Indie Band Comes Home To Play At Art Center

The second of the Noteworthy Concert Series introduces a talented band with local roots, For A Season. The band's unique sound, along with featured brewery Old Soul Brewing Co., is a perfect pairing of blues and brews. For A Season will perform live on Friday, September 23 at the Sidney & Berne Davis Art Center (SBDAC), located in the historic downtown River District at 2301 First Street in Fort Myers.

For A Season is an indie folk, soul, rock and roll band hailing from Southwest Florida. Their music hails from rock backgrounds, gospel flavored vocals with a rootsy feel, and a blend of modern folk orchestration that also makes room for soul and country inflections.

For A Season opened for headliner Johnnyswim at the inaugural Tap & hope and truth to those who are weary. There is a dying world of people that are completely empty and we want to reach them through music." The last four years have been spent touring and building up a fan base, including 1,000,000 views on YouTube.

In August 2015, For A Season released their first full length record, I Will Wait, which was recorded and produced by Rick Beato, who is best known for working with artists such as Needtobreathe, Parmalee, Shinedown and many other top names in the industry. I Will Wait gained radio play across the globe and opened the door for touring opportunities and shows with some of the top artists in the music industry, including two-time Grammy Award winning artist For King & Country and American Idol alumnus Colton Dixon.

General admission tickets are $10 each. The season series cost is $30, which also includes The Good Bad Kids on October 14 and Strange Arrangement on October 28. Doors open at 7 p.m. for pre-concert cocktails. The show begins at 8 p.m. Visit www. sbdac.com to purchase tickets or for more information.

Historic Downtown Fort Myers, Then And Now:

Caswell House On Jackson Street

by Gerri Reaves, PhD

Tell into the 1920s, many family residences existed on Jackson Street between First and Second. The King, Carson, Pavese, Langford and Funck families were only a few who lived on the block in the mid-19-teens.

Kentucky natives Col. William M. and Elizabeth "Lizzie' Caswell were among the residents. Their house, pictured circa 1915, was located on the east side of Jackson where today's Main Street ends.

It has an inviting look, despite the lack of foliage: a pretty white fence, big porch with a rocking chair and pot plant, and fluttering curtains in the upstairs window. Note the newspaper lying on the porch bench as if a reader will return momentarily. The Caswell's apparently first boarded in that house with widow Bessie (Mrs. LG) Thorp and her two children before buying it in December 1910 for $650. It was one of many properties and land tracts they would buy and sell in the county.

Thorp, who originally owned much of the land in the neighborhood, then began operating her Thorp House boardinghouse on Lee Street.

Little is known about the Caswells, who seem to have left by around 1920. However, William Caswell was an early member of the Fort Myers Board of Trade, formed in 1903, and that indicates a strong interest in the community and the city's development. That booster organization formed with the main purpose of bringing the railroad to Fort Myers.

As the 1920s approached, family homes like the Caswell's gradually yielded to commercial enterprises on that block.

The commercialization had begun in the early 19-teens, with the establishment of the highly successful Ben King's Garage, which stood just north of today's intersection of Jackson and Main.

But the most momentous change came late in 1920, when Peter Tonnelier extended Main, then called Oak Street, through to Jackson. He then commenced the construction of the Central Hotel, complete with individual storefronts on the ground floor.

Today, a city parking garage stands where the hotel once did.

Today, the Foxworthy Building occupies the former Caswell site

Circa 1940, Boyd Clifton "BC" Foxworthy built Foxworthy Furniture on part of the footprint of the Caswell house. The Foxworthy Building, as it is now called, is an office building.

Today, only the Pavese house – just south of where the Caswell's lived – reminds us of the block's residential history. That historic home is now a law firm.

Walk down to the Jackson Street and imagine a quieter era before commerce (aka progress) displaced family homes.

If you want to know more about local history, you have places to visit.

Fort Myers Art: Rauschenberg's Transfer Solvent Print Profiled

by Tom Hall

A n anonymous donor has promised to give Florida Gulf Coast University a transfer solvent print created by Robert Rauschenberg in 2001. It's titled Page 21, Paragraph 3 and is part of t Statice caries Rauschenberg's Short Stories series.

Late in his career, Rauschenberg created a series of 7-by-5-foot paintings utilizing a process by which he transferred photographic images in pigment and vegetable dye onto a poly-laminate surface. He called the series Short Stories, and each painting in the 2001 set was arranged in a pre-determined sequence to create a visual story. The paintings' titles make reference to random page and paragraph numbers – for example, Page 11, Paragraph 8 or Page 21, Paragraph 3. – as if it were part of a larger story.

"The resultant effect is such that, upon encountering and 'reading' the composite work, the viewer feels as though he has been dropped into the middle of an unknown story," states the press release issued by New York's Pace Gallery for its April 4 to May 3, 2003 exhibition of Robert Rauschenberg Short Stories by You Are the Author.

Rauschenberg amplified his intent in the statement he wrote to accompany the exhibition. "It can only be art, linger and wonder wherever your mind takes you," he wrote. "In this group of works there are no mistakes nor right, nor wrong. They are acronical of what you personally see or imagine. No tracks. No traces. Your story or dream and imagined or real these are your personal treasures to share or keep secret, choose to expand your reality or live it in the future..."

The print has not actually been donated yet.

Page 21, Paragraph 3 is significant in the context of Rauschenberg's overall body of work because it is one of his solvent transfer prints. Though it is debatable whether Rauschenberg was the first artist to create prints in this way, his transfers of newspaper articles and photographs to canvas broke the mold in mixed-media printmaking. The ability to transfer current events into fine art by lifting text and photographic images from newspapers and magazines enabled him to pioneer a revolutionary path from abstract expressionism to Pop Art.

He is said to have discovered the process by accident in 1958. As the story goes, some solvent got spilled on some newspapers that were lying on a canvas. When he picked up the papers, he noticed that the newsprint and photographs had transferred onto the surface of the canvas. To anyone else, that would have been a nuisance. For Rauschenberg, it was an "aha" moment that he discerned could be the advent of an entirely new way to create art. With that, the discipline of transfer printmaking was born and it has since inspired generations of printmakers to find new ways to cause images to transfer to other supports and surfaces.

Though it all started with newspaper clippings, the most common forms of transfer printmaking today involve photocopies or laser printouts. These toner-based techniques seem to give the best results. The reason for this lies in the nature of the toner itself. Toner is comprised mostly of carbon and polymers or waxes that are sensitive to electrostatic charges. Through a complex process, these charged particles are attracted and then fused to the paper under heat and pressure. Different transfer techniques use varying approaches to undo this binding done by the polymers or waxes and create a new bond for the carbon (pigment) particles.

Rauschenberg was born in Port Arthur, Texas on October 22, 1925. After serving in the military during World War II, he began studying art in 1947 at the Kansas City Art Institute.

Toward the end of 1970, he tired of the art scene in New York and established his permanent residence and studio in Captiva Island, where he acquired 20 acres of the island to use a workspace and serve as a nature preserve.

Tom Hall is both an amateur artist and aspiring novelist who writes art quest thrillers. He is in the final stages of completing his debut novel titled Art Detective. A former tax attorney, he lives in Estero with his fiancé and their four cats.

A Trip Down Memory Lane At Broadway Palm

h, the memories that were savored while watching Yesterday's at Broadway Palm. This musical comedy revue features an extremely talented cast singing and performing all the great songs from the 1950s and 1960s. There are too many to mention so I'll just highlight a few of my favorites. Me and Bobby McGee was a show-stopper as Ilana Gabrielle belted out the beloved Janis Joplin tune in a costume reminiscent of the era and her personality. You'll get a kick out of the costumes; poodle skirts, crinolines, capris and everything else that was fashionable those days.

I also loved the Blue Moon, Mack the Knife, Respect, You Don't Own Me and Mona Lisa numbers. Let's be honest, I enjoyed the entire show. It pays tribute to Elvis, Janis, The Beattles, Woodstock and every other important performer of the day. Much to my delight, Jayar Garcia stepped in to sing La Bamba. I remember when he had the lead in the musical of the same name years ago. Jayar, you still have it. Over 50 songs are performed either as solos or musical medleys.

The show was created, directed and choreographed by Victor Legarreta, a Southwest Florida favorite and definitely one of mine. These young kids captured the enthusiasm and joy of the Rockin' '50s and the Groovin' '60s. At the start of the show, one performer asked how many of us in the audience remembered the music from these eras and most hands went up. He then said, "None of us do." Ah, to be so young again.

There was some audience participation during the show, which always adds a fun touch. Keep your eye on the slide panels on both sides of the stage. They also add some nostalgia and humor to the evening. The main cast is Ilana Gabrielle, Rachael Haber, Keith McCoy, Jesse Michels, Housso Semon and Scott James Smith. The night I saw the show, Christopher Violett stepped in for Jesse Michels. Whether with an understudy or not, the cast sings and dances their hearts out, giving everyone an evening to remember.

One local car dealer will be pleased with the bit where Smith comes on stage as Elvis and asks the way to a certain dealership. Let's just say, it was huge and left the audience chuckling.

Yesterday's plays through October 8. Broadway Palm is located at 1380 Colonial Boulevard in Fort Myers. Tickets are on sale at the box office and can be reserved by calling 278-4422, or visit BroadwayPalm.com. demonstrations. Some of the highlights of the night include DAAS Co-op Art Gallery & Gifts' Plein-Air participant exhibition, talk by organizer Amanda Plummer and the selection of the best in show, who will be awarded a solo show at the gallery in March 2017. The Yoga Bird, which has become one of Fort Myers' most popular yoga studios, will host the art of Patrick Williams for the night. The Ocasiocasa Studio, located in the Art Loft of the Alliance for the Arts, will feature works created by Jeff and Dale Ocasio.

For a complete list of all the activities for the night, visit socoswfl.com. There is also a map detailing the area.

SoCo Second Saturday and the SoCo Cultural District is the brainchild of visual artist and gallery owner David Acevedo, who also co-founded the Fort Myers Art Walk. With support from other leaders in the community, such as Lydia Black from the Alliance for the Arts, Chip and Anna Withrow from Yoga Bird, David Gittleman from Gittleman Studios, Jeffrey Scott Lewis from the Union Artist Studios, Melissa Vogt and Will Prather from the Broadway Palm Dinner Theatre and massage therapist Frank Jean, a committee was founded and plans were put in place for the establishment of the event.

"The potential for this area (of the SoCo Cultural District) to grow into the new arts and culture district of Fort Myers is evident to me," said Acevedo, who opened DAAS Co-op Art Gallery & Gifts earlier this year. "Having the Alliance, the Broadway Palm and so many other important artistic venues nearby, it was only logical to come up with a way to unite and conquer."

Parking is available in the Royal Palm Square and at the Alliance for the Arts campus. A map will be available at all the participating venues.

Fundraiser To Help Theater Find New Home

The Laboratory Theater of Florida kicks off the season with a fundraising event, Take Your Seat, offering patrons the opportunity to participate in the theater's pursuit of its own space. The event will offer previews of upcoming productions, live music and a sampling of bourbons and tapas on Saturday, September 24 at 6:30 p.m. at The Barrel Room at Twisted Vine Bistro, located at 2214 Bay Street in Fort Myers.

Those who donate $250 will get an engraved brass plaque for the troupe's new theater seats and reservations for two to the Take Your Seat fundraiser. Donors can have one or two names of their choice engraved on a brass plaque that will be attached to a new seat at the theater's future home. Those who wish to donate but cannot attend will be sent a letter with the request to specify to whom they would like to dedicate their seat. Single event tickets are available for a donation of $125.

Artistic director Annette Trossbach said the theater is in a strong growth year.

"We are excited that this year we are looking to buy a building to be our permanent home (Lab Theater is renting and sharing its current space)," she added. "Our unique shows and educational and outreach programs will be better served by having a building that we can occupy 24/7; we'll be able to expand our community impact as we continue to grow. I am thrilled to connect with others in our community who would like to help us and support our performances, educational programming, and outreach by joining us at our fundraisers this season."

Donations can be made online at LaboratoryTheaterFlorida.com or by calling 218-0481.

Season tickets are still available. The Best Man by playwright Gore Vidal opens on October 7.

For more information, call 218-0481. The theater is located at 1634 Woodford Avenue in Fort Myers.☆

Building Industry Group Meeting

ee Building Industry Association (BIA) will be hosting a networking meeting for its membership on Tuesday, September 20. The meeting will take place at Tile Outlets of America, 13460 Daniels Commerce Boulevard in Fort Myers, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Members can register online at www. BIA.net. The registration fee is $20 for members and $40 for non-members. Attendees are encouraged to wear Hawaiian style attire for the themed event. $

Along The River

Music Walk will rock out the downtown Fort Myers River District again this Friday, September 16. Restaurants, bars, art galleries and shops will showcase a wide range of music during the evening from 6 to 10 p.m. Expect jazz and blues to rock, drums and much more. Each month brings new energy to the historic streets of downtown Fort Myers.

The River District comes alive every month with live music on the third Friday with Music Walk, featuring more than a dozen participating venues with music by local and regional talent.

During Music Walk, join the 4P Music Network at the Sidney & Berne Davis Art Center. Each performance will be recorded, which can be used to build a promo pack. That recording can be posted on social media and the 4P Network to make connections.

There is no fee to join in the fun. Learn more and sign up online at www.4pmusic.com/network.

Organized by the River District Alliance, Music Walk was conceived as a sister event to the extremely popular first Friday Art Walk, which brings out more 2,000 people during off-peak months. Event sponsors include the River District Alliance, Lee County Visitor & Convention Bureau, Edison National Bank, River District, Fort Myers Community Redevelopment Agency and the City of Fort Myers.

Back by popular demand, chef Warren Caterson returns to the Fort Myers Regional Library on Monday, September 19 at 6:30 p.m. to demystify the secrets of wine in cooking.

What's the best way to use wine in cooking? Which one should you use? How much and when to add it? Chef Warren simplifies the process. See how easily it's done, then sample the final results.

There is no charge to attend the demonstration, which is sponsored by the Friends of the Fort Myers Library. To reserve your seat, call 479-4636.

The Fort Myers Regional Library is located at 2450 First Street. Hours are Monday through Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.; Thursday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; closed Sundays.

Beach trash beware. The Ocean Conservancy's 30th annual Coastal Cleanup returns to the beachfronts of Southwest Florida this Saturday, September 17.

There are seven locations to take part locally in the international volunteer effort to rid our coastlines and waterways of marine litter, pollution and debris.

Depending on where you live or are visiting, here is a list of sites to meet at to begin your cleaning efforts: Lovers Key State Park Event Field, Estero Boulevard, Fort Myers Beach; Bunche Beach, 18201 John Morris Road, Fort Myers; Horton Park, 2600 SE Place, Cape Coral; Dog Beach, 8800 Estero Boulevard, Fort Myers Beach; Fort Myers Beach Elementary School, 2751 Oak Street, Fort Myers Beach; Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation, 3333 Sanibel Captiva Road, Sanibel; and Sanibel Causeway, 19500 Sanibel Causeway, Sanibel. Check-in times are at 9 a.m.

Many of the sites partner with Keep Lee County Beautiful. Everyone is encouraged to participate.

Volunteers worldwide remove millions of pounds of coastal trash that can hurt local economies, injure and kill marine wildlife and choke the ocean environment. Internationally last year, more than 560,000 volunteers picked up 16 million pounds of trash in 91 countries on 12,000 miles of coast. Cigarettes and food rappers topped the list of debris found, with plastic bottles coming in third. Annually, an average 1,500 Lee County volunteers collect 10,000 pounds of trash.

Lee Memorial Health System will participate in the annual Omega Family Health Forum this Saturday, September 17 from 9 a.m. to noon at Dunbar High School, 3800 E. Edison Avenue in Fort Myers. The health fair has something for men, women and children of all ages, and will focus on health awareness and prevention. There will be a variety of screenings and educational topics including: Cancer screenings – prostate, colon and breast; Children's health; Women's health; Asthma; Diabetes; Blood pressure; Sleep disorders; Smoking cessation programs; Sexually transmitted disease (STD) testing; and HIV testing.

Kid Care representatives will be available to help families apply for affordable health care insurance for their children.

The Harry Chapin Food Bank also will be on site distributing groceries; bring reusable shopping bags or a box to carry food.

For more information, call 424-2233. The 2016 Peace Day In The Park will take place at Jaycee Park in Cape Coral this Sunday, September 18 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The 9th annual event is a free family and pet friendly celebration. Local food pantries will be on hand to collect generous donations of dry and canned food goods. The Big Red Bus Bloodmobile will also be onsite to collect blood donations. One can save up to three lives. Besides food and blood drives, expect live music, meditation, yoga, fashion show, art and artisans, food, crafts, face painting, diverse community events, health and wellness workshops, raffles and fun. Exhibitors may sign up anytime but remember spaces will be allotted in accordance with availability in your category so as to maintain a balance.

Be part of this historic SWFL community celebration.

The Alliance for the Arts Member Gallery Book Club continues this Tuesday, September 20 with a discussion of Portrait of an Artist: A Biography of Georgia O'Keeffe by Laurie Lisle.

Join fellow Álliance members in this monthly exploration of literature focused on art, artists, art history and art appreciation.

Georgia O'Keeffe, one of the most original painters America has ever produced, left behind a remarkable legacy when she died at the age of 98. Her vivid visual vocabulary – sensuous flowers, bleached bones against red sky and earth – had a stunning, profound and lasting influence on American art in this century.

The book club continues with Maxwell Perkins: Editor of Genius by A. Scott Berg on October 18, The Lonely City: Adventures in the Art of Being Alone by Olivia Laing on November 15, Eiffel's Tower by Jill Jonnes on December 20, I Shock Myself by Beatrice Woods on January 17 and Twilight of the Belle Epoque: The Paris of Picasso, Stravinsky, Proust, Renault, Marie Curie, Gertrude Stein and Their Friends through the Great War by Mary Sperling McAuliffe on February 21.

The Alliance Member Gallery Book Club meets from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on the third Tuesday of every month. Club members must purchase their own copy of each book, but an active Alliance membership is all that's required.

You must be a member in order to participate. Individual memberships are $55 annually or family memberships are $80. No experience is necessary. Visit www.artinlee.org or call 939-2787 to become a member.

The Alliance for the Arts is located at 10091 McGregor Boulevard, just south of Colonial Boulevard in Fort Myers.

Discussing Guns At Theatre Conspiracy

by Di Saggau

Now showing through September 18 at Theatre Conspiracy is The Gun Show. The play by EM Lewis deals with Americans and their guns. Miguel Cintron is amazing in this one-man show that begins with a talk on the national gun debate and gradually evolves into a personal account of tragedy and loss.

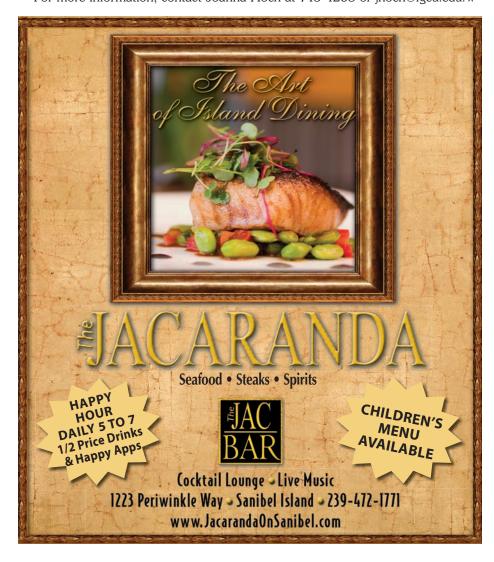

Cintron appears on a stark stage in front of the curtains and talks to the audience with the use of a few props, mostly framed pictures. The show is an autobiographical first-person narrative in the voice of the playwright. Cintron assumes the role of Lewis, and tells her own relationship with firearms. It references her courtship and marriage, and how she grew up on a farm in Oregon where guns were commonplace. She practiced sharpshooting with her fiancé Irwin. Their story is the pivotal pianist Peter Lewis and members of the Naples Philharmonic Brass Quintet.

Chamber music and solo works by FGCU composer Jason Bahr will be performed at the concert. Bahr has performed over 350 of his works across the United States and around the world, and has been awarded a commission from the prestigious Fromm Foundation. The concert will feature the American premiere of Bahr's brass quintet Divergence.

Tickets for each concert are $10 for the general public and $7 for students and are available for purchase online at http://fgcu.edu/CAS/Music or at the door. For more information, contact Joanna Hoch at 745-4268 or jhoch@fgcu.edu.‡

story in this play. As she says, it's the first story, the last story and the only story.

The audience quickly realizes that this is not a work of fiction. Her story of guns is being acted out in front of them and it's bold, sometimes funny, sometimes heartbreaking. Cintron talks glibly about America's most dangerous pastime. It's done with brutal honesty and emotion. He says, "We have a problem with guns in America. The problem is, we really, really like them." Through the telling of five true stories, The Gun Show makes audiences realize there are no easy answers in the gun debate.

For over 15 years, I have watched Cintron perform. First at the old Schoolhouse Theater on Sanibel, in mostly small comedic roles. He has been in numerous plays at Theatre Conspiracy, again most comedic character roles. It was a treat to see him turn to drama in this one-man show.

Bravo Miguel, you nailed it.

The Gun Show makes you rethink the gun issue but it doesn't take sides. It plays through September 18 at Theatre Conspiracy, at the Alliance for the Arts, 10091 McGregor Boulevard in Fort Myers. For tickets, call 936-3239.

What A Difference A Week Made

by Capt. Matt Mitchell

Fishing action really rebounded this week after the previous weeks' storms had stirred everything up. Things are beginning to come together as the month of September is finally starting to live up to being my favorite month of year to fish our local waters. Schools of silver-colored, big spawning redfish have started to move in from the Gulf over the last week, making brief appearances in and around all the passes.

The snook bite in and around the passes has gotten a whole lot better too. Mangrove snapper that has simply disappeared for more than a week have returned with cleaner water. Best of all, huge schools of fry-sized bait has started to show up out on the beaches, along with all the mixed bag of species that feed on it.

Send Us Your Fish Tales

Email to press@islandsunnews.com or call 395-1213.

'e would like to hear from anglers about their catches.

Send us details including tackle, bait and weather conditions, date of catch, species and weight, and include a photograph with identification.

Jacks, mackerel and ladyfish can be found on these schools of bait already. Tarpon, bonita, kings and sharks will not be far behind.

Lighthouse Point, Redfish Pass, Captiva Pass and Boca Grande for more than the next month will give all anglers a chance to experience some wide open fishing on the huge schools of redfish that are moving in and out from the Gulf. The bite in the pass seems to happen most often on the last few hours to the end of the falling tide. If you're in one of these areas, it's always worth taking the time to make a few drifts from about 50 to 100 yards out from the shore, bouncing a live bait along the bottom.

Many of the docks in and around the passes are also worth spending some time on too. Big schools of these top-of-the-slot and oversized-breeding redfish will stack up by the hundreds. When fishing these docks, anchor up and use enough weight to keep your bait on the bottom in the fast-moving current. Heavy tackle is a must have when anchored in swift current if you want any chance at all to land one of these hard-charging redfish.

As we get closer to the end of the month and into October, it is prime time for schooling redfish to be moving around and across shallow grass flats. Look for these fish just inside or close to the passes. Fosters Point to Cabbage Key is one of my favorite areas to look for these redfish to pop up by the hundreds as they do year after year. If you have ever been lucky enough to experience one of these schools of hungry redfish wear out a flat, it's something you will never forget.

The high tide redfish bite around mangrove islands and oyster bars was also a good bet this week. I spent the majority of my time during high water fishing mangrove islands on the eastern side of the sound from Chino Island north. Islands that were holding big schools of mullet not surprisingly were the ones that had the redfish. Both shiners and live pinfish caught these redfish on the higher stages of the tide. The redfish we caught while mangrove fishing seemed to increase in size this week with the average fish being from 25 to 27 inches.

September and October could be your last chance to tangle with a tarpon until next spring. During mild fall weather, these tarpon will be out on the beaches until as late as December, gorging on the massive clouds of baitfish before they migrate out to warmer waters. With more and more bait activity starting to show up out along the beaches, all it takes is the right weather set-up, and this fall tarpon bite can be just epic.

Capt. Matt Mitchell has been fishing local waters since he moved to Sanibel in 1980. He now lives in St. James City and works as a back country fishing guide. If you have comments or questions email captmattmitchell@aol. com.☆

Native whisk-fern volunteered at the base of this pot plant. Crevices and tree bases are among this ancient species' most common growing sites. photos by Gerri Reaves

by Gerri Reaves

Whisk-fern (Psilotum nudum) is a fascinating easy-to-overlook native species that predates the era of the dinosaurs by hundreds of millions of years. So primitive is it that it's not really a fern, but a fern ally. Reproduction by spores is one of the only characteristics it shares with ferns.

It is the only plant in the Psilotaceae, or whisk-fern, family that is native to Florida. It grows in all regions of the state, favoring areas such as swamps and wet woods.

Lacking true leaves and roots, it establishes itself and spreads via creeping underground stems. It can live as either a terrestrial plant or epiphyte (air plant).

You're most likely to spot it at the base of other plants, particularly palms. Logs, crevices, the boots of the native cabbage palm, and tree forks are also common growing sites.

In residential yards, it volunteers in moist well-drained spots with rich soil in partial shade – and even in plants. It usually grows under a foot tall.

The aerial roots structurally resemble a slender tree that branches threedimensionally, splitting in two for up to six times, thus enhancing the whisk- or broom-like appearance.

However, the green cylindrical ridged stems never leaf-out in the usual sense, thus the scientific name: psilotum means naked in Greek and nudum means naked in Latin. Other common names are skeleton fork fern and moa.

The plant lacks true leaves and roots, but scale-like appendages and bead-like sporangia are visible on the stems Appendages that are scale- or thorn-like rudimentary leaves called microphylls occur in the stem angles.

The three-lobed sporangia, which superficially resemble tiny berries or beads, turn yellow when mature, and then split open to release spores.

The unassuming whisk-fern is not parasitic and is environmentally beneficial. Specimens growing in soil aid in preventing erosion, and epiphytic ones collect debris that transforms into soil.

This fern has a variety of medicinal uses.

New App For Outdoor Sports

Providing sportsmen and women hyper-local answers to their outdoor questions. Via the app Powderhook, users now have free access to local information about outdoor events and activities, hunting and fishing opportunities, and free maps of public lands, lakes and rivers across the country.

According to Powderhook founder Eric Dinger, the app fills an important gap and represents a totally revamped approach for the tech startup.

"The launch of Powderhook app marks a major change of direction for our company. We tried hard to open access to private land, but simply couldn't make the economics work between buyers and sellers of private access," said Dinger. "What we learned along the way is people really need local answers, which is why we go to the tackle shop when we travel to fish. We found this to be especially true with new people. Being new to the outdoors can be really hard, whether new to a region as a traveling hunter or angler, new to a specific discipline such a bowhunting, or new to the outdoors altogether. We built our app to make being new a little less difficult, and being an 'avid' a little more fun."

Declining participation in outdoor activities has been a hot topic for many years in the outdoor community. The Powderhook app seeks to attack this challenge by aligning the interests of the industry with the challenges of participants.

"No one has a bigger incentive to grow the outdoor industry than the people and businesses who work in it," added Dinger. "Yet it's never been simple for a business, non-profit or state agency to help people at a large scale. Mentoring, youth hunts, countless programs, training seminars, and much more exist to help, but as sportsmen continued on page 19

CROW Case Of The Week: Baby Squirrels

by Bob Petcher

he squirrel is a mammal consisting of 200 different species that reportedly can be found on every continent except for Australia. With a diet that consists mainly of nuts, but also includes leaves, roots, seeds and small insects, these omnivores are of three main classifications: ground, tree or flying

The eastern gray squirrel (Sciurus carolinensis) is a tree squirrel that is native to the eastern section of North America and has a large, bushy tail. This particular species of squirrel has the ability to descend a tree head-first. This feat is achieved by the turning of its feet so that the claws of its hind paws are backward-pointing and are able to grip the tree bark.

Interestingly, squirrels are rarely seen on Sanibel Island due to the island not having any nut-bearing trees for the animals to feed upon. Think about it. When was the last time you had to swerve or brake for a squirrel that was attempting to cross a road on this island? It's usually ibis or other birds that walk across streets.

Off-island, finding a baby squirrel may also prove to be difficult. While mature squirrels can be seen on most any property, either provoking your dog while on a walk or nabbing seed from your bird feeder, kits are usually found by the nest until they grow all their fur and show the ability to survive on their own. The best chance for a newborn squirrel's survival is when it is cared for by its mother.

In that light, when a kit is found without a parent in sight and is unharmed, it does not necessarily mean the young animal has been abandoned or orphaned. The infant probably needs help being reunited with its mother. CROW officials point out that education is needed to determine if a baby squirrel needs human help. Assistance may be required if it is bleeding, has an open wound or a broken bone or covered in fly eggs. If a young squirrel has a tail that is fluffed out or has a body (not including tail) that is longer than six inches, it is be a juvenile squirrel and intervention is not needed.

At CROW, there are currently 30 infant and juvenile eastern gray squirrels being cared for. In 2012, the rehabilitation clinic launched a program called If You Care Leave It There because people abducting baby animals and bringing them to CROW became such an issue and burden to the wildlife hospital.

Within the If You Care Leave It There brochure, there are telling points that everyone needs to heed.

'Humans are never a young animal's best hope for survival. They are their last hope. A young animal should only be removed from the wild after all avenues to reunite it with an adult animal are exhausted," the brochure reads. "Wildlife parents are very devoted to the care of their young and rarely abandon them. When abandonment does occur, it is usually the result of an injury or the death of the parent. Typically, it is the female mammal that raises the young and often leaves the nest in search of the next meal. In the case of birds, where both parents are generally caretakers, both are often away from the nest for the majority of the day, returning only for brief stops to feed their hungry young."

Other brochure information instructs what one can do if juvenile animals are seen

"If you happen to see a young, wild animal, please leave it alone unless there appears to be something wrong such as a clear injury or fallen nest," the brochure added. "If the nest has fallen out of the tree but the young inside the nest appear healthy please replace the continued on page 31

The 2016 Disaster For The Twins Will Result In Major Rebuild Next Season

by Ed Frank

Then the Minnesota Twins return here in February for spring training, you can be certain there will be vast changes in the front office operation as well as significant changes in the team roster.

Anything less than a complete makeover of this franchise in light of its dismal performance in five of the last six years particularly this year - will be disappointing, even an outrage, to the loyal Twins fan base,

There were reports early this week that Minnesota had received permission from the Chicago Cubs to interview Jason McLeod, the Cubs' senior vice president of player development and amateur scouting.

The Twins reportedly are looking to structure their operation similar to the Cubs with both a president of baseball operations and a general manager.

McLeod has worked with Cubs president Theo Epstein and general manager Jed Hoyer in both Boston and Chicago, and is credited with drafting many of the stars of these two successful teams.

"There's probably not a better scouting and player development guy out there. He has all the skills to do every part of the job," Hoyer said.

The rebuilding of the Twins began in July when club president Jim Pohlad fired his long time general manager Terry Ryan.

Ryan's assistant, Rob Antony, has filled in as interim GM, but the team's performance has continued abysmal.

Minnesota began this week with a season record of 53-91 (.368), the worst record in Major League baseball, and an embarrassing 31 games behind first place Cleveland in the American League Central Division.

In fact, in every year since 2011, with the exception of last season, Minnesota has lost more than 90 games. They are likely to lose 100 or more games this year.

There was the belief that the Twins, under new manager Paul Molitor, had turned the corner last season when they fought for a playoff spot until the last weekend of the season, ending with a respectable 83-79 record.

But the 2016 season has been a disaster from the get-go.

There are many, many reasons for their cellar-dwelling performance, although one factor stands out - the lack of effective pitching.

The team pitching, with a 5.13 ERA, ranks 29th out of the 30 Major League terms. Compare that to the No. 1 team, the Cubs at 3.08. There isn't a single Twins pitcher with a winning record this season.

Batting has been respectable with a .256 team average, 14th of the 30 teams.

The one bright spot has been the torrid, record-setting hitting of second-baseman Brian Dozer. He reached an impressive milestone Monday night when he hit his 40th home run of the season to become only the second Twins to reach that mark, joining Hall of Famer Harmon Killebrew.

Through Monday, he was the second player in the Majors to reach 40 homers this season, trailing Baltimore's Mark Trumbo with 41. Dozer's season high previously was 28 homers in 2015.

Five months remain before Minnesota returns here for spring training. You can be certain there will be big changes to this franchise in the interim.

Financial Focus Vote For Smart Investment Moves

by Jennifer Basey

The presidential election is little more than a month away. Like all elections, this one has generated considerable interest and, as a citizen, you may well be following it closely.

But as an investor, how much should you be concerned about the outcome?

Probably not as much as you might think. Historically, the financial markets have done well – and done poorly – under both Democratic and Republican administrations. Also, many factors affecting investment performance have little or nothing to do with the occupant of the White House. Consequently, no one can claim, with any certainty, that one candidate is going to be "better for the markets" than another one.

Still, this isn't to say that any given presidential administration will have no effect at all on investors. For example, a president could propose changes to the laws governing investments, and if Congress passes those laws, investors could be affected.

But in looking at the broader picture, there's not much evidence that a particular president is going to affect the overall return of your investment portfolio. As mentioned above, many factors – corporate earnings, interest rates, foreign affairs, even natural disasters – can and will influence the financial markets. But in evaluating a president's potential effect on your investments, you also need to consider something else: Our political system does not readily accommodate radical restructuring of any kind. So it's difficult for any president to implement huge policy shifts – and that's actually good for the financial markets which, by their nature, dislike uncertainty, chaos and big changes.

The bottom line? From your viewpoint as an investor, don't worry too much about what happens in November. Instead, follow these investment strategies:

• Stay invested. If you stop investing when the market is down in an effort to cut your losses, you may miss the opportunity to participate in the next rally – and the early stages of a rally are typically when the biggest gains occur.

• Diversify. By spreading your dollars among an array of investments, such as stocks, bonds and other investments, you can help reduce the possibility of your portfolio taking a big hit if a market downturn primarily affected just one type of financial asset. Keep in mind though, that diversification can't guarantee profits or protect against all losses.

• Stay within your risk tolerance. Investing always involves risk, but you'll probably be more successful (and less stressed out) if you don't stray beyond your individual risk tolerance. At the same time, if you invest too conservatively, you might not achieve the growth potential you need to reach your goals. So you will need to strike an appropriate balance.

• Forget about chasing "hot" stocks. Many so-called "experts" encourage people to invest in today's "hot" stocks. But by the time you hear about them, these stocks – if they were ever "hot" to begin with – have probably already cooled off. More importantly, they might not have been suitable for your needs, anyway. In any case, there's really no "short cut" to investment success.

Law Firm Features Speaker Series

A ccording to Henderson, Franklin, Starnes & Holt, P.A., the launch of its 2016 C-Suite Speaker Series began on Thursday, September 15 and continues each Thursday through mid-November. Hart Installed As President Of The Florida Tax Collectors Association

The closing banquet of the annual Florida Tax Collector Association's Fall Education Forum on September 1 included the installation of officers, naming Lee County Tax Collector Larry Hart as president of the association. The official oath of office was administered by Circuit Judge Robert Branning. Hart has held leadership positions over the past years for the Florida Tax Collector Association that include legislative chair, finance committee and successive vice president positions. His dynamic leadership style brings innovation and cohesive business solutions to tax collectors across the state of Florida. Hart has worked with local officials as well as many state representatives and senators to bring effective service delivery to the citizens of Florida.

As president of the FTCA, Hart is committed to serve his professional association as a strong liaison to the state agencies and local governments represented by each tax collector office. $\stackrel{\scriptstyle \leftarrow}{\star}$

Blessings In A Backpack Now Feeds More Kids

Bonita Springs Assistance Office and Boys and Girls Club of Lehigh Acres have joined with Blessings in a Backpack of Southwest Florida to help the agency serve nearly 3,000 children with meals every weekend.

Working with eight schools in Lee County and two in Collier County, Blessings in a Backpack serves an average of 468,000 meals in a school year. By bringing in the backpack program, Bonita Springs Assistance Office now feeds 50 students every week, with the Boys and Girls Club of Lehigh Acres feeding 80 students per week.

In Southwest Florida, it's becoming increasingly difficult for parents to feed their children. Inflation, job-loss, and low wages are very real challenges for many parents. Florida ranks fourth in the United States for the number of K-12 students eligible for Federal Food Assistance programs. In Lee County, more than 62 percent of K-12 students participate in those programs.

When the school closes its doors on Friday afternoon, many of these children go home to empty cupboards and hunger pangs for 65 hours until they return to school on Monday morning. Blessings in a Backpack steps up where federal aid stops by feeding children on the weekend. Every Friday afternoon, children receive backpacks filled with kid-friendly, ready-to-eat items. Students return every Monday morning with an empty backpack, a full stomach and an eager mind.

"The support of our partner agencies enables us to tackle the very big problem of childhood hunger on a very local level," said Blessings in a Backpack of Southwest Florida Executive Director Cecilia St. Arnold. "Bonita Springs Assistance Office and Boys and Girls Club of Lehigh Acres can identify and meet the need where it exists."

Blessings in a Backpack relies on volunteers to lead the weekend nourishment program in the local schools and the direct support of individual donors. A $100 donation feeds an elementary school child in the program for an entire 38-week school year, including two breakfasts, two lunches, snacks and drinks every weekend.

To make a donation, visit www. blessingsinswfl.org or mail your contribution to Blessings in a Backpack, P.O. Box 61402, Fort Myers, FL 33906. All contributions are taxdeductible.

Best-Selling Author Coming To Fort Myers

All Street Journal and The New York Times bestselling thriller writer Joseph Finder will be the featured author at Read Between The Wines, to be held from 5 to 9 p.m. on Monday, November 7 at the Club at Grandezza, located at 11481 Grande Oak Boulevard in Estero.

Read Between The Wines will begin with a wine reception and silent auction followed by a Boston-themed buffet and conversation with the author hailed as "the CEO of suspense." Finder's two most recent releases – Guilty Minds and The Fixer – will be available for purchase and signing by the author.

Reservations are required and can be purchased at www. readbetweenthewines.info. Tickets include appetizer, dinner, dessert and a glass of wine. Advance open seating tickets are $45 and advance ticket sales close on October 1. Beginning October 2, tickets are $50 and ticket sales close on November 1 or when sold out.

Finder is the author of 13 novels and the winner of the Strand Critics Award for Best Novel for Buried Secrets (2011), the International Thriller Writers Award for Best Novel for Killer Instinct (2006) and the winner of the Barry and Gumshoe Awards for Best Thriller for Company Man (2005). His novel High Crimes was made into a movie starring Ashley Judd and Morgan Freeman in 2002, and Paranoia was made into a movie starring Liam Hemsworth, Gary Oldman and Harrison Ford in 2013. Killer Instinct is in development for a movie.

Finder completed a master's degree at the Harvard Russian Research Center, and later taught on the Harvard faculty. He is a founding member of the International Thriller Writers Association and active in the Council on Foreign Relations and the Association of Former Intelligence Officers.

"We are thrilled to have such an acclaimed author for Read Between The Wines," festival coordinator Margie Byers said. "Joseph Finder is one highly educated author with an intriguing background and riveting stories to tell and write."

Proceeds from Read Between The Wines will benefit the Southwest Florida Reading Festival. The festival is a free community event, scheduled for March 18, 2017 to showcase the Lee County Library System's programs and resources and promote reading and literacy. Stem Cell Therapy Prolotherapy Platelet Rich Plasma Call us today to see if you are a candidate Book Review The Transplant Web by Di Saggau f you have ever wondered what it was like for the first surgeons to perform transplantation of vital organs from a generous donor to a desperate recipient, be sure to pick up a copy of Bob Maxeiner's latest book, The Transplant Web.

Maxeiner, a long time member of a Sanibel Writers Group, allows the reader to enter the complex and deeply emotional world of transplantation. The book is mostly set in 1985, when transplant surgery was just beginning. Thanks to a drug called Cyclosporine, the floodgates opened for successful transplants in numerous hospitals similar to the fictional one talked about in the book.

TRANSPLANT

SR MAXEINER JR.

We first meet Dr. Dana Garrison, chief resident for the hospital. She stands a mere five-foot, one-inch tall, but towers above others in her abilities to make the right decision for her patients. The nemesis of her existence is Dr. Sandor Oliver Brovek, professor of surgery and terror of medical students. Even after Dana performs life-saving surgery for a friend of Sandor, he questions her actions and gives her the third degree. Dana stands firm.

The book reminds everyone about the need for donor organs and is an inspiration to become donors. When asked what he wants people to think about after reading the book, Maxeiner said, "To focus on how precious are life and "Packed with facts and employing an engaging storytelling style, [Female Pioneers of Fort Myers] both teaches and entertains. Local history buffs and newcomers to history will value Tuthill and Hall's research and appreciate the accessible format, too.³ Gerri Reaves, PhD, author of Legendary Locals of Fort Myers and Fort Myers, Then & Now health." Each chapter bears a person's name so we understand how they feel in various situations. It works well.

We meet one special nurse who fights for patients rights. There's Dr. Lancelot Rudd, a talented surgeon with a health condition he keeps secret. The characters in the book are complex, yet very real, and we learn to care about them be they donor, patient or physician. Maxeiner told me that while they are all fictional characters, "They are all built from values and integrities, dedications, sacrifices and motives of people who are dedicated to the service of their careers," he said.

The Transplant Web takes you inside the operating room as life saving surgery is performed. You gain even more respect for the medical profession, the decisions they make and for the donors who give life to others. There is another story woven into the book that involves property the hospital needs to expand their transplant work. You will like the way it works out. Certain paragraphs deal with the year 2014 as Dana explains what has transpired since she was chief resident.

Maxeiner captures the delicate relationships that existed during a time of tragedy and how the first surgeons must have felt performing such life saving operations. It had to have been a thrilling time. The web consists of the professional staff, the patient, the donor, relatives and friends. All those lives are intertwined. The book is a gripping story of patients at the last edge of hope, and of nurses and doctors who can restore them to life, if donor organs can be found in time.

I thoroughly enjoyed reading The Transplant Web. It's available at island book stores and online at www.bluewaterpress.com/web.*

School Smart

course I'm worried that he will have an attack and I won't be there to help him. Do you have any ideas that might help him cope with his asthma in his new school?

Lori B., Fort Myers

Lori, You have presented an important situation. Any child with a chronic condition should have a plan to help him/her cope with their illness in the classroom. While as parents we want to protect our children and take care of them its very important for kids to learn how to speak up about their condition and advocate for themselves. I have listed five strategies listed below that are useful for children, their parents and teachers learn how to manage serious health conditions at school:

1. Teach your child about their asthma or other health condition.

One of the most important things you can do as a parent is to empower your child to talk about their illness and speak up when they are not feeling well. Children need to understand their disease and know what signs to look for so they can ask for help before their condition gets out of control.

2. Role-play with your child about ways to discuss their health issues.

Role-playing is one way to get your child comfortable talking about their illness. Role-playing will allow them to have a "script" to use when they are in an uncomfortable situation. The more they practice at home, talking about how they are feeling, the better they will be at speaking up when they have to.

3. Talk with your child's teacher and school nurse.

Talking with your child's school nurse and teacher are essential in getting everyone on board with their specific health action plan. Make sure to include your child in these conversations, the more comfortable your child is talking with their teachers and school nurse the safer they will be with health-wise at school.

4. Assure your child they will not be in trouble for interruptions.

One of the issues that children with chronic illness often have with speaking up in class is not wanting to get in trouble for disrupting class. Assure them that they will not be considered disruptive in this type of situation. It is also important to teach your child that if they are ignored that they have your permission to leave class and go to the nurse. They need to know that in those instances their health comes before classroom rules or being polite.

5. Offer a code or signal option to notify teachers about breathing issues. If your child is really shy or embarrassed about their health it can be helpful to work out a code with the teacher that doesn't draw even more attention to your child but still allows them to get the care they need quickly. Work with all of your child's teachers to come up with a consistent method of informing them that does not embarrass your child.

Kids learn through repetition so review these ideas with them often. The more you talk about and practice these skills the more comfortable your child will be with them if an emergency situation does occur. Using these tips can help teach your child to be their own best advocate when you aren't there to advocate for them.

Pharmacist Of The Year

hristine "Tina" Gegeckas, RPh, BCOP, pharmacy director at the Regional Cancer Center, earned the 2016 Pharmacist of the Year Award from the Florida Society of Health-System Pharmacists (FSHP). Gegeckas earned her bachelor of science degree in pharmacy from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science. She is a board-certified oncology pharmacist and an active member and immediate past president of the FSHP. She also is a member of the American Society of Health-System Pharmacists and the Hematology/ Oncology Pharmacy Association.

"This is quite an honor," said Sharon MacDonald, chief administrative officer, Oncology and Home Health Services for Lee Memorial Health System. "We are very proud of Tina, and appreciate her dedicated leadership and her commitment to providing the highest level of care."

The Pharmacist of the Year Award is given annually to a Florida pharmacist who is recognized for his or her outstanding performance and achievements during his or her pharmacy career. Nominees for the award are judged on self-improvement efforts; job accomplishments or contributions to the general welfare of the community; creativeness; adaptability to his or her surroundings; his or her ability to get along with others; and participations in advisory councils committees and/or board activities. Winners are selected by a committee of past award recipients.

VCB Wins Top Tourism Award

The Lee County Visitor & Convention Bureau (VCB) earned its 26th Henry Award, along with a Silver and a Bronze Award, at the 49th annual Florida Governor's Conference on Tourism in Orlando.

The honors were presented on September 7 as part of the Flagler Awards program. The awards are sponsored by Visit Florida and the Florida Commission on Tourism.

"We are thankful for this recognition from Visit Florida and the Florida Commission on Tourism," said VCB Executive Director Tamara Pigott. "We appreciate their partnership and support over the years."

The Flagler Awards recognize outstanding tourism marketing in Florida. The awards honor individuals and organizations that help maintain and improve the state's reputation as a popular travel destination. Eight out-of-state judges examined 255 entries in 17 categories.

This year, the VCB was honored with the following:

 Henry Award for Island Findings Digital Campaign in the Internet Advertising category

• Silver Award for Song & Chance 2 in the Social Media Marketing category

• Bronze Award for Summer Getaway in the Radio Advertising category

Island Findings Digital Campaign had a goal of delivering a Florida beach message to new and younger potential vacationers during the trip-planning phase by having local residents share stories via video about the unique and natural characteristics of the Fort Myers/Sanibel Island area.

The campaign also aimed to reach the same person across all devices. As a result, more than 86 percent of all visits to the Island Findings landing page on FortMyers-Sanibel.com came from new visitors. In addition, the goal to increase bed tax revenue year-over-year by 3.5 percent was exceeded with a 7 percent increase from March 2015 through February 2016.

March 2015 through February 2016. The Silver Award for Song & Chance 2 was achieved by creating buzz and awareness around The Beaches of Fort Myers & Sanibel's 2nd annual Island Hopper Songwriter Fest. The campaign ran from August to September 2015, and included a contest calling for songwriters to submit an original song to the application on the destination's Facebook page. Facebook advertising was utilized to target songwriters in key markets for entry outreach. The Facebook audience then voted on their favorite song. The winner received a trip to the destination and a chance to perform at the festival.

The campaign exceeded its goal in all categories. It generated 155 song entries and received 13,200 votes. The Bronze Award for the Summer

The Bronze Award for the Summer Getaway radio commercial resulted from a campaign developed specifically to air in Miami, Tampa, Orlando and West Palm Beach, June 1 through 21, 2015. The commercial asked consumers to escape the hustle and bustle of their everyday lives and be saved by the shells on the beaches of Fort Myers and Sanibel.

The radio campaign generated 3,878,100 impressions. It helped increase both visitation to these four markets and bed tax revenue during the spring/summer season.

The winning Flagler Award submissions were evaluated on creativity, innovation, production, quality and effectiveness.

This Is How You Feed Your Brain

by Suzy Cohen, RPh ear Readers:

The biggest fear that older people face is Alzheimer's disease, where memory and cognition begin to fade. I recently reviewed a client's list of medications and he was taking two drugs to preserve brain function, Aricept and Namenda. These drugs are useful to some degree, but I feel that there are foods, spices and herbs in your own kitchen that go a long way to preserve cognitive function, stabilize mood and lower levels of anxiety.

I absolutely love spices that heal, so much so that I have a free ebook, Spices that Heal, which you can download at my website suzycohen. com. This ebook talks about spices that heal all kinds of conditions. Now, here is how you properly feed your brain:

Put hemp seeds in your salad. Hulled hemp seeds put healthy fats into your body, and offset the bad fats typical of an American diet. Hemp seeds have practically no THC, the psychoactive compound found in marijuana. They have a perfect 3:1 ratio of omega 6 to omega 3 fatty acids. Put a tablespoon (daily) on your salad, scrambled eggs or roasted vegetables.

Sprinkle my recipe for Brainpower Season Salt. Mix together the following 6 seasonings in equal amounts and put into an empty salt shaker. Sprinkle as desired: Rosemary, powdered gotu kola (get from an apothecary), Himalayan salt, onion powder, powdered garlic (not garlic salt) and powdered turmeric.

Eat mushrooms. I'm not talking Portabellos, I'm referring to Lion's Mane which gives us the active ingredient of Hericium erinaceus. Lion's Mane is sold as a dietary supplement, and known for its potent neuroregenerative powers. I buy the real mushrooms in the fresh produce section and butter saute them with Brussels sprouts and garlic. Lion's Mane is a neurotrophic so it's my pick for you if you have any kind of brain damage from anything (trauma, benzos, mold, etc).

Drink Juice. We all think of antioxidants as a dietary supplement, like Vitamin C, for example. Citrus juice is a great source of natural vitamin C so a few ounces of orange juice would provide natural C which helps you make dopamine, serotonin and other neurotransmitters that a healthy brain requires.

Eat Foliage. By foilage, I mean salads and greens to give you folate, the natural form of the synthetic vitamin "folic acid." Leafy greens like kale, spinach, broccoli, Swiss chard and lettuce have a lot of folate. Greens also provide powerful antioxidants so eat something green every day. I recommend you cook cruciferous vegetables in order to reduce goitrogens. Obviously, you don't cook the lettuce.

Say "Yes" when they offer black pepper. The servers will often ask if you want black pepper on your salad at restaurants. Say yes next time because piperine, the primary component of black pepper slows the break down of serotoin and raises other feel-good endorphins. Studies are ongoing for black pepper's role in Alzheimer's and Parkinson's disease.

Doctor and Dietician Loss Of Grip Strength And The Thumb

by Ross Hauser, MD and Marion Hauser, MS, RD

Then it comes to hand pain, the most common problem involves the thumb, because of its unique role in the hand's function.

Whenever a doorknob is turned, a screwdriver is used, or a golf club is held, the thumb is part of the action. With typing and texting, the thumb is the main player. The repetitive motion eventually wears out the ligaments that support the thumbs. They may start to click and feel weak, and eventually result in pain and stiffness.

Because thumbs have to work so much harder than fingers, it is usually the first to elicit pain and soreness. The instability will also affect grip strength and cause problems with movement.

The thumb ligament that joins the wrist to the base of the thumb is called the radial collateral ligament, the same name as the ligament inside the elbow. The thumb ligament that joins the base of the thumb to the succeeding joint is the collateral ligament. These two joints of the thumb, called the carpometacarpal and metacarpophalangeal are usually the first areas where pain is experienced. If the ligaments in these joints are not strengthened, arthritis will eventually occur. The looser the joint, the greater the chance it has of becoming arthritic, as the body attempts to stabilize it by overgrowing bone.

Arthritis in the thumb is a major cause of disability in older adults. The progression of osteoarthritis can stop when the ligaments become strong and are able to stabilize the joint. For stiff and sore hands and thumbs, regenerative injection treatment (known as Prolotherapy) is a welcomed alternative to anti-inflammatory pain medication (NSAIDs), which actually accelerates arthritis.

Once the ligaments are strengthened, the pain and stiffness in the thumbs and fingers generally subside ee Memorial Health System is holding a community resource and screening session for people who have been diagnosed with Parkinson's Disease on Saturday, September 24 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Outpatient Rehabilitation at Ĉity Center, 3114 Cleveland Avenue in Fort Myers.

Parkinson's Screening Session

Space for the screening session is limited. Call 343-4962 for a reservation with Mary Jo Haughey, speech and language pathologist, or to learn more.

The Parkinson's Clinic gives a person with Parkinson's and their loved ones the opportunity to discuss concerns related to changes in function," said Nathalie Grondin, physical therapy coordinator of the LMHS Parkinson's Disease Rehabilitation Team.

All participants are screened by licensed therapists trained to detect physical deficits which may benefit from therapy intervention. Participants are also provided with a list of resources including seminars, group exercise classes and support meetings throughout Lee County.

A physical therapist will address mobility concerns, an occupational therapist will address self-care activities and home management, and a speech language pathologist will discuss communication and swallowing concerns.

Resources related to education, support group, exercise group and identification of individualized therapy needs will be provided and a report of recommendations sent to a health care professional of choice.☆

ango is a 2-year-old male chihuahua mix who was a shy little guy when he first came to the shelter, but has slowly warmed up to people and is a regular ladies' man now. He's very affectionate and loves a good belly rub anytime. Why not let this little Tango dance into your life?

His adoption fee is $30 (regularly $75) during Animal Services' Hot Dogs and Cool Cats September adoption promotion.

Rhonda is a 1-year-old deomestic short haired spayed female who is one of the many beautiful black cats still waiting for a forever home at Animal Services. There are so many reasons to select a black cat as your next companion. Black cats are sleek and sophisticated, always dressed for any occasion - whether formal or casual and most of all, they are good luck because they will make you feel like the luckiest person in the world. Help Rhonda and her friends by adding a beautiful black cat to your family. Adopt two because they are two-for-one adoption fee.

Her adoption fee is $30 (regularly $75) during Animal Services' Hot Dogs and Cool Cats September adoption promotion.

For information about this week's pets, call 533-7387 (LEE-PETS) or log on to Animal Services' website at www. LeeLostPets.com. When calling, refer to the animal's ID number. The website updates every hour so you will be able to see if these or any other pets are still available.

The shelter is open for adoptions from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The shelter is located at 5600 Banner Drive in Fort Myers, next to the Lee County Sheriff's Office off Six Mile Cypress Parkway.

All adoptions include spay/neuter surgery, age-appropriate vaccinations, rabies vaccination and county license if three months or older, flea treatment, worming, heartworm test for dogs six months and over, feline AIDS and leukemia test for cats, training DVD, 10-day health guarantee, and a bag of Science Diet pet food

The adoption package is valued at $500.蓉

PAWS Of Sanibel Buzz Needs A Home

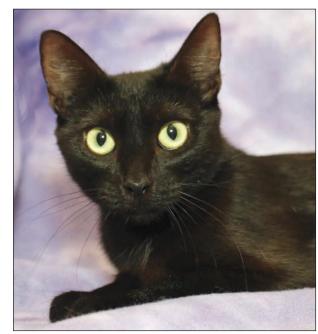

uzz is a black male lab mix. He has a few grey whiskers on his nose and is approximately 5 years old. He is small for a lab, weighing in at 45 to 50 pounds.

Buzz is sooooo sweet, very affectionate and has stayed close to his foster dad these past three months. He is so smart that he gets his own leash and brings it to his foster dad to say he wants to go out for a walk.

Poor little Buzz was abandoned by his owner and his foster dad can longer care for him. Can you use a little Buzz in your life? Buzz is in desperate need of a foster home. Call Yolanda, PAWS volunteer, at 691-4488 if you can adopt or foster Buzz.

My Stars ★★★★

FOR WEEK OF SEPTEMBER 19, 2016

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) After much traveling this year, you're due for some settled time with family and friends. Use this period to check out situations that soon will require a lot of serious decision-making.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Keep that keen Bovine mind focused on your financial situation as it begins to undergo some changes. Consider your money moves carefully. Avoid impulsive investments.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You'll need to adjust some of your financial plans now that things are changing more quickly than you expected. All the facts you need haven't yet emerged, so move cautiously. CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Personal and professional relationships dominate this period. Try to keep things uncomplicated to avoid misunderstandings that can cause problems down the line.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) That elusive goal you'd been hoping to claim is still just out of reach. But something else has come along that could prove just as desirable, if only you would take the time to check it out.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good time to get away for some much-needed rest and relaxation. You'll return refreshed and ready to take on the workplace challenge that awaits you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Confidence grows as you work your way through some knotty situations. Watch out for distractions from well-meaning supporters that could slow things down.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Consider spending more time contemplating the possibilities of an offer before opting to accept or reject it. But once you make a decision, act on it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You're in a very strong position this week to tie up loose ends in as many areas as possible. Someone close to you has advice you might want to heed.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Congratulations. This is the week you've been waiting for: After a period of sudden stops and fitful starts, your plans can now move ahead with no significant disruptions.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're in an exceptionally strong position this week to make decisions on many still-unresolved matters, especially those involving close personal relationships.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The new moon starts this week off with some positive movement in several areas. A special person becomes a partner in at least one of the major plans you'll be working on. BORN THIS WEEK: You work hard and get things done. You also inspire others to do their best. You would do well heading up a major corporation.

THIS WEEK IN HISTORY

• On Sept. 22, 1598, famed playwright Ben Jonson is indicted for manslaughter after a duel. His ability to read and write saved him, and he claimed "benefit of clergy," which allowed him to be sentenced by the lenient ecclesiastical courts.

• On Sept. 25, 1789, the first Congress of the United States approves 12 (of an original 17) amendments to the U.S. Constitution. Only 10, known as the Bill of Rights, were initially ratified by the states.

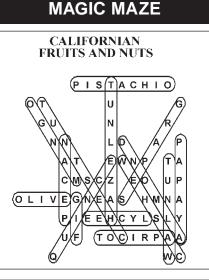

• On Sept. 21, 1866, H.G. Wells, pioneer of science fiction, is born in Bromley, England. Wells worked as a draper's apprentice and bookkeeper before becoming a freelance writer. In 1895, he published The Time Machine, about a man who journeys to the future.

• On Sept. 24, 1890, faced with the eminent destruction of their church and way of life, Mormon leaders reluctantly issue the "Mormon Manifesto" in which they command all Latter-day Saints to uphold the anti-polygamy laws of the nation. • On Sept. 23, 1933, American Standard Oil geologists land in Saudi Arabia and begin their search for oil. The next year the Arabian American Oil Company (a joint venture with the Saudi government) exported its first tanker-load of petroleum. In 1980 the Saudis won control of the company.

• On Sept. 19, 1959, in one of the Cold War's more surreal moments, Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev enjoys lunch with Frank Sinatra and photo ops with Shirley MacLaine, and then explodes with childish anger when he learns that he cannot visit Disnevland. Authorities feared that the crowds would pose a safety hazard.

 On Sept. 20, 1973, in a highly publicized "Battle of the Sexes" tennis match, top women's player Billie Jean King, 30, beats 55-year-old Bobby Riggs, former No. 1 ranked men's player, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3. Riggs had boasted that women were inferior.

STRANGE BUT TRUE

• It was Colombian novelist, short-story writer, screenwriter and journalist Gabriel Garcia Marquez who made the following sage observation: "Words are not created by academics in universities and suchlike; rather it is the man in the street who does so. Dictionary compilers almost always recognize them too late and embalm them in alphabetical order, in many cases when they have lost their original meaning."

• Those who study such things say that when faced with a crisis situation, the average woman tends to remain calmer than the average man.

• You might be surprised to learn that the first printing press in North America was not anywhere within the present-day boundaries of the United States. The very first one was set up in Mexico City, back in 1539.

• In the Talmud, a central text of Rabbinic Judaism, sneezing is called 'pleasure sent from God.

• The largest single dormitory in the world is at the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland. With 4.8 miles of corridors and providing 33 acres of floor space, Bancroft Hall provides a home for the school's entire brigade of 4,000 midshipmen.

• Many people harbor a fear of snakes (which, incidentally, is known as ophidiophobia), but venomous bites and constricting squeezes aren't the only ways a snake can kill. For instance, in the 1990s a man in Iran, while trying to capture a snake, placed the butt of his shotgun against the snake's neck behind its head. In attempting to escape, the snake wrapped the length of its body around the gun, pulling the trigger in the process -- and killing its would-be captor.

• According to historians, Native Americans who lived on the Pacific coast often weaned their babies on caviar.

Gulfshore Ballet performing A Midsummer Night's Dream

Gulfshore Ballet Relocating

Guiltshore Ballet is relocating to a larger, better-equipped facility that will enable the nonprofit to expand its reach and train more dancers. With the goal of opening in January 2017, the company plans to move two miles south of its longtime Andrea Lane address to 5636 Youngquist Drive, just east of U.S. 41.

The new facility boasts more than 6,000 square feet, nearly 2,400 square feet more than the current location.

The classical ballet school will offer three, fully equipped studios complete with mirrors, barres, flooring and sound system, along with an improved parent waiting nest in the tree as high up as you can reach. If this is not possible, consider placing the nest in nearby bushes or even nailing it to the side of the tree in an area where the young will have some shade and shelter from the elements. If the nest itself is missing or damaged, an artificial nest may be created."

The brochure also points out: "Leaving young animals where they belong in their nests, dens and natural environments will help CROW care for the many that truly need our help."

Dr. Heather Barron, CROW's hospital director, offered comments and compared statistics since the program's inception four years ago.

"We feel the If You Care Leave It There program has been very successful since it was started in 2012," she said. "The CROW patient demographics have gone from roughly 80 percent of the caseload being juveniles (many of which were abducted) to approximately 35 percent of the caseload being juveniles, most of whom are injured, ill or legitimately orphaned."

CROW (Ćlinic for the Řehabilitation of Wildlife, Inc.) is a non-profit wildlife hospital providing veterinary care for native and migratory wildlife from our local area. The hospital accepts patients seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mail donations to P.O. Box 150, Sanibel, FL 33957. Call 472-3644 or visit www.crowclinic.org.*

room, enhanced office facilities, increased storage and better accessibility for Gulfshore Ballet families.

"After 16 years of establishing the standard of excellence in dance in Southwest Florida, this expansion is pivotal to the growth of Gulfshore Ballet," said Lisa Tafel, executive director. "We're thrilled to enhance our instruction offerings, grow enrollment and expand the school's reach in the community."

The new facilities will also allow the nonprofit to continue expanding free community outreach programs, which currently offer classical ballet programs to other charitable organizations such as The Quality Life Center.

Under the artistic direction of former Miami City Ballet principals Iliana Lopez and Franklin Gamero, Gulfshore Ballet trains nearly 100 male and female students, age 4 through adult, each year. Learn more online at gsballet.org.
