probiotics which help you to manufacture your own B12 in the gut. For others, it could be that wine you drink with dinner because wine is a potent drug mugger of B1 (thiamine) which protects your nerve coating. By a mile, the most common cause of neuropathy is diabetes.

Approximately half of all people with diabetes experience diabetic neuropathies, mainly in the hands and feet. Some doctors will tell you that maintaining healthy blood glucose will reverse neuropathy but that's not true. We know from The Diabetes Control and Complications Trial that even intensive glucose control is insufficient to control the risk of diabetic neuropathy.

It's tough love but I need to say it: Uncontrolled neuropathy can cause a 25 percent higher cumulative risk of leg amputation. So gaining control is important for your independence. I've written about natural supplements for neuropathy in the past (articles are archived at suzycohen.com), and you can have a free ebook Spices that Heal which offers more natural advice (get it by signing up for my email newsletter).

New research was published last March in Current Diabetes Reports. Scientists confirmed that targeting inflammatory cytokines can help relieve diabetic neuropathy. Oftentimes, that bad gateway called NF Kappa B (NFKB) opens its floodgates, and spits out proinflammatory cytokines like COX-2 (Celebrex lowers this), nitric oxide synthase, lipoxygenase, TNF alpha and a lot of pain-causing interleukins (IL-1ß, IL-2, IL-6, IL-8).

The researchers reported that something as simple as salicylate therapy could help reduce some of these cytokines as well as circulating glucose, triglycerides, C reactive protein and free fatty acids. When you think of salicylates, please understand this is a broad group of compounds found naturally in the plant kingdom. Salicylate is the main ingredient in aspirin and other analgesics, both prescribed and over-the-counter. Salicylates include spearmint, peppermint (even in mint toothpaste) and in muscle rubs. White willow bark is an herb that is morphed and turned into aspirin. They're not right for everyone so please ask your doctor about salicylates for neuropathy. Also ask if you can have a blood test to evaluate some of the pro-inflammatory markers I noted.

Fight For Air Climb Benefit

ocal Climbers are training for the American Lung Association's annual Fight for Air Climb at 9 a.m. on Saturday, April 23 at The Oasis Tower One, 3000 Oasis Grand Blvd. near downtown Fort Myers. During the unique endurance event, participants will climb 31 flights of stairs in the residential high rise to raise money for lung disease research, education and advocacy.

More than 200 people are expected to climb 535 steps up the high rise, including local firefighters who will ascend in 45 pounds of full gear helmet, hood, pants, coat, gloves, boots and air pack. Firefighters have an increased risk for lung disease from the exposure to gases, chemicals and smoke in the line of duty. Other participants will climb in support or memory of people touched by lung disease or in support of their own fitness goals.

"This is truly a remarkable experience for both running and fitness enthusiasts, as well as our participants who are suffering from a lung disease,' said Kurt Goerke, director of health promotions for the American Lung Association in Florida. "As soon as you start up the stairs, you are instantly reminded that no one should have to fight for air on a daily basis.'

The April 23 stairclimb - like many that the American Lung Association hosts around the country - will be the sixth to take place in Fort Myers. Local fundraising reached over $45,000 at the last event.

Fight for Air climbers can participate individually or as a team. Registration is $25, and each climber must raise a minimum of $100 to participate. For more information, or to register, visit www.ClimbFortMyers.org or call 239-908-2685.举

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A brand-new approach to a problem could have a good chance of succeeding if it's based on a solid foundation of fact to strengthen its potential for standing up to scrutiny.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A favorable report should give your optimism an important boost as you confront another phase of a challenge. Don't be timid about accepting advice from someone vou trust.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might want to target another goal if your current aim is continually being deflected. But stay with it until you find that first sign of an opening, and then follow through.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although offers of advice might not always please the usually sure-footed Goat, good counsel is always worth considering, especially from those whose experience can be invaluable.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't rush to make up for lost time. Your productivity can be measured not only by what you do, but how you do it. Move carefully until the job is done the way you like it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Emerging facts about someone you know might cause you to rethink your relationship. But remember to make judgments in context of a full situation, not just on scraps of data.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are known both for your love of acquiring beautiful things as well as for your generosity to others.

THIS WEEK IN HISTORY

• On April 23, 1564, English dramatist and poet William Shakespeare is born in Stratford-on-Avon. While it is impossible to be certain of the exact day of his birth, church records show that he was baptized on April 26, and it was customary to wait three days before baptizing a newborn.

• On April 20, 1871, Congress authorizes President Ulysses S. Grant to use military force to suppress the Ku Klux Klan. Founded in 1865 by a group of Confederate veterans, the KKK engaged in night terrorist raids against black Americans and white Republicans.

• On April 19, 1897, the first Boston Marathon is held. Women were not allowed to enter the race until 1972, but in 1966 runner Roberta "Bobbi" Gibb hid in the bushes near the start until the race began. In 1967, Kathrine Switzer finished even though race officials tried to physically remove her.

• On April 21, 1918, Manfred von Richthofen, the German flying ace known as "The Red Baron," is killed by Allied fire. In a time when 20 air victories ensured a pilot legendary status, von Richthofen had downed 80 enemy aircraft. He was 25 years old.

• On April 18, 1945, syndicated journalist Ernie Pyle, America's most popular war correspondent, is killed by Japanese machine-gun fire on the island of Ie Shima in the Pacific. Pyle always wrote about the experiences of enlisted men rather than the battles they participated in.

• On April 24, 1953, Winston Churchill, the British leader who guided Great Britain

STRANGE BUT TRUE

• It was award-winning Canadian novelist, poet, essayist and literary critic Margaret Atwood who made the following sage observation: "Your romantic tragedy when you were 19 becomes a funny anecdote by the time you're 45. And then, 30 years later, you can't remember their name."

• In 1819, some Native peoples in the United States got quite a surprise. Fearing trouble from tribes, a group of western river explorers traveled in a steamboat that had been modified to resemble a fire-breathing serpent.

• After the disaster of the Exxon Valdez, the oil tanker's former captain, Joseph Hazelwood -- who evidently had been so drunk that he was passed out in his bunk when the devastating collision occurred -- was hired by the New York Maritime College. His job? Teaching students how to stand watch.

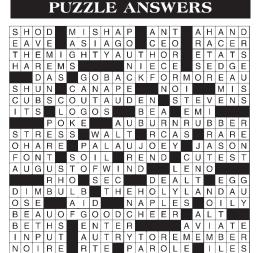

• At one time in New York City it was against the law to play pinball.

• Tombstones weren't always used to record information about the deceased's life; they were originally just large, unmarked slabs of stone placed atop a fresh grave -- a barrier to ensure that no undead creature or ghastly spirit could escape to trouble the living.

• The woman who was declared the female winner of the 1980 Boston Marathon had the title stripped from her after officials noticed her absence from any of the photographs or video footage from the middle of the event. It seems she veered off course, killed a little time around town, then rode the subway a spot less than a mile from the finish line, rejoining the race at the very end.

Pets Of The Week

H, I'm Bailey, I'm young but ready to learn. I already know how to sit and take treats gently. My favorites include playing with toys and other dogs in playgroups. I'm a big boy with a high energy level when I'm playing but I will greet you calmly and gently from my kennel when you come by to visit. Please consider making a good dog like me a part of your family. We'll have a great life together. My adoption fee is $75.

My name is Simba and I'm a big handsome boy who is declawed on all fours. Bengals are a very active and intelligent breed that is confident, talkative and playful. My former owner was unable to keep me and my other feline friends. Since we lived in the same house, we get along together so please check us out to see if we would be a good fit for your family. My adoption fee is $25.

For information about this week's pets, call 533-7387 (LEE-PETS) or log on to Animal Services' website at www.LeeLostPets. com. When calling, refer to the animal's ID number. The website updates every hour so you will be able to see if these or any other pets are still available.

The shelter is open for adoptions from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The shelter is located at 5600 Banner Drive in Fort Myers, next to the Lee County Sheriff's Office off Six M
