Stirn's cherished tools are knives. However, she is a resin art master. Both knives and the resin are unforgiving yet clear and finite when used. Working within the acrylic family is enjoyable for her, but working with modeling paste and resin is where the art begins in free form while each application is a form of sculpting. Historic Downtown Fort Myers, Then And Now:

Rare View On Jackson

by Gerri Reaves, PhD

There are plenty of historic photos of Jackson Street, but the perspective in this photo of the east side south of First is rare.

It might take you a moment to get your bearings in this snapshot, which was probably taken in 1941 or 1942, because all of the buildings in the photo on Jackson are now gone.

Nevertheless, the photo contains one especially helpful reference point: the western side of the Franklin Arms Hotel (upper right), now the Franklin Arms Building.

Anyone who remembers Fort Myers from that period might also recognize the sleek curving façade of Bay Drugs on the southeast corner at First (center left). That art moderne style building opened in March 1941. Notice the horizontal rows of tiles along the upper portion of the store.

The drugstore had a First Street address, but also had a Jackson Street entrance to its popular lunch counter and (later) package store.

Barely visible over the drugstore is the roof of the post office, today's Sidney & Berne Davis Art Center.

Moving south (right) along Jackson, we see the three-story Inter-County Telephone and Telegraph building.

Next to it is a two-story structure where various businesses were located over the years – note “Restaurant” written vertically on the front corner. However, Chris Demos’s long-lived Crystal Lunch might be the best remembered.

The scaffolding seen in the historic photo indicates that the building was undergoing exterior renovations in the early 1940s.

Only part of the next building is visible, but that brick structure had a total of three storefronts in addition to a very large garage.

garage with 24-hour service, were located there in the early 1940s.

As signage by the bench indicates, a taxi cab business was also located there.

The building’s auto-related function is historically significant because that is the site where one of the town’s first gas stations (indeed, likely the first), was located. The legendary mechanic Ben King opened a garage on the site circa 1910, moving his mechanic shop from the Jackson Street Dock.

He was considered to be something of a mechanical genius and was keenly interested in the new-fangled automobiles that first appeared on downtown streets in the first decade of the 20th century.

Today, that Jackson Street block is almost completely changed.

Bay Drug’s attractive building was eventually demolished, after having several more names, Tilson’s being the last. That corner has been vacant for several years, but is slated for a multi-story redevelopment project.

As for the telephone and telegraph company, it too is gone. Through a series of buyouts through the decades, the company evolved into today’s CenturyLink, whose monolithic facades now create a cavern-like atmosphere on the street.

CenturyLink’s building, which spans the block between Jackson and Lee, also occupies the former brick garage location.

One interesting bit of history about something that did survive: Hauser & Rinkel stayed in business until 2006.

Walk down Jackson Street and marvel at the changes since the World War II years. Then visit the following research centers and explore local history.

Volunteers Sought For Holidays Without Hunger

Meals of Hope, the largest food pantry provider in Southwest Florida, is hosting the sixth annual Holidays Without Hunger meal packing event at North Naples Middle School on Saturday, December 14 from 9 to 11 a.m. and from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., and at Lee County Civic Center on Sunday, December 22 from 9 to 11 a.m.

"Sponsors and volunteers from local businesses and organizations are the key ingredients to make Holidays Without Hunger a success," said Meals of Hope President and CEO Steve Popper. "We need their support not only for the many children who go without nutritious school meals over the long winter break, but also to help the increasing number of seniors and veterans in our community who struggle with food security."

With a goal of packaging one million meals, individuals and local organizations and businesses come together to donate funds and assemble simple, nutritious meals that are distributed for free through local schools, food pantries and food banks. Each bag contains enough food to provide six to eight meals.

A portion of meals packed at the Holidays Without Hunger event will be sent to the Bahamas to support continuing Hurricane Dorian relief efforts.

Brewery Wins Bronze Medal

Fort Myers Brewing Company's signature chocolate stout titled Somebody Else's Dream won a bronze medal at the 2019 Great American Beer Festival, a professionally judged craft beer competition held recently in Denver, Colorado.

Fort Myers Brewing medaled in the chocolate beer category and was the only Southwest Florida brewery, and one of just eight in Florida, to medal at the 2019 competition.

"Florida is home to a thriving craft beer market, so being one of just a handful of breweries in our state to be recognized is quite an accomplishment," said Rob Whyte, who co-founded Fort Myers Brewing Company in 2013 with his wife, Jen. "Somebody Else's Dream has been a favorite brew for our guests since its debut, and it's incredible to know an international panel of beer experts feel the same way."

Earlier this year, Somebody Else's Dream won bronze at the Best Florida Beer Competition in Tampa. In 2018, the brewery's top-selling chocolate stout won a gold medal at the U.S. Open Beer Championships and a silver award at the World Beer Cup, an international competition often referred to as The Olympics of Beer Competitions.

The Great American Beer Festival's 33rd competition drew 9,497 entries from 2,295 breweries, along with 113 additional Pro-Am and 70 Collaboration entries, from all 50 states, Washington, DC, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.✱

Tickets Available For Mastersingers Fundraiser

The Fort Myers Symphonic Mastersingers is hosting a fundraising event titled Shall We Dance at the M&N Dance Studio on Sunday, November 10 from 2 to 5 p.m. The afternoon will feature dance demonstrations by the studio's professional staff, music from vocal scholarship winners, and fine hors d'oeuvres from Jamie and Jacob Catering.

The genesis for this season's fundraiser was a fusion of the arts last season when dancers from the studio joined the Mastersingers Chamber Chorus in a concert program. M&N Dance Studio is owned by Martin Cardoso and Noelia Guerrero, award-winning dancers and highly regarded dance instructors who hail from Argentina. After years of teaching dance, they were able to realize their dream and open their own studio, where individual and group lessons provide an optimum dance experience, fusing fun and comfort with quality dance instruction.

Tickets for the fundraiser are $75 for a single or two for $140. Proceeds will be used to support the area's premier choral organization. Now in its 19th season, the Mastersingers brand has grown to include an 80-plus voice adult chorus, 26-member chamber ensemble, and the City of Palms Youth Choir that involves area youth from third through the 12th grades from schools throughout Southwest Florida.

In addition to the educational outreach of the Youth Choir, the Mastersingers is proud to sponsor other projects serving the community, such as the DeMaster Scholarship program for vocal soloists in middle and high school, and the Sanibel-Captiva Trust Prize for Choral Composition.

"Excellence in choral music has been at the heart of the Mastersingers organization since its inception. We strive for that in our concert performances, and we hope to ensure that it continues, by sponsoring programs for young singers and aspiring composers," said Robert Beane, area businessman and one of the founders of the group. "Putting together an event like Shall We Dance is the ultimate synthesis of what we're about – promoting the arts in Southwest Florida."

M&N Dance Studio is located at 12450 Metro Parkway in Fort Myers. For more information and tickets, visit www.mastersingersfm.com.✱

These programs help our participants learn to read, improve their health and wellness, improve fine and gross motor skills, and practice their social skills.

"Differences do not discriminate. We are all one birth, one diagnosis or one other life-defining moment away from being different, or from loving someone who is," said GiGi's Playhouse founder Nancy Gianni. "We will never stop fighting for those who struggle for lasting acceptance."

Fort Myers Art:

Prominent Artist Opens Studio In South Bronx

by Tom Hall

Marcus Jansen has opened a second studio in the emerging Mott Haven/Port Morris section of the South Bronx, not far from where his journey began 51 years ago. Jansen will join the South Bronx Independent Artist Coalition on East 132nd street starting in November.

While Jansen will continue to maintain his main headquarters in his 7,500-square-foot warehouse in Fort Myers, he has decided to return to his native South Bronx to contribute to the growth that is beginning to take place there.

"I think it's exciting," Jansen said. "The South Bronx has always been a cradle for creativity. I hope my art can contribute just a bit to that. It's the birthplace of Hip Hop and graffiti art culture that has changed the art world permanently, and it's nice going back to my roots."

The studio will be directed by Sarah Sagarin, who is part of a group of artists and artisans who work in the South Bronx neighborhoods of Port Morris and Mott Haven.

It will be part of the South Bronx Independent Artists Coalition, which was founded in 2018 with the goal of broadening the artistic community by connecting, supporting, and promoting South Bronx artists with events and programming throughout the year.

early 1970s and spent his first years there before moving to Queens and later Germany, where he was educated. After serving in the Armed Forces in Iraq during Desert Storm, Jansen returned to New York, selling his early work on street corners in lower Manhattan. He successfully presented his street-and-graffiti-influenced art in exhibitions at renowned international museums while pioneering urban landscape paintings in the late 1990s.

Today, Jansen is considered one of the most important painters of his generation, according to critics and scholars. He is collected by the likes of Singer Nicole Scherzinger, NBA Superstar Carmelo Anthony, Hollywood actor John Ortiz, top 200 collector list members Amy and John Phelan and Collector Peggy Cooper Cafritz. His commissions include corporations such as Absolut Vodka, Warner Brothers, Illuminum, FIFA World Cup and Ford Motor Company. He is represented by galleries in London, Paris, Vienna, Dusseldorf, Shanghai and here in the United States. His first U.S. solo museum traveling exhibition starts in 2020.

As one of the oldest festivals in Collier County, Naples National is counted by the local community as among its premiere, must-see events, thanks to the high quality of art, the engaging personalities of the artists and the festive atmosphere. The show is held in scenic Cambier Park and along Eighth Street South, one block from downtown Naples' premier shopping and dining district. It will be held on Saturday and Sunday, February 22 and 23, 2020 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Festival officials will accept 194 artists. The application fee is $35, and the booth (10-feet-by-10-feet) fee is $625.

Cambier Park is located at 755 Eighth Avenue South in Naples. Applications are available online at www.zapplication.org.

Alliance Director Rescheduled To Guest Bartend

The Alliance for the Arts is teaming up with Coastal Dayz Brewery as Alliance Executive Director Lydia A. Black serves as guest bartender at the brewery on Thursday, October 29 from 6 to 8 p.m. All tips from the evening will be donated to the Alliance. This event is rescheduled from October 10.

"We are excited to once again partner with Fort Myers' newest local brewery to support our local arts and craft beers," says executive director Lydia A. Black. "Brewing beer is a form of creative and artistic expression and we see this as a chance to connect artisans with the amazing people who support them and show love to our talented local makers."

Kindergarten Pre-Registration Deadline Nears

The deadline for the 2nd annual kindergarten pre-registration period is fast approaching. The deadline to fill out the required forms early is Friday, November 1.

"We encourage parents to take advantage of this opportunity," said Executive Director of Student Enrollment Soretta Ralph. "Registering now means avoiding the lines often associated with our traditional enrollment period in January, the ability to choose your child's elementary school online and find out their school assignment a week earlier."

More than 542 students have signed up just over halfway through the pre-registration period. Last year, 950 students were registered early for kindergarten.

Parents must pre-register their children at the Student Enrollment Office inside the Lee County Public Education Center, 2855 Colonial Boulevard in Fort Myers. Enrollment specialists are available to assist parents from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The documents required to pre-register include:

Physical exam (dated within the last year)

Florida Certificate of Immunization

Proof of address

Original birth certificate

Social Security Card (if available)

Custody documents (if applicable)

Once pre-registered, a student number will be assigned. Parents are then advised to tour the elementary schools in their zone. A pre-printed application will be mailed in January, allowing parents to go online and rank their schools in order of preference to finalize student enrollment. The first application period will be from January 13, 2020 to February 28, 2020.

Students entering kindergarten in August 2020 must be age 5 on or before September 1, 2020.

FSW Hosts Pop-Up Adventure Play

Florida SouthWestern State College's (FSW) School of Education will host Pop-Up Adventure Play at the Practice Field from 1 to 4 p.m., on Saturday, November 9. The event is free and open to children of all ages. Preregistration is recommended.

"At Pop-Up Play, children are invited to play however they wish with everyday materials that can be used in many different ways, such as cardboard boxes, paper towel tubes and art materials," said Dr. Julia Kroeker, professor of Early Childhood Education at FSW. "These materials are open-ended and have limitless possibilities; a box could be a racecar, a castle or a slide."

"Child-directed play has numerous benefits for children in all areas of development, including fostering problem-solving and communication skills, physical development, creativity and more. When children choose what and how to play, they are motivated by their own interests to learn and grow."

FSW's Practice Field is located across from the Lockmiller Child Care Center at 8099 College Parkway in Fort Myers. For more information or to register, contact Dr. Kroeker at 489-9382 or email jkroeker@fsw.edu.

Foundation Seeks Donations And Volunteers

The Heights Foundation/The Heights Center is seeking organizations and individuals to participate in the Bountiful Blessings Thanksgiving Outreach.

Volunteers are needed on Friday, November 22 and Saturday, November 23. Donations can be dropped off Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. until Wednesday, November 20. The outreach event will be held on Saturday, November 23. The Heights Center is located at 15570 Hagie Drive in Fort Myers.

Organizations and individuals interested in donating or to sign up for a volunteer time slot, contact Melissa Barlow at 482-7706 or melissa@heightsfoundation.org.

Since 1999, the program has provided the ingredients so families in the Harlem Heights neighborhood can make a traditional Thanksgiving meal in their own homes to share with their families. In 2018, partner agencies, businesses, philanthropic organizations and more than 100 volunteers provided turkeys and groceries to more than 300 families benefitting approximately 1,500 unique individuals.

"Holiday memories often center around a meal; the joy of preparation and being together as a family," said

Outreach volunteers for The Heights Foundation Thanksgiving

Kathryn Kelly, president and CEO of The Heights Foundation/The Heights Center. "But, purchasing the ingredients for a holiday meal can be a large financial burden for many. Thanks to the generous support of our neighbors, we are able to provide that experience for the families in the Harlem Heights community."

The greatest need is for donated turkeys and rice or monetary donations to purchase those items. Additional food items needed include canned yams, boxed stuffing, boxed potatoes, canned vegetables (green beans, peas, corn, and mixed vegetables), canned gravy, cranberry sauce and cake mix.

All donations are tax deductible. Monetary donations can be made on the web at www.heightsfoundation.org/donate.✱

Church Document To Be Addressed

The Rev. Dr. Richard Bliese, an associate pastor at Emmanuel Lutheran Church, will be the guest teacher regarding the Joint Declaration on the Doctrine of Justification at Peace Lutheran Church on Wednesday, November 6 at 11 a.m.

Rev. Richard Bliese

Rev. Bliese is an accomplished leader, teacher, innovator and visionary with extensive ministerial experience over three continents, with 30 years of leadership, non-profit and entrepreneurial experience in more than 15 different organizations. He has a deep teaching and consulting expertise nationally and internationally in theological education and congregational ministry.

Dr. Bliese has served as a missionary pastor, professor, seminary president and consultant to the greater church. He holds a master of divinity from Christ-Seminary Seminex, a master of theology from the Lutheran School of Theology in Chicago, and a PhD in theology from the Lutheran School of Theology in Chicago.

The Joint Declaration on the Doctrine of Justification is a document created and agreed to by the Catholic Church's Pontifical Council for promoting Christian unity and the Lutheran World Federation in 1999 as a result of extensive ecumenical dialogue. It states that the churches now share "a common understanding of our justification by God's grace through faith in Christ." To the parties involved, this essentially resolves the 500-year-old conflict over the nature of justification, which was at the root of the Protestant Reformation. Lutherans and Roman Catholics adopted the resolution on Reformation Day in Augsburg, Germany in 1999. The World Methodist Council adopted the declaration on July 18, 2006. The Anglican Communion adopted the declaration in 2016. The World Communion of Reformed Churches adopted the declaration in 2017.

Feed The Need Pacing Party

Fort Myers Christian School (FMCS) has set its fundraising goal of $75,000 and 10,000 meals to support its school through an innovative "food-raising" packing project called Feed the Need. The one-day, student-led food-packing party event will be held on Friday, October 25 from 8:30 a.m. to noon.

Feed the Need is a food-raiser that provides needed funds for Fort Myers Christian School with a portion of the funds raised going toward providing healthy meals for hungry children and families through a partnership with Haven of Hope International's Heart of Florida Youth Ranch, the Harry Chapin Food Bank and Community Cooperative.

"The Feed the Need packing party was one of the highlights of our school year last year. The joy on our kids' faces, knowing they were helping others, was a blessing to everyone that attended," said Fort Myers Christian School Principal Mel Mitchell. "We can't wait to do it again this year."

The Harry Chapin Food Bank is the largest hunger-relief network in Southwest Florida, serving Charlotte, Collier, Glades, Hendry and Lee counties.

"We are happy to be a part of this initiative, which will help us in our mission to lead the community in the fight to end hunger," said Richard LeBer, Harry Chapin Food Bank president and CEO.

Feed the Need's other partner, Haven of Hope International's partner home the Heart of Florida Youth Ranch, is located in Southwest Florirda and works to serve children suffering the loss of parenting due to abandonment, neglect, abuse and death by equipping children and families at risk to live more effective, healthy and fulfilling lives.

"We appreciate FMCS being a community of hope to children here locally and globally. Thanks to the compassion of this community, we will be able to help meet the dietary needs of children here in Florida and beyond," said Haven of Hope International Founder Alice Skaff.

NBC2 News anchor Peter Busch will be honorary emcee for the second year in a row with Principal Mel Mitchell.

"I was blown away last year by how passionate the kids were about making a difference," said NBC2 News anchor Peter Busch. "I'm so excited to once again be a part of this wonderful event."

This year, FMCS has set aside a portion of the food to go to the Bahamas. Paul Orbe of Boca Bargoons will transport food for families that continue to struggle from the impact made by Hurricane Dorian.

Each Feed the Need meal bag is fully nutritionally balanced, designed by dieticians at General Mills specifically for malnourished children. Each bag contains hydrated vegetables, soy or beans for protein, 19 essential vitamins and minerals, and pasta for carbohydrates and energy.

"We are proud to be a partner with Fort Myers Christian School's initiative this year to pack 10,000 meals for hungry families," said Tracey Galloway, CEO for Community Cooperative. "We are on the front lines working every day to help hungry neighbors find their next meal."

If you or your business is interested in getting involved through a sponsorship or donation, visit www.fortmyerschristianschool.org/feed-the-need.✱

CROW Case Of The Week:

Double-Crested Cormorant

by Bob Petcher

The double-crested cormorant (Phalacrocorax auritus) is a large water bird with a long S-shaped neck and a prehistoric look. While it is related to the frigatebird, this swimming bird looks more like a cross between a goose and a loon, and sometimes is confused for the latter.

The cormorant gets its name from its double crest that is only visible on adults during breeding season. The cormorant crests are black in most regions, except for Alaska where they are white.

The double crested cormorant is an accomplished diver and uses its hooked bill to catch small fish underwater. It can be seen in both freshwater and coastal waters.

When not plunging below the water surface, the most widespread cormorant in North America is often seen on a rock or other surface with its wings spread out. This drying stance is usually performed when the bird is taking a break from fishing. It must take the time to dry itself because it has less preen oil than other birds, and its feathers can get quite soaked from diving excursions. Unfortunately, it does not have the ability to shed water like a duck.

At CROW, a juvenile double-crested cormorant was admitted from a beach on Sanibel. The patient was unable to act normally or evade capture. Upon examination, the cormorant had clear struggles breathing and noticeable swelling of the head and neck area, which was said to be associated with a leaking of air in the body. To investigate the source, CROW medical staff performed an endoscopy procedure through the trachea to search for a possible tear causing the air leak. For the procedure, a small incision was made below the last rib to place a breathing tube directly in the air sac, allowing breathing during the tracheal procedure.

Roughly 10 days after the procedure, the patient is doing much better.

"The swelling has gone down in the head and neck area. There still is a small amount of air swelling remaining, but the draining tubes under the skin appeared to work well to continuously drain the air out from underneath the skin," said Dr. Megan Cabot, CROW veterinary intern. "The incision allowed us to place a breathing tube in the air sacs inside of the body, instead of through the trachea where we normally place a breathing tube for surgery. The air sac tube allowed breathing while we scoped the trachea. This incision was closed after the procedure because the bird's trachea appeared unaffected."

Since there was no tear in trachea, the source of the leak was believed to be coming from an air sac that is located at the base of his neck, according to Dr. Cabot.

"We suspect this cormorant sustained an unknown trauma, as air sac ruptures are often caused by blunt force," she said.

CROW medical officials are optimistic but guarded moving forward with the patient.

"Since the draining tubes were placed in the skin of the neck, air swelling has remained mostly resolved," added Dr. Cabot. "Today (October 19), we pulled the tubes and will monitor over the next few days to make sure the cormorant does not swell up again with air."

Adaption

by Capt.
Matt Mitchell

Changing weather patterns are all part of our fall fishing season. Learning to adapt to the day's conditions is just part of every successful fisherman's repertoire. Often we have to switch up the day's plan because of weather, no matter how good the fishing was the day before. Some days even just a slight wind or tide change can make all the difference in the world.

Locating diving pelicans in the sound has been the easiest way to find shiners as the changing conditions have these bait schools moving on almost a daily basis. Several mornings this week, I had to scramble to get my bait as it had disappeared from where I had caught it just the day before. Pushing the morning pick-up time back a half hour has taken the stress out of daily bait catching. Until the clocks fall back, the first weekend of November is usually pretty dark until almost 7:30 a.m.

Once loaded up on shiners, the options have been almost endless with the wind direction and phase of the tide being the deciding factors on what and where to fish. Red light shoal in Pine Island Sound has been one of my favorite places to fish over the past few weeks with fish feeding here on either tide. This has been a great place to start a trip and quickly bend the rods on a variety of species. Setting up the boat in the four- to six-foot depth range and pitching a few handfuls of live shiners gets the fish feeding. Though all the bait that was on this shoal for the past few weeks has moved, the many species of hungry fish – including trout, snapper, jacks, ladyfish and even the occasional gag grouper – have remained.

Despite Tropical Storm Nestor washing out the weekend, there could be a silver lining. Winds and rain hopefully will help break up some of the patchy red tide that's been killing fish from Fort Myers Beach south and blowing a few dead fish into San Carlos Bay. Once past the power lines, the sound has remained in pristine condition, though seeing even just a few dead fish floating quickly brings back thoughts of the nightmare red tide of last year.

Native black mangrove's bark has a subtle intricate beauty photos by Gerri Reaves

Plant Smart

Whose Bark?

by Gerri Reaves

When we want to identify a tree, we typically rely on factors such as overall shape and height, leaves, or flowers to identify it.

However, noticing the bark can be especially helpful in identifying some trees.

Pictured here are three native and one nonnative species. See if you can identify them.

Black mangrove's (Avicennia germinans) black or dark gray bark has a subtle intricate design created by the fissures dividing it into a block-like pattern.

This member of the verbena family is a signature tree in subtropical and tropical tidal zones.

It can reach up to 50 feet, and with an extensive system of horizontal cable root several feet below ground, it is highly storm resistant. So well does it protect the shoreline that it's protected by law.

It's known for the curious vertical

Gumbo limbo's peeling bark is its best known characteristic pneumatophores, finger-like roots that project from the mud above the high tide line. Those breathing tubes enable the tree to breathe when water surrounds it.

The leaves' ability to excrete salt also helps it survive fluctuations in salinity.

Gumbo limbo's (Bursera simaruba) peeling reddish bark makes it one of the best known of native trees. The bark, nevertheless, varies greatly from tree to tree. Some are silvery, while others are bronze or almost orange.

Reaching as high as 60 feet, this tree can resemble living sculpture, so lovely are the curving or distorted shapes of the branches.

Highly salt and drought tolerant, it also excels in being a food source for a variety of birds. In the wild, it grows in coastal hammocks.

Green buttonwood (Conocarpus erectus), a relative of white and black mangroves, inhabits coastal prairies and brackish swamps on the landward side of the mangrove zone.

The twisted or gnarled trunks of older specimens lend them a silvery sculptural look that might remind some people of mesquite trees. Older trees

Older green buttonwoods have gnarled trunks with deep furrows have rough bark with vertical furrows.

Like black mangrove, it too protects shorelines. It can grow up to 60 feet high and is highly storm resistant and tolerant of drought and salt.

Torell's eucalyptus's (Eucalyptus torelliana) bark is definitely ornamental and distinctive, but you don't want this native of the Australian rainforests in your landscape. It's enormous and fast-growing, reaching up to 100 feet tall.

Once widely used as a windbreak tree, it is no longer recommended because of invasive tendencies.

The upper trunk and branches shed

Torell's eucalyptus' bark is attractive, but his tree is not recommended for Florida because of its invasive tendency the bark in sheets, revealing a pretty gray-green surface. The layers of peeling bark create overlapping swathes of soft pastels.

When acquainting yourself with the many characteristics of trees, don't forget to notice the bark. Not only can it be distinctive, even ornamental, but it helps determine how trees interact with other plant and animal species, particularly epiphytes.

Osprey Platforms Being Replaced

Carlos Hernandez donated labor and equipment for the repairs photos provided

submitted by Anne Mitchell

Volunteers with The International Osprey Foundation (TIOF) have begun the task of repairing osprey platforms in preparation for another nesting season beginning in January.

TIOF President Susan Tucker has been able to gain help from Carlos

Hernandez of Tree Trimming Doctor and his crew to set the new platforms high on top of the poles. TIOF member Jim Columbo made the 40-inch-square platforms with metal mesh bottoms designed to hold the nests in place. Columbo is using instructions for building the platforms as suggested on TIOF's website, www.ospreys.com.

He has made at least 15 new platforms to date.

"We now sign them on the side of the platform with our TIOF name, the year we installed it and Jim's signature.

It is a really nice way to advertise our organization and acknowledge the person who built it," said Tucker.

Last month, Hernandez and his crew, along with Columbo, Tucker and her husband Bob Tucker, replaced platforms on Woodring Road, Venus Drive, Martha's Lane and Bay Drive on Sanibel. They also added a predator guard on the second platform at the Woodring site. Hernandez brought his bucket lift to help in setting the heavy platforms in place.

Tucker said, "The four platforms

Jim Columbo with two of about 15 new platforms he has built to date were in very poor condition and it was important to get them replaced and ready before nesting season. It would have been unsafe for a nesting pair to use them this season."

She said she was very thankful for the assistance of Hernandez, who provided labor and use of equipment free, and for Columbo's contribution. Platform repair is an ongoing task. There are at least eight more platforms that need maintenance, she added.

If you know of any, contact Tucker at tiof@outlook.com.✱

Book Review

Let Justice Descend

by Di Saggau

A few months ago, I was fortunate to get a preview copy of Lisa Black's latest book Let Justice Descend. It goes on sale October 29. The book is a haunting journey to the dark side of justice. This is the fifth Gardiner and Renner thriller by forensic scientist and New York Times bestselling author Lisa Black. Maggie Gardiner is a forensic expert who studies the dead, and her partner, Jack Renner, is a homicide cop who stalks the living. Together, they probe dangerous links involving a dead senator, dirty election politics and an environmental disaster in the making.

When they investigate the bizarre murder of the senator, they find she has many secrets to hide. United States Senator Diane Cragin is electrocuted on her own doorstep, three days before a key election. This is a shocking twist on an already brutal political race. Cragin's chief of staff is quick to blame her rival Joey Green, a city development director who's had his hand in every till in town for over 20 years.

Maggie and Jack have their own theories, especially after discovering a fortune in cash in the senator's safe. They discover that counting money is only fun when it's yours. And they wonder why this large amount of cash exists. As they follow the money through the treacherous landscape of Cleveland politics, they find many more millions in play and many more suspects.

As Jack says, "Anyone can be dangerous, when they have what they think is a good reason." He should know. Meanwhile a Herald reporter is very close to finding out why Jack acts as both detective and executioner. With each passing hour, the stresses of the impending election expose new fractures and corruption at the city's highest levels. And as more murders mount up, Maggie and Jack's only hope of stopping a killer is an alliance that's growing very fragile.

Included in the book is a segment about VR Labs to which Fort Myers gave an incentive grant of $4.7 million to make nutritional drinks and employ over 200 people. Unfortunately, this never materialized. The author weaves this story into the book as well as an investigation by the EPA into a town's drinking water. I found the book to be an interesting read. Black is a certified crime analyst for the Cape Coral Police Department so she knows how to describe crime scenes. The book is fast-paced with a conclusion that is surprising and also satisfying. The psychological suspense is what keeps you reading. I suggest you pick up a copy.✱

very unpleasant surprise, particularly if they have specific phobias or anxiety associated with Halloween images like witches or monsters. Also, parents should be aware that older children passing into their "tweens" are developing a better understanding of death especially in light of all the school shootings. The holiday could be unsettling for them.

Make sure that the costume your child will wear, especially if she or he has sensory issues, will meet their needs. For some kids, particularly those with sensory issues, the wrong item of clothing can destroy a wonderful night – for you and for them. Many parents have concerns about the sexy or gruesome Halloween costumes marketed to kids. So be cautious with the costume choices.

Halloween is supposed to be fun but going out or dressing in costume isn't required. The comfort and joy of your child should come first. If this isn't the year for your child to trick or treat or be able to handle extended activities with peers, there is always next year. Make sure that the teacher is aware of your child's apprehension. You may want to ask her if she or he can miss the party at school.

If you choose to stay at home, have a clear agreement about who will speak at the door, so that anxious kids know what's expected of them. Should you decide to stay in, your child can still participate from a safe place and gain some social experience, even if it's not a lot. Remember, this night is supposed to be fun, but it can also be a learning experience for a child that allows them to enjoy it more fully in the future.

You may just want to make up your own customs for the day. Pumpkin carving, pizza for dinner and spending the evening together at home as a family may just be the right thing to do for your child this year. If having your own routine makes both you and your child less anxious about Halloween, celebrating it your own way may make this holiday much more enjoyable.

School Smart

by Shelley M. Greggs, NCSP

Dear Readers, As we approach one of the biggest holidays of the year, Halloween, many feelings may be elicited. Most kids and many adults enjoy this day and dressing up in costume, however there are a significant number of children who dread Halloween. They hate getting dressed up and are fearful for a number of reasons. Some kids and their parents may also feel embarrassed about their lack of affection for this widely loved day and not fitting in like everyone else.

There is no need to be embarrassed! Halloween can be a real stressor. While many children do enjoy Halloween and the requisite festivities, plenty of others find the holiday quite challenging. For kids who are shy or have challenges acting appropriately, dealing with surprises and disappointments, following directions, getting along with peers and resisting the impulse to consume all their spoils on the spot, Halloween can be a disaster.

There are some things that you can do to address a child's anxiety about Halloween. As you know, routine and anticipatory guidance does help those with anxiety. Make sure your child understands exactly what will happen and what is required of him. Go out early to avoid the "mayhem" of later hours and give as much information about the timetable as possible. If a little chaos is unavoidable, kids with anxiety will likely be reassured by a return to routine at home afterwards, like a regular bedtime story or activity.

There are some real fears associated with Halloween for young children who still have trouble distinguishing fantasy from reality. They could get a

CROW Director Presents Research On Red Tide

The Clinic for the Rehabilitation of Wildlife (CROW) Medical and Research Director Dr. Heather Barron recently presented a research talk and two masterclasses at ExoticsCon, a conference for veterinary professionals, held from September 29 to October 3 in St. Louis, Missouri.

The research talk, titled Use of Intravenous Lipid Emulsion Therapy as a Novel Treatment for Brevetoxicosis in Double-crested Cormorants (Phalacrocorax auritus), centered around CROW's research which showed that an intravenous lipid emulsion (ILE) solution was a safe and effective treatment for brevetoxicosis, or red tide poisoning. Birds who were given the ILE treatment resulted in a survival rate that was significantly higher with more rapid resolution of clinical symptoms compared to birds who received traditional methods of treatment.

"Sanibel is a bit of an epicenter for red tides and CROW sees patients affected by it every year," said Dr. Barron. "That gives us a unique opportunity to have this be an area of research focus and learn ways to better treat wildlife affected by it."

Dr. Barron and the other researchers collaborating on the study, which was funded by NOAA's National Centers for Coastal Ocean Science (NCCOS) Harmful Algal Bloom Event Response Program and the Association of Avian Veterinarians (AAV), have yet to publish the full findings, but hope to do so soon.

In addition to presenting CROW's red tide research, Dr. Barron also presented two masterclass sessions. She presented Floods, Fires, Spills and Blooms – The Avian Practitioner and Natural Disasters with Dr. Michelle Hawkins and Avian Wound Management with Dr. Rebecca Duerr from International Bird Rescue in California.

The research talk and both masterclass sessions were sponsored by Lafeber Company and Emerald, LLC.✴

Nonprofit Day For Philanthropy And Public Relations

This event is an opportunity for Southwest Florida's charitable organizations – and those interested in learning more about the community's charity landscape – to learn from local experts.

The seminar, with the theme The Giving Season will provide attendees with takeaways, practical information and tools to help extend the "giving feeling" all year-round and combat challenges, such as donor fatigue, communication issues and ever-changing tax laws.

Speakers for Nonprofit Day include: Eric Anderson, communications and social media coordinator, The Salvation Army

Julio Barina, CPA, tax manager, Markham, Norton, Mosteller, Wright & Company, PA.

Duane Higgins, director of development, Lee Health Foundation

Jill Palmer, executive director, American Red Cross Florida's Southern Gulf Chapter

In addition to the presentations from dynamic speakers, Nonprofit Day offers a unique networking opportunity. Nonprofit public relations, marketing and development professionals, and public relations professionals looking to learn more about development and fundraising can network with others who share similar goals for their organizations.

Sponsors for the event include iPartner Media and Holiday Inn Fort Myers Airport at Town Center. Cost is $30 general admission; $20 for students (includes breakfast).

Help Fill Holiday Stockings For The Military

Every year, the American Red Cross Holiday for Heroes campaign provides the community an opportunity to send messages of thanks and holiday cheer to veterans and military members.

These items and messages are donated by the community and placed inside holiday stockings hand-sewn by volunteers. For more than 10 years, Red Cross volunteers have cut and sewn hundreds of stockings in the Naples and Fort Myers areas.

This year, the Red Cross has expanded the campaign throughout the South Florida region, where lead partner Arthrex, Inc. and other sponsors will assemble and deliver these stuffed holiday stockings for military members who are away from their families during the holidays.

"I have personally been on a one-year deployment to the Middle East, and I can say from experience how much these efforts mean to our service members," said Heidi O'Sheehan, director of Service to the Armed Forces (SAF) in South Florida. "When you are far from home, especially around the holidays, you begin to feel forgotten and very detached, so to receive a care package or even a brief note of appreciation and well wishes from someone back home who doesn't even know you personally is just incredibly powerful and touching. It makes you feel connected and reminds you that the sacrifices you and your family are making are for a worthy cause and are not forgotten. I think that is an incredible gift to give a service member or veteran."

Last year, more than 1,000 stockings were delivered to soldiers serving overseas and Florida's Southern Gulf Chapter of the Red Cross received a letter from Cassandra Wyatt, the station manager at Camp Lemonnier in Djibouti, sharing her appreciation and gratitude for the care packages.

"Your support lends strength and fortitude while they are away from home," said Wyatt. "Many of the service members and organizations will 're-gift' items to other members as well as drop off items to be shared with the deployed population, especially those further deployed into greater hardship areas."

The community can help support this campaign by donating the following items: drink and hot cocoa mix (individual packets); power bars; gum, mints, hard candy (no chocolate); individually packaged/travel size snacks (nuts, trail mix, beef jerky, crackers, cookies); non-perishable meat (individual packets of tuna, chicken, salmon; not canned); lip balm; small packs of baby wipes; small puzzle books, playing cards, yo-yos, hacky sacks; and cards and letters of appreciation (do not write your last name, address or personal contact information; use wording that will encompass the holiday spirit without reference to race or religion as these will go to a diverse group of service members; do not put your cards or letters in an envelope).

Donations must be dropped off by Wednesday, November 6 at the designated drop off locations.

For a list of drop off locations or to learn more about the program, visit www.redcross.org/holidayforheroes.✴

Stress Can Kill

by Craig R. Hersch, Florida Bar Board Certified Wills, Trusts & Estates Attorney; CPA

Dr. Rangan Chatterjee authored a new book, The Stress Solution, offering advice on countering the damaging effects of chronic stress. In it he details patients who, despite following intense diet and exercise programs, struggle with serious health issues like heart disease and Type 2 diabetes.

Dr. Chatterjee counseled one 53-year-old businessman patient to focus on the root cause of his problem: chronic stress. The patient was putting in long hours and skipping sleep. Dr. Chatterjee told him that constant stress can wreak havoc on blood sugar levels, urged him to practice meditation and yoga, and to shut off his screens 90 minutes before bed each night. Six months later, the businessman's blood sugar levels improved almost to normal.

I could have been a poster boy for Dr. Chatterjee. Regular readers of this column know that I recently had to undergo open heart triple bypass surgery despite my healthy diet and passion for exercise. My doctors told me that stress and genetics played a huge role in my condition.

A typical day for me began at 6 a.m. and often stretched to 11 p.m. Even when I ate dinner with my family, I'd retire to my home study to log in to my work system to finish projects, answer emails and delegate work to my team.

I enjoy my work, and everyone's career has some element of stress. What I didn't realize is that I was pushing my body beyond its limits. I'm back at the office now, having made internal changes to better deal with day to day life.

"A lot of people are oblivious to the effects of stress," Dr. Chatterjee said in one of his Feel Better, Live More podcasts which tops the iTunes rankings.

When one of my law school classmates, Mark Stein, now a Miami intellectual property attorney, learned of my surgery, he called with well-wishes. During our conversation, he asked if I meditated. I told him this was something that I had planned to do but never got around to.

The next day I received a package from Amazon with a book entitled Practicing Mindfulness – 75 Essential Meditations to Reduce Stress, Improve Health, and Find Peace in Everyday by Matththew Sockolov. Mark later explained to me this is an excellent book for beginners, as he's used the techniques for more than 25 years.

I've seen clients who suffer from stress, even retired ones. One of my retired law partners, John Sheppard, once told me, "I'm busier and more stressed in retirement than I ever was in my law practice!"

One of the things that stresses out clients is not having a plan in place in case they get sick or die. Thinking about one's own mortality can be stressful by itself, so people put it off. Rather than relieving anxiety, it appears that hiding from it only makes it worse.

Other clients appear to believe that once they've signed their estate planning documents, they've somehow set in motion a sequence leading to their own demise! I can't tell you the number of times that I've sent drafts out to clients, but they hesitate for months or even years before reviewing those documents with me and actually signing them to put them into effect.

Given Dr. Chatterjee's findings, it isn't a wild assumption to believe that the buildup of stress in not planning for the inevitable would somehow make the inevitable more imminent, rather than the other way around. Our clients almost always feel an overwhelming sense of satisfaction and calm after signing their documents, as they know they now have peace of mind over their affairs.

In any event, you have a sympathetic ear when discussing these issues with me now. While I don't wish open heart surgery on anyone, the experience has broadened my understanding of what many of my clients have been through, and opened my eyes to the fears and stresses associated with taking care of your loved ones, planning for a future that you may not be a part of.

Hopefully, of course, all of us live a long and healthy life. My doctors have assured me that I'm expected to live a normal life, and that my new pathways to my heart will likely improve my vitality for many years going forward.

If you're under a lot of stress, check out the books and other resources I suggest here. Others can't remove the stress from your life, but you can certainly take steps to become more resilient and take action to increase the pleasure in your life going forward.

Center Secures Sizable Arthrex Training Grant

Florida SouthWestern State College (FSW), the state fiscal agent for Quick Response Training (QRT) grants, has secured a $1.3 million grant for Arthrex to train 363 new hires.

"This is a significant grant for Arthrex, FSW and our region," said Dr. Robert R. Jones, vice president of economic development and external affairs at FSW. "The funds will be used for customized supervisory and management training."

"Arthrex is very appreciative of our partnership with FSW and the state of Florida. The grant supports Arthrex's continued growth and investment in Southwest Florida," said Kathy Sparrow, senior vice president of human resources at Arthrex.

Arthrex is an orthopedic medical device company, and a leader in product development, medical education and a pioneer in arthroscopy, having developed thousands of products and surgical procedures in orthopedic medicine worldwide. The company's corporate headquarters is located in Naples, with global divisions in Munich, Germany and Singapore. It also has several subsidiaries and distribution centers throughout the eastern and western hemispheres.

FSW is the state fiscal agent for QRT grants in Southwest Florida. This is the fourth QRT grant awarded to Arthrex in the last three years. By working closely with CareerSource Florida in Tallahassee, and the local Workforce Board, FSW and Arthrex have been successful in securing $3.2 million in QRT funds to train over 1,300 new hires since July 2017. This funding not only directly benefits the companies receiving training funds, but also results in a local economic benefit.

The QRT grant lasts for one year and is targeted on the highly-customized training programs that companies need to improve the skill base of new hires. These programs can be instructed by specialists from the company itself or by one from FSW's extensive portfolio of subject matter experts.

In addition to this Arthrex QRT grant, three other FSW grants have been awarded since July 2019. These were Gartner for $525,000, ScotLynn for $150,000 and Cigent for $116,000. Since 2013, FSW has secured over $13 million in QRT funding to train over 8,000 new hires.

Bank Partners With Habitat For Global Build 2019

Habitat for Humanity of Lee and Hendry Counties and Bank of America came together recently for Bank of America's sixth annual Global Build.

A record number of nearly 2,800 bank volunteers worked this week alongside homeowners to help build, rehabilitate and repair homes. This year's Global Build, the largest to date, will help address affordable housing needs in 108 communities across 10 countries.

Financial Center Managers from Bank of America branches in Fort Myers, North Fort Myers and Cape Coral helped paint the interior and exterior of a home on Majorca Palms in Fort Myers, a Habitat partner community. As new builds begin across Lee and Hendry counties for 2019-20, Habitat's vision is to build neighborhoods amongst its homeowners.

"Affordable housing is fundamental for promoting economic mobility among individuals and families," said Gerri Moll, Southwest Florida market president for Bank of America. "Engaging our volunteers in partnership with Habitat for Humanity of Lee and Hendry Counties is one of the many ways we are helping build more sustainable communities in the region as part of our approach to responsible growth."

Meeting the need for safe, affordable and sustainable housing remains a significant challenge in Lee County, where 50 percent of renters and nearly 30 percent of homeowners expend more than 30 percent of their income on housing. According to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), anyone spending more than 30 percent of their income on housing is "cost burdened," and as a result may sacrifice nutritious food, healthcare and other necessities to make ends meet.

As a Global Build, the work done in Fort Myers coincided with projects in Australia, Canada, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Japan, Korea, Singapore, South Africa and across the United States

"Bank of America volunteers came together to participate in a Global Build initiative. Their work helps create pathways to affordable homeownership for families in Lee County," said Sara Jordan, corporate impact officer at Habitat for Humanity of Lee and Hendry Counties. "Knowing that this is part of a global effort only deepens the impact and emphasizes the importance of our vision of a world where everyone has a decent place to live."

Habitat and Bank of America have partnered for more than 30 years, helping homeowners build or improve the places they call home. Each year, Bank of America volunteers give more than 40,000 hours to Habitat in their communities through board service, home build initiatives and financial literacy training for future Habitat homeowners.

Besides volunteerism in Lee and Hendry Counties, Bank of America also supports Habitat's local mission with grant funding and by hosting financial education courses for homeowners in the North Fort Myers corporate office.✧

Rotary Club Makes Donation

Rotary Club of Fort Myers President Ian Keith recently presented a $25,000 donation check to Erik Elsea, representative and ShelterBoxUSA 2018 Ambassador of the Year. The donation will be used by ShelterBoxUSA to provide emergency shelter and supplies to families devastated by natural disaster and conflict.

During a matching gift campaign goal of $10,000, members of the Rotary Club of Fort Myers surpassed the goal and raised $25,000 for ShelterBoxUSA, a Rotary International Project Partner.

"Being part of an organization like Rotary, which aligns itself with vital partners to make the world a better place is such a rewarding experience. I'm humbled to see our club members make this commitment to transforming lives and rebuilding communities," said Keith.

Elsea, past president of the Rotary Club of Cape Coral, solo paddled the entire length of the Mississippi River in 2018 to raise funds and awareness for ShelterBoxUSA with the expedition connecting more than 70 Rotary clubs, raising more than $70,000 to date, and earning Elsea Rotary's highest honor in District 6960, the Service Above Self Award.

ShelterBoxUSA supplies aid in the form of a green box filled with essential tools and family-sized tents specially designed to withstand the elements and provide people with temporary shelter. Also included in the box are items that help transform shelter into a home, like cooking sets, solar lights and activity sets for children.✱

Support Needed For Abuse Victims

Abuse Counseling & Treatment, Inc. (ACT) is launching a special Spreading Our Wings campaign, asking the community's help to build on existing outreach services and extend important training programs to prevent and minimize the impact of domestic violence and sexual assault.

ACT plans to raise $2.4 million to offset the cost of purchasing the Second ACT Thrift Store building it has rented for 10 years. The purchase will allow ACT to expand its various outreach programs to support victims and survivors of sexual assault, domestic and dating violence, stalking and human trafficking. Last year, ACT answered over 15,000 calls through its 24-hour hotline and helped more than 7,000 community members with their confidential services, including emergency shelter, counseling, economic empowerment and job-skills training, children's services, legal advocacy, and other free programs.

"So many people count on us to help them through their darkest moments, and the Second ACT Thrift Store is a vital component of our services that allows us to provide that help," ACT CEO Jennifer L. Benton said. "But this isn't just about owning the building. It's about empowering people to overcome desperate circumstances and move forward with the life they deserve."

Proceeds from the thrift store help fund ACT's three shelters, which helped 690 victims of domestic violence and their children in 2018. They also go toward outreach counseling programs and providing informational resources for victims and survivors.

Second ACT is also much more than simply a thrift store. ACT uses the store as a job training ground so clients can gain work experience while staying at one of the shelters. The building is also ACT's primary storage space for essential items like furniture, bedding, clothing, dishes and other household items, which is not only used for shelter residents upon intake, but also is available for them when they leave to start a new beginning for their family. Additionally, the purchase will allow ACT to open an outreach program at the facility, expanding its outreach to the community.

"Our generous supporters, past and present, and the compassionate people of Southwest Florida have a new opportunity to help us change lives for the better," Benton said. "We're looking forward to working together with everyone to fulfill our mission."

ACT has helped more than 80,000 people since it was founded in 1978.

Financial Focus

Not Too Soon For End-Of-Year Financial Moves

by Jennifer Basey

We've still got a couple of months until 2019 draws to a close, but it's not too early to make some end-of-the-year financial moves. In fact, it may be a good idea to take some of these steps sooner rather than later.

Here are a few suggestions:

Boost your 401(k) contributions – Like many people, you might not usually contribute the maximum amount to your 401(k), which, in 2019, is $19,000, or $25,000 if you're age 50 or older. Ask your employer if you can increase your 401(k) contributions in 2019, and if you receive a bonus before the year ends, you may be able to use that toward your 401(k), too.

Add to your IRA – You have until April 15, 2020, to contribute to your IRA for the 2019 tax year, but the more you can put in now and over the next few months, the less you'll have to come up with in a hurry at the filing deadline. For 2019, you can put up to $6,000 in your IRA, or $7,000 if you're age 50 or older.

Review your portfolio – It's always a good idea to review your investment portfolio at least once a year, and now is as good a time as any. But don't make any judgments based solely on your results over the past 10 months. Instead, look carefully at how your portfolio is constructed. Is it still properly diversified, or has it become overweighted in some areas? Does it still fit your risk tolerance, or do you find yourself worrying excessively about short-term price swings? These are the types of factors that might lead you to make some changes, possibly with the help of a financial professional.

Don't forget about your RMDs – Once you turn age 70½, you generally need to start taking withdrawals – the technical term is "required minimum distributions," or RMDs – from your traditional IRA and your 401(k) or similar plan. After the first year in which you take these RMDs, you must take them by the end of each year thereafter. If you don't withdraw at least the minimum amount (calculated based on your age, account balance and other factors) you face a penalty of 50 percent of what you should have taken out – a potential loss of thousands of dollars. So, take your RMDs before December 31. The financial services provider that administers your IRA or 401(k) can help you determine the amount you must withdraw.

Think about next year's opportunities – It happens to almost all of us: A year has passed, and we haven't taken the actions we had planned. So, start thinking now about what you want to do in 2020 from a financial standpoint. Can you afford to ratchet up your investments in your retirement plans? If you have children or grandchildren, have you started saving for college? Have you considered ways to protect your financial independence if you ever need some type of long-term care, such as an extended nursing home stay? If these or other items are on your financial to-do list, start planning now to get them done next year.

Time goes quickly – so don't get left behind without having taken the steps to keep moving toward your financial goals.

Superior Interiors

Add A Modern Twist To Your Family Room

by Trinetta Nelson

Whether you use the family room on a regular basis or it's the place you save for the holidays, this space can be a fun canvas to design and decorate to wow your guests and make your family members feel cozy. If your current setup is more on the traditional side and you want to achieve an updated look, modern contemporary may be the right choice for you.

Modern design is all about creating a sleek feel in a room without taking away from the warm and inviting tone that a house should provide. It's about paying attention to fine lines, pops of color, mismatching furniture and other unconventional details to complete the living space. If this sounds like the perfect choice for your family room, consider the following tips to make it happen.

White is generally the traditional backdrop color for any space looking to achieve a modern style. It allows you to put simplicity on display and showcase the furniture, accessories and decor around the room. Consider white walls in the family room in a shade-like eggshell or vanilla.

Use the white foundation to your advantage by decorating with black and one other bright, bold color. Yellow maximizes the contemporary vibe, while a shade like red or blue can add a feel that's more toned down and intimate. Think about these colors as you choose artwork, throw pillows and countertop decor.

Just like colors add dimension to the living space, shapes can do the same. Choose artwork and other decor that emphasizes squares and other polygons that make use of the fine lines that complement modern decor so effortlessly. Think about this when picking furniture as well; the right style sofa and coffee table can make or break the modern vibe.

Beyond the shapes of your furniture, you need to consider the textures you want to use throughout the family room. It's common to assume that everything needs to match to create a space that flows, but that's the beauty of modern design – it's all about thinking outside of the box and stepping outside of your comfort zone. Perhaps choose different styles of chairs to place throughout the room to break things up.

Clutter is your enemy when it comes to modern design, especially on the walls. Instead of placing dozens of pieces of artwork all over the walls, find one large print to hang. Keep it simple; even a blank canvas with one impactful stroke of black can make a major statement.

Modern design is the epitome of minimalism. It's the idea of less means more so leaving empty space throughout the room can help you achieve the style to the greatest extent. Don't feel obligated to decorate every square inch of your family room. Instead, leave some empty spaces in the corner, on the walls and around the furniture.

Redesigning a room can be an overwhelming task when you don't have the experience to change up the theme from scratch. If you're feeling stressed about your next project, contact a design professional to evaluate your living space and discuss your options. From there, the professional will provide insight based on his or her experience, your personal style and some of the latest modern trends.

Local Coast Guard Auxiliary Unit Anniversary

Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 91 Fort Myers Beach is celebrating 14 years of service to the maritime community of the Fort Myers Beach area. The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary is the volunteer uniformed auxiliary service of the United States Coast Guard.

Congress established the auxiliary on June 23, 1939, as the United States Coast Guard Reserve. On February 19, 1941, the organization was re-designated as the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary. The purpose of the auxiliary is to assist the Coast Guard as authorized by the Commandant, in performing any Coast Guard function, power, duty, role, mission, or operation authorized by law.

The award-winning Flotilla 91 Fort Myers Beach is known for its support for recreational boating safety in the Fort Myers Beach, Estero Bay, San Carlos Bay and Sanibel Island areas with more than 24,000 volunteer hours of direct support to Coast Guard Station Fort Myers Beach, more than 2,000 hours in public education classes and more than 100,000 volunteer hours of service to the community since its inception in October 2005. These numbers represent a huge financial savings to both the Coast Guard and taxpayers.

The dedicated and highly trained volunteers offer boating safety classes, free vessel safety checks, station augmentation and many other support programs.

Citizens with an interest in maritime operations can join. Prior military or previous boating experience is not required. There are many positions that do not involve boating such as cooks, radio watchstanders, marine safety, environmental protection, clergy services and so much more. Tax Collector Honored As ENPY's Finalist Lee County Tax Collector Larry Hart's tireless efforts on the board for the United Way of Lee, Hendry, Glades and Okeechobee Counties earned him the distinction as a finalist for nonprofit board member of the year at the 3rd annual Nonprofit Performance Yearly Awards (ENPYs).

Hart was honored for his many years of service for the United Way, including twice serving as chair for the organization's annual campaign, which now benefits 96 partner agencies each year. Under his leadership in 2006 and again as one of six co-chairs in 2016-17, the two campaigns generated over $16 million.

The ENPYs, presented by the Cape Coral Community Foundation, recognize the outstanding work of individuals and organizations in the nonprofit world dedicated to improving the quality of life in their various communities. Hart was recently recognized, along with 32 other individuals in 11 categories, at the ENPY Awards Luncheon at Crowne Plaza Bell Tower in Fort Myers.

As a board member, Hart continues to be a strong voice for the agency, which reaches thousands each year through its many service programs in each of the Southwest Florida counties.

"I am proud to be part of an organization which continues to benefit communities and those in need in remarkable and extraordinary ways," Hart said. "There is no greater reward than helping others – and it is something I have been committed to my entire life."

Earlier this year, the Lee County Tax Collector's office was honored by United Way of Florida with the 2018-19 Public Sector Giving Award for leading local contributions for the recent United Way campaign. The LCTC's average per capita contributions was $160.70 to lead the state and was part of a record $10.4 million raised through the local campaign.

Hart was elected Lee County Tax Collector in 2012 after being appointed to the position by Gov. Rick Scott. He served as assistant tax collector for 11 years following a 22-year law enforcement career highlighted by him becoming the first African American police chief for the City of Fort Myers.

Play Ball?!

by Howard Prager
The ball is or is not juiced, that is the question. During the season, many teams broke home run records including the Minnesota Twins, which broke the baseball's team record for home runs in a season with 307. They also won the RBI total with 906 and were second in team batting average at .270 – second to the Yankees. Yet, I've been wondering why there are so many spectacular catches when teams and players are scouted so much and players are well-positioned. The ball is simply not carrying the way it did during the season. Cooler days and nights? Are the balls different at all? I can only guess, but you can see not just the fielder reactions to fly balls and having to run more, but look at the fans, players, hitters and pitchers reactions. Fly balls that were home runs during the season are not going out or as deep as they were. Something is different.

In the meantime, let's see what the long layoff does for the Nationals, who will have been waiting almost a week since winning the pennant. Houston has had only three days off, although that's enough for both teams to start their best pitchers. Teams who have five or more days off are 6-6 in winning the World Series. Given that they came into the series as the wild card team, Washington probably sees 50/50 as good odds. And speaking of stats, Houston was first in batting average allowed to the opposing team and in strikeouts, along with being third in home runs and RBIs. That's why they were presumed to be the best team in the postseason, until they faced resilient and tough competition in Tampa Bay and New York. This week, we will have seen what happens when elite pitching staffs face off with each other, one with a lot of rest and the other with not nearly as much.
College football is all about upsets, even in the Top 10. Hello Wisconsin.

You didn't just lose to an underdog, you were 31-point favorites. This is the largest upset this season when Illinois hit a last second field goal to win 24-23. South Carolina over Georgia was big the week before, but I don't believe the point differential was as great. Another exciting finish last weekend was the six overtimes between Virginia Tech and North Carolina. New NCAA overtime rules this season require each team to try for a two-point conversion beginning in the fifth overtime. This takes special teams out of the picture, which was helpful because both teams already had missed two field goals in OT. Virginia Tech prevailed 43-41.
Fun item of the week. The college football dance off. Coastal Carolina played Georgia Southern, and between the 3rd and 4th quarters, the Southern players started dancing to the music on the field. According to the Washington Post, "As it usually does, Southern played a song over the loudspeakers and as "Mo Bamba" began, its players raised four fingers to signify the quarter and began dancing in a tradition that the team calls "bringing the juice." Coastal Carolina players, trailing 10-7 at the time, were not pleased and started doing the same on their side of the field. There was no fighting or physical conduct, with players around 20 yards apart, but the referees were in no mood for frivolity. Three players had previously been flagged for unsportsmanlike conduct and the dancing penalties meant they were ejected. The refs all started throwing flags, and in total ejected seven players altogether. In a driving storm, Coastal Carolina tied the game and went to three overtimes before Georgia Southern won on a field goal. Perhaps next year in overtime, the NCAA should change their rules again and consider dance-offs. It would be a great way for both the marching bands and the teams to shine, and with less risk of injury besides. Just no penalties to my fellow sousaphone players, please!

Young and Marci Mills put out a call to artists to participate in a group show that focuses on the environment. This group of juried artwork will be juxtaposed with a collection of Clyde Butcher photographs entitled Living Waters, on loan from the Aquatic Preserve Society. Also included in the exhibition is a 60-foot installation titled Currents of Destruction that will be displayed on the exterior of the SBDAC building. The weavers guild and the public created large fiber rings symbolizing cyanobacteria pollution to call attention to the problem of water pollution in Southwest Florida, and to create a buzz about the exhibit inside.
Awards and prizes will be announced for the Turf Wars juried exhibition during opening night following a Trashion Fashion Show at 7 p.m. featuring recycled, repurposed, reimagined material that has been transformed into wearable art and accessories.
There will also be free workshops from 1 to 3 p.m. every Wednesday in November. On November 6, participate in helping create a four-foot-by-30-foot, hands-on environmental mural painting with Zan Lombardo titled Way Will Open. On November 13, be a part of an interactive lecture and discussion titled Climate Change And Global Warming with Nobel Peace Prize winner Dr. Terry Root. On November 20, join Susan Hedge for Principles Of Creation, a gallery talk that relates artwork in the gallery to existence; the nature of things.

In the upstairs Capital Gallery, get an in-depth look at some meaningful and historical images captured and take notice of the story being told in the photojournalism exhibit A Moment In Time. Photojournalism is a different kind of art. Many of its creators do not see themselves as artists, but as truth-tellers who bristle at the notion that they could be creating salable art objects. Yet their work is realism in its purest expression, straight from nature – it is creative, it withstands the test of time, it moves and inspires you to see things differently.
The exhibition runs through November 25. General admission is a $1 entry donation.

Beautifulife:

Pass The Ball

by Kay Casperson

My youngest daughter loves to stay active and usually gets involved with whatever sports she can. This year, she played on The Sanibel School girls basketball team, which was her first real participation in that sport. She picked it up pretty quickly and learned quite a few great lessons about the game, but one thing, in particular, stood out for me. Passing the ball in this game is very important, as well as who you give the ball to. If you keep the ball to yourself and try to do it all, in most cases, you will be blocked or stopped in your tracks.

Of course, this rule applies to many sports, but when your child is participating in something, you pay a bit more attention to it so you can support them along the way. So, while realizing the importance of this simple rule of passing the ball in this game, I also started to think about the importance of "passing the ball" in other aspects of our lives.

I know for sure that many of you are like me and want to take on so many things at one time. It is not always easy to say no or to juggle all the different aspects of life seamlessly. So, instead of trying to take on the world yourself and end up dropping a few balls, why not pass one or two of them to others once in a while so you can feel like a winner more often?

What does it mean to pass the ball? Let me give you a few examples and suggestions:

You are spending too much time on things for your business that you know someone else could do. Add an extra job or two to another team member or sub it out, so you can focus on the essential things that will make a difference.

You are driving too much because your kids and family rely on you to get them places. Why not pay someone to help out with the driving? If you calculate the amount of time you spent away from other things and the expenses to get there, you may find out that it can even save you money.

Your house and yard responsibilities are taking up a significant amount of your daily and weekly time, and you never feel like you get it all done. There are people that can help either once a month, once a week, or even daily if you need them, and are focused on that particular task and are well worth the investment.

You are a chairperson or committee member for a nonprofit organization, and you are feeling overwhelmed with making all the decisions and meeting deadlines. Take some time to reach out to others who would be a good fit for your organization and ask for help. Sometimes people need an extra nudge to get involved, but are willing to jump in if asked a few times.

Regardless of what ball needs to be passed at any given day, you can bet there is one, and you can either keep it, try to juggle it, risk losing it or ultimately pass it to someone else. It is not possible to win at this game called life all by yourself, and learning to "pass the ball" is an essential step in moving towards having your most balanced and beautiful life.

My affirmation for you this week is: "I will take a look at the various aspects of my life to see which balls I can pass on to others to help me stay focused, be productive and accomplish all that I set out to do."

Treatments For Cancer Patients

For patients battling all forms of cancer, including breast cancer, treatment has typically centered on eliminating the disease through surgery, radiation and chemotherapy. However, many patients benefit from an integrated, multidisciplinary approach for recovery and emotional well-being.

To support this important connection and provide the best possible care for cancer patients in Southwest Florida, Lee Health's Regional Cancer Center (RCC) and Healthy Life Centers have launched an integrative health program tailored to cancer patients. The goal is to complement their cancer treatment and bring optimal healing and well-being to their life journey.

"Our integrative services provide patient-centered care that focuses on the entire person throughout their 'cancer journey,' not just their illness," said Dennis Bruens, Lee Health vice president for oncology and palliative care. "We treat the whole person to provide patients who are in cancer treatment or cancer survivorship with every necessary tool to help them cope with the barriers and side effects of diagnosis and treatment. This patient-oriented approach considers the whole person – body, mind, spirit and lifestyle."

The Integrative Health Program at RCC offers a variety of services, including:

Hypnotherapy – Hypnosis works as part of a treatment program for several psychological and medical conditions stemming from a cancer diagnosis. Hypnotherapy can also facilitate other types of therapies and treatment, especially pain management.

Acupuncture – Acupuncture, a traditional Chinese medicine practice, seeks to rebalance the body's energy fields. The practice is based on the belief that when an imbalance occurs, the flow of energy is disrupted and disease may occur. In support of conventional medicine, acupuncture can help diminish the painful effects of cancer treatment, reduce stress, anxiety, depression, brain fog and neuropathy.

Massage Therapy – Massage therapists apply highly individualized massage treatments to comfort, nurture and support cancer patients wherever they are in their treatment journey. Sessions can help ease anxiety, reduce treatment-related pain, improve energy levels, improve sleep and manage nausea from cancer treatments.✧

Non-Surgical Treatment For Facial Wrinkles

A new non-surgical option to correct facial wrinkles has been approved by the U.S. Food & Drug Administration (FDA) and will be explained at a free seminar conducted by facial plastic surgeon Dr. Stephen Prendiville at Connors Steak & Seafood on Friday, November 1 at 11:30 a.m. .

"Genius" is a radio frequency micro-needling device that delivers radio frequency energy to a variety of depths, regardless of skin type. It can be used for several facial rejuvenation treatments, including skin tightening, acne scarring, stretch marks, scars and improvements in skin texture, according to Dr. Prendiville.

Dr. Prendiville is the first facial plastic surgeon in Florida to offer the new Genius, which was developed by Lutronic, a global aesthetic laser medical device manufacturer.

"We're excited to be the first in Florida to offer this new treatment. The advantage of Genius radio frequency micro-needling is that patients can get these dramatic results without laser resurfacing and virtually no downtime," said Dr. Prendiville, who also is the medical director of the Assuage Luxury Spa in Fort Myers and North Naples.

"Patients can apply makeup after just 24 hours and it is safe for all skin types."

Peppermint Is A Cool Solution For Irritable Bowels

by Suzy Cohen, RPh

Dear Readers: Many people have lost their joy in eating, and that's because they have Irritable Bowel Syndrome (IBS), which includes many symptoms including bloating, abdominal pain, fatigue, sleep problems and suppressed immunity. One hallmark symptom is that which affects your ability to eliminate. I'm referring to diarrhea, or constipation, or alternating between the two.

An actual diagnosis of IBS is based upon your duration of symptoms that must be six months or more. If you're tired of the problem, and sad because you have to toilet-map every trip to the mall, then maybe peppermint is something you should try.

Peppermint is a beautiful plant that has been medicinally treasured for centuries. Known botanically as Mentha piperita, peppermint is actually a hybrid. It's the hybrid baby of its parents watermint and spearmint.

Most people know that applying peppermint essential oil to your temples can help with a headache, and that peppermint gum and candies freshen your breath. Mint leaves can be infused into a pitcher of ice water for instant freshness, not to mention antibacterial and anti-fungal effects. I think that's where mint excels for people; it has been proven to help with Small Intestinal Bacterial Overgrowth (SIBO) and IBS.

Peppermint is available at any health food store (soft gels and liquid extracts) and supermarket (usually as a tea). You can also buy it in the produce section of some supermarkets as fresh whole leaf. The supplements of peppermint oil (enteric coated) are considered a relatively safe, effective traditional holistic remedy. I'm not referring to essential oil, I'm referring to a dietary supplement of peppermint oil that acts as a smooth muscle relaxant inside your intestines, as well as an antispasmodic herb. It is also known to help with gas, bloating and minor cramping.

The latest study published in the August 27, 2019 issue of Gastroenterology was conducted in part, to evaluate the safety and efficacy for peppermint in people with IBS. They used two different formulations that would go to certain parts of the intestine. They got about 190 people to agree to participate, across several hospitals in the Netherlands. This trial ran from 2016 to 2018.

The enteric coated (small intestine release) preparation of peppermint did in fact prove to help reduce abdominal pain, discomfort and general IBS severity.

Here's a few words of caution. The enteric coated form is ideal because plain peppermint oil can irritate the stomach lining and make heartburn and ulcers worse. The enteric coating protects the peppermint oil so that it can get down lower to your intestines (rather than breaking down in your stomach).

Avoid peppermint if you have gastroesophageal reflux disease (GERD), which is a disorder of the lower part of your esophagus. My rationale is because peppermint relaxes your esophageal sphincter and will allow acid to reflux upwards. That's what you are trying to avoid. So antacids and peppermint supplements should not be combined. There are other warnings, so please ask your doctor if this type of herbal remedy is good for you.

Cold And Flu Season

by Ross Hauser, MD and Marion Hauser, MS, RD

Since cold and flu season is already roaring, let's talk immune system. Whether you choose to get the flu shot or not, you can do a lot of things to stimulate your body's immune system so that you can better fight those nasty germs.

Never underestimate the power of natural remedies from grandma. Make "Jewish penicillin," aka chicken soup. Studies have actually shown chicken soup to improve immune function. So, don't knock it. I also add two large pieces of grated turmeric root (yes, found at Bailey's), six to eight cloves chopped fresh garlic, juice and zest from one lemon, and fresh chopped kale and spinach to the usual soup ingredients of chicken, onion, celery, carrots, seasoning and broth. I feel stronger already!

Additional tips to supercharge your immune system (this is best taken two to three days prior to a full-on cold/flu when first exposed) consist of the following supplements, taken throughout the day versus all at once: two to 10 grams of Vitamin C as tolerated (easiest to accomplish with organic Vitamin C powder, available from Amazon); five to 15 grams of Vitamin D; and 20 to 40 grams of Vitamin A. Yes, this is mega-dosing, so please do not take this as medical advice without consulting your provider. But if you do not take enough, the effects will not be as good. Reduce the dose to one per day of each after a few days. We also add elderberry extract and immune support mushroom extract (we like Host Defense MyCommunity Extract).

We also gargle with hydrogen peroxide to kill what's in the back of the throat, take organic raw honey mixed with organic Bragg's apple cider vinegar (also great for coughs), push fluids, get good sleep, eat fresh food (always!), and reduce sugar intake. Say good-bye to those germs for good!

It was established in 1991 by Ross Hauser, MD, and Marion Hauser, MS, RD. They can be reached at info@caringmedical.com.✽✽

Alzheimer's Resource Center Receives Grant

The Claiborne and Ned Foulds Foundation has chosen The Alvin A. Dubin Alzheimer's Resource Center as a recipient of a retained grant in the amount of $2,600. The grant will be used for programming and educational efficiency to purchase laptop computers to increase mobile functionality, flexibility, productivity and the overall efficiency of the Social Workers.

"We are extremely grateful to the Foulds Foundation for empowering our organization, through mobile technology, to be better equipped to provide services to our caregivers in the field," said Robin Goldstone Garcia, executive director of the Alvin A. Dubin Alzheimer's Resource Center.

The Claiborne and Ned Foulds Foundation make grants for projects that are of general benefit to the residents of Lee County. The foundation was established in 1981 by the late Ned and Claiborne Foster Foulds, who moved to Fort Myers in 1958. Ned Foulds was a graduate of Harvard University and retired as a junior executive of the airtemp division of the Chrysler Corporation. Mrs. Foulds was a Broadway star during the 1930s known under her maiden name of Claiborne Foster and starred in more than 20 plays. In recognition of their achievements, the Foulds left their estate in trust to be administered by Bank of America as a 501(c)3 foundation in perpetuity to benefit charitable causes.

A local advisory board reviews all qualified applications and makes annual recommendations to the trustee as to which organization should receive funding and the amount of the grant.

The Alvin A. Dubin Alzheimer's Resource Center, a United Way partner agency, provides information, support and education for individuals with Alzheimer's disease or related memory impairment and their caregivers in Lee and Hendry counties.

The Dubin Alzheimer's Resource Center is located at 12468 Brantley Commons Court in Fort Myers. For more information, visit www.alzheimersswfl.org.

Robotic Surgery Helps Patients Recover Faster

Lee Memorial Hospital is now utilizing an advanced robot for certain types of oncology surgeries at the hospital. The da Vinci XI robot allows doctors to operate by making smaller, more precise incisions, which greatly reduce the stress and trauma patients experience as they recover from surgery.

"Bringing this advanced technology to Lee Memorial Hospital means that more patients are able to receive innovative treatment close to home," said Dr. Scott Wolf, vice president of operations and chief physician executive at Lee Memorial Hospital. "The da Vinci robot is an impressive piece of technology, and we look forward to continuing to expand its uses in an effort to get surgery patients back to their everyday lives as quickly as possible."

The device utilizes robotic arms, and is controlled by the surgeon through the system's 3D high-definition vision system. This system gives surgeons a crystal clear picture of the operation site while maneuvering the robotic instruments that have far greater flexibility than the human hand. Due to its precision, patients receive smaller incisions during the procedure. Patients who qualify for robotic surgery, based on their condition and the size and location of the tumor, typically return to their previous lifestyle faster and with less pain than patients undergoing traditional surgery.

Launched in 2014, the da Vinci XI robot is the fourth generation of Intuitive Surgical's robotic surgery system, and one of the most advanced robotic surgery options on the market. Surgeons at HealthPark Medical Center have already been utilizing the da Vinci XI, and adding a robot to Lee Memorial Hospital increases Lee Health's investment in providing the most technologically advanced health care options for Southwest Florida.

For more information about robotic surgery at Lee Health, or to learn what types of surgeries are currently available via the da Vinci system, visit www.leehealth.org/surgery/davinci-surgery/index.asp.

Baby Grey And Peloton

Baby Grey

Hi There! We are Baby Grey and Peloton. While we aren't biological siblings, we've spent our entire lives together, so we would really like to get adopted together. Baby Grey is a 5-month-old male and Peloton is a 4-month-old female. We've been neutered and spayed and have all of our vaccinations. We are very playful and sweet.

Baby Grey likes to give kisses, and will cuddle and sleep with you – just like a human child. Baby Grey needs a lot of attention and really needs to have another kitty around to help keep him company and play with him. Peloton is very easy going. Baby Grey has extremely soft fur and feels like a marshmallow, while little Peloton is sleek and shiny. Peloton has a white tip at the end of her tail. Baby Grey is a little timid at first, but with a gentle touch, he warms up quickly. He is still learning not to chew on fingers, so he would do best in a home without small children.

We are being cared for by Haven on Earth Animal League. For more information, call Diane at 860-833-4472 or email haveneearthanimalleague@yahoo.com.

TRIVIA ANSWERS

My Stars ★★★★★

FOR WEEK OF OCTOBER 28, 2019

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)

It might not be wise to pursue goals involving others, unless you can stop impulsively rejecting new ideas. Either open your mind or wait until next week, when this “ornery” mood passes.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time for the Bovine to be creative and practical for yourself and your surroundings. Shop wisely, not impulsively, and keep your Bull's eye focused on quality, not quantity.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) You should feel more confident about moving ahead with plans that had to be delayed by an unexpected turn of events. Also, family matters might need more time than first anticipated.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) Be considerate of others as you move into a new area in your professional life. Take time to meet people and discuss mutual goals. The more you get to know each other, the better.

Leo (July 23 to August 22) Creating a fuss could get your ideas noticed quickly. But it would be best to present your case, and then wait for a reaction to follow in due course, rather than try to force it to happen.

Virgo (August 23 to September 22)
Unkept promises might cause plans to go awry this week. You can either grumble about people “letting you down” or find a way to make the best of it and move on. The choice is yours.

Libra (September 23 to October 22)
Putting off making a commitment early in the week could be a good move. It's best to act when you know you're making an informed decision. Expect more facts to emerge by the week's end.

Scorpio (October 23 to November 21) A recent act of kindness on your part could take on special meaning this week. Also, look for signs of upcoming changes in both your personal and professional relationships.

Sagittarius (November 22 to December 21) Many of the tougher communication barriers between you and others in the workplace or at home could begin breaking down this week. Expect some surprises to emerge.

Capricorn (December 22 to January 19) Your “tough love” attitude toward someone you care for could be misunderstood. Try to be less judgmental and show more consideration in the way you relate to that person.

Aquarius (January 20 to February 18) An unexpected workplace challenge could be daunting. But take what you know (and you know more than you realize) and apply it to the problem, and you should see positive results.

Pisces (February 19 to March 20)
Recent relationship changes for both single and paired Pisces continue to influence much of your week. Keep your focus on developing the positive aspects as you move along.

Born This Week: You set your goals with assurance and influence others to follow suit. You would be an excellent philosopher and teacher.

MOMENTS IN TIME

- On Nov. 1, 1512, the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel in Rome, one of Italian artist Michelangelo's finest works, is exhibited to the public for the first time. After demonstrating his mastery of sculpture, Michelangelo was called to Rome in 1508.

- On Oct. 31, 1776, in his first speech before British Parliament since the Americans signed the Declaration of Independence, King George III acknowledges that all is not going well for Britain in the war. The British would formally surrender five years later.

- On Oct. 30, 1938, Orson Welles causes a nationwide panic with his broadcast of War of the Worlds – a realistic radio dramatization of a Martian invasion of Earth. Welles had little idea of the havoc it would cause among radio listeners.

- On Nov. 3, 1948, the Chicago Tribune jumps the gun and mistakenly declares New York Gov. Thomas Dewey the winner of his presidential race with incumbent Harry Truman in a front-page headline: “Dewey Defeats Truman.” Truman would win by 114 electoral votes.

- On Oct. 29, 1956, Israeli armed forces push into Egypt toward the Suez Canal, initiating the Suez Crisis. They would soon be joined by French and British forces. The catalyst for the attack was the nationalization of the Suez Canal by Egyptian leader Gamal Abdel Nasser.

- On Oct. 28, 1965, construction is completed on the Gateway Arch, a spectacular 630-foot-high parabola of stainless steel on the waterfront of St. Louis, Missouri. An internal tram system takes visitors to the top of the arch.

- On Nov. 2, 1982, a fuel truck in a military convoy explodes in the 1.7-mile long Salang Tunnel in Afghanistan, killing an estimated 3,000 people, mostly Soviet soldiers traveling to Kabul. Believing it to be an attack, troops closed both ends of the tunnel, trapping people inside.

STRANGE BUT TRUE

- It was Austrian philosophical author Robert Musil who made the following sage observation: "It's not the genius who is 100 years ahead of his time but average man who is 100 years behind it."
- Here's a sign of our increasingly cluttered lives: When the National Association of Professional Organizers was formed in 1985, it had five members. Today there are more than 3,500 registered organizers with the group.
- Despite many people's assumptions, the word "bayou" doesn't come from French; it's from the Choctaw word "bayuk."
- Those who study such things say that in tunnels that have lighting on the sides rather than above, the placement of those lights can influence the likelihood of people speeding. Evidently, the farther apart the side lights are placed, the faster drivers go.
- Florida famously harbors many species of orchid – and one of them smells so bad that it's been known to make bees sick. It's called the Violent Stench.
- In February of this year, a Japanese man named Yuya Yamada broke his own Guinness World Record for the largest hula hoop spun around the body three consecutive times – the hoop in question measured 17.72 feet in diameter.
- If you harbor overmuch ill will toward your mother-in-law, you could be described as "pentheraphobic."
- It was Britain's Prince Albert who originated the boutonniere. It seems that while they were courting, Queen Victoria offered a small bouquet of flowers to her future husband. Prince Albert used his pocketknife to cut a hole in the lapel of his jacket and put the stems of the bouquet through it.

Wildlife Trafficking Suspects Caught

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) has charged two suspects for poaching thousands of Florida’s native turtles from the wild and selling them illegally in Florida, with final destinations in international markets. These charges represent the state’s largest seizure of turtles in recent history.

“The illegal trade of turtles is having a global impact on many turtle species and our ecosystems. We commend our law enforcement’s work to address the crisis of illegal wildlife trafficking,” said FWC Executive Director Eric Sutton.

“Putting a stop to this criminal enterprise is a significant win for conservation,” said Col. Curtis Brown, head of FWC’s Division of Law Enforcement. “Arresting people engaged in illegal wildlife trafficking supports our environment and legal businesses. It is especially positive and rewarding to be able to release many of the turtles back into the wild.”

“We know that the global black market in live animals includes traffickers smuggling protected species of turtles out of the United States, usually for export to the Asian pet market,” said Dr. Craig Stanford, chairman of the International Union for the Conservation of Nature’s Tortoise and Freshwater Turtle Specialist Group. “This sinister and illegal trade threatens the future of many species of North American animals, and as one of the most threatened animal groups on the planet, turtles are at the forefront of our concern.”

The illegal commercialization of wildlife ranks fourth behind guns, drugs and human smuggling and, in many instances, is connected due to the monetary gain. The International Fund for Animal Welfare estimates illegal wildlife trade in the U.S. at $19 billion annual income.

The FWC launched an undercover investigation after receiving a tip in February 2018. Through surveillance and other investigative tactics, FWC investigators determined that a ring of well-organized wildlife traffickers was illegally catching and selling wild turtles to large-scale reptile dealers and illegal distributors, who shipped most of them overseas on the black market. Fort Myers native Michael Boesenberg, age 39, directed individuals to illegally collect turtles in large numbers; once he had enough turtles on hand he would then sell to a buyer with links to Asian markets.

To fulfill a buyer’s request, these poachers targeted habitats known for the specific species. Over time, they depleted the populations so much that they had to expand into other parts of the state to meet the growing demand. The FWC predicts that turtle populations are most heavily impacted in Lee County, the primary source for the seized turtles, but that the suspects worked with other wildlife traffickers around the state and country. The total negative impacts to wild turtle populations stretch beyond Lee County and Florida.

“Wild turtle populations cannot sustain the level of harvest that took place here,” said Dr. Brooke Talley, the reptile and amphibian conservation coordinator for the FWC. “This will likely have consequences for the entire ecosystem and is a detriment for our citizens and future generations.”

Depending upon the species, the poached turtles sold wholesale for up to $300 each and retailed for as much as $10,000 each in Asia. Evidence indicated turtles sold within one month totaled an estimated $60,000. The sellers received mostly cash, occasionally trading turtles for marijuana products.

The FWC documented more than 4,000 turtles illegally taken and sold over a six-month period, including Florida box turtles, Eastern box turtles, striped mud turtles, Florida mud turtles, chicken turtles, Florida softshell turtles, Gulf Coast spiny softshell turtles, spotted turtles and diamondback terrapins. As a result of a search warrant served on August 12, investigators found the poachers in possession of hundreds of turtles, along with the skull and shell of a protected Kemp’s Ridley sea turtle. The turtles seized had an estimated black market value of $200,000.

All seized animals were evaluated for health and species identification by FWC biologists. Over 600 turtles were returned to the wild, two dozen were quarantined and released at a later date, and a handful were retained by a captive wildlife licensee since they were not native to the area. Nearly 300 of the freed turtles are now part of a long-term monitoring project by the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation.

“SCCF has been conducting research on these turtles for nearly two decades. Thanks to FWC for uncovering this illicit activity that has adversely affected wild turtle populations,” said Chris Lechowicz, wildlife and habitat management program director at SCCF.

Selling wild-caught freshwater turtles is illegal and harvesting them from the wild is specifically regulated by Florida Administrative Code 68A-25.002 (6). Some turtle species may be kept as captive wildlife with the proper permits.

The public can help by reporting suspected wildlife violations to the FWC. To make a report, call Wildlife Alert hotline at 888-404-3922 or text tip@myfwc.com.*
