Land Acquisition A Success

By unanimous vote, Lee County Commissioners on March 21 gave their final approval to funding $1.4 million toward the purchase of 8.15 acres on Sanibel Island's Wulfert Road, a crucial wildlife corridor for the JN "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge. As part of a unique partnership and collaboration, the "Ding" Darling Wildlife Society-Friends of the Refuge (DDWS) raised the remaining $600,000 of the $2 million needed to purchase the parcel, which lies between Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation (SCCF) land and the refuge.

The refuge, by agreement with the county, will maintain the property, which provides habitat for 80 different land and marine species that live or feed on or near this property. The county funding comes from its

"We are thrilled that the commissioners voted to use Conservation 20/20 funds to purchase this land, and that the society could help to make it possible," said Doris

Hardy, DDWS board president. "A special thanks to our past president and island resident, John McCabe, for his time and dedication in working on this collaborative approach – a win-win for everyone, including the wildlife who need this land to survive and thrive."

If not preserved by the refuge, the land could have been developed with as many as five dwellings and one major boat dock with direct access into Pine Island Sound, as already approved by the City of Sanibel.

Species that would have been seriously threatened by development of the uplands, mangrove and estuarine habitat include the gopher tortoise, American oystercatcher, black skimmer, little blue heron, reddish egret, mangrove cuckoo, Florida manatee, smalltooth sawfish, and green and loggerhead sea turtle.

The Power Of Giving Erupts

Zachary Ware, grandson of FISH of SanCap volunteer Laurie Hafener, made a donation to FISH from the sale of his school volcano project.

"Zach spent many hours working on his school project. After he presented it, a teacher was so impressed that he offered to purchase it for his train set," Hafener said.

"I was happy to get some money, and immediately asked if I could donate some of it to FISH. When I visit my grandma, I always help out with the Food Pantry and deliveries to CROW. FISH does a lot for Sanibel and Captiva islands, and I really like what they do for the community. I visit here every year, and I am happy to help out in any way I can," Zach said.

"We are so grateful to Zach for thinking of FISH and for his giving of time and treasure. It's not often that a youngster will donate his hard earned money, and I am personally touched that FISH has been honored by the next generation of giving from our youth. Thank you, Zach, for donating to FISH and taking time away from your vacation to help us out. We are truly moved by your generosity," said Maggi Feiner, FISH president and CEO.

Family Fun Time Is Fast And Furious

The theme on March 22 was Fast Food Night for the LOGOS family ministry at Sanibel Community Church. Children and their families dined on chicken nuggets, tater tots, applesauce and ice cream sandwiches. The Family Fun Time activity was a Fast Food Pizza Relay. For each delivery race, another pizza box was added so the children were carrying multiple pizzas back and forth.

This midweek family ministry happens on Wednesdays from 3:30 to 6:45 p.m. For more information, contact Kathy Cramer at 472-2684 or kathy@sanibelchurch.com.*

Looking Back: Jay Norwood 'Ding' And Penny Darling With Alice O'Brien

Most important to Jay Norwood "Ding" Darling were issues of wildlife exploitation and the destruction of irreplaceable waterfowl habitat. After his death in 1962, the JN "Ding" Darling Foundation was organized to carry on his work, and the JN "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge on Sanibel was set aside in his honor. Sanibel was one of his favorite bird watching locations. Born in the 1890s, Alice O'Brien had made Captiva her winter home since 1932. She was a sportsman and owned her own boat. She most often wore a yachtsman outfit of jacket and trousers; rarely a dress except for very formal occasions. She was active in organizations such as the JN "Ding" Darling Foundation, the Captiva Anti-Erosion Committee and the Captiva Civic Association.

The History Gallery, developed by the Captiva Island Historical Society, features many photos like this. All ages are welcome to step aboard a wooden replica of the old mailboat, Santiva, to capture the spirit of Captiva and learn through graphic and video panels about the events and people that shaped the island. The History Gallery is accessed through the Captiva Memorial Library, located on Chapin Lane and open during library hours.

OBITUARY

ETHEL RITA SINOW

Ethel Rita Sinow of Sanibel, Florida, formerly of Dixon, Illinois, died March 26, 2017.

Graveside services will be held at 2 p.m. on Friday, March 31, 2017 at Shalom Memorial Park in Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Sinow was born April 15, 1924 in Chicago, a daughter of Samuel and Rose Price. She married Sidney Sinow on June 23, 1942. He preceded her in death on December 31, 2001.

She is survived by two sons, Dr. Jack (Violetta) Sinow of Lafayette, California and Dr. David (Carole) Sinow of Mahomet, Illinois; one brother, Dr. Charles Price of Redondo Beach, California; four grandchildren, Renee Mandelbaum of Highland Park, Illinois, Megan Colston of Salt Lake, Utah, Victor Sinow of Oakland, California, and Stephanie Wilson of Walnut Creek, California; and four great grandchildren, Liam and Annelise Wilson and Hudson and Reese Mandelbaum.

Mrs. Sinow will be remembered for devotion to her family and especially her husband of 59 years, her concern for her many friends, love of music, dance, the arts and her philanthropic commitment to many charitable organizations.

From age 7, Mrs. Sinow began studying piano in earnest, and at the age of 12 gave her first public piano concert in Orchestra Hall in Chicago. After graduating Hyde Park High School at 16, she continued her piano studies at the Chicago Music College and Roosevelt University. Thereafter, she periodically gave piano concerts for the next 60 years in venues throughout the United States including Chicago, Illinois, Hot Springs, Arkansas, Naples and Sanibel, Florida. She even performed as a classical pianist on a cruise ship, which cruised the Mediterranean and the Greek Isles. Many of her concerts were major charitable events, which raised hundreds of thousands of dollars for important philanthropic causes. While devoting herself to her sons and husband, she still carved out several hours a day to practice the piano as she always said, "The first day you don't practice, you know it. The second day you don't practice, your teachers know it. The third day you don't practice, the world knows it!"

Mrs. Sinow raised her family in Dixon, Illinois and was an enthusiastic participant in the community. Prior to moving to Sanibel as a full-time resident, she was an active member of the Dixon Music Club, the Phidian Art Club, the Dixon Country Club, Temple Shalom, and Hadassah.

After vacationing on Sanibel for many years, Mr. and Mrs. Sinow moved there permanently in the mid-1990s. Immediately, Mrs. Sinow became enamored with the famous shelling on the island and began self-collecting in earnest. She became very active with the Bailey-Matthews National Shell Museum, where she was recently honored for more than 20 years of service to the public as a docent. Moreover, on behalf of the Lee County Florida Visitor and Convention Bureau, Mrs. Sinow appeared in a national television campaign where she portrayed a tourist shelling on the beaches of Sanibel. Additionally, she was a major supporter of BIG ARTS of Sanibel and a member of Bat Yam Synagogue of Sanibel.

Memorial contributions can be made to the Bailey-Matthews National Shell Museum, 3075 Sanibel-Captiva Road, Sanibel, FL 33957.*

recreation, wildlife and worship. The beginnings of the fishing and hospitality industries also will be addressed.

The Heritage Trail is sponsored by the City of Sanibel, its Historical Preservation Committee, and the Sanibel Public Library, the Lee County Tourist Development Commission, the Southwest Florida Community Foundation, and the Florida Humanities Council. It will be accessible to all island residents and visitors and will emphasize the resourcefulness, persistence, hard work and strong values of those associated with Sanibel's heritage.

The program will open with a PowerPoint presentation by Craig Chandler of the Sanibel Planning Department, followed by Don Adams, Heritage Trail coordinator, who will discuss how the trail was developed, including the extensive research that was conducted over a period of five years to assure the accuracy and inclusiveness of the trail's presentations. Members of the Sanibel Historical Preservation Committee will share their personal behind-the-scenes experiences from decades of living Sanibel's history.

Twilight Talk tickets are available for $10 per person. Make your reservation by calling Emilie at 472-4648, or email info@sanibelmuseum.org. Proceeds support the Sanibel Historical Museum and Village.

The historical village is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays. The village is located at 950 Dunlop Road, next to BIG ARTS. Admission is $10 for adults 18 and older; those under 18 and members are admitted free. Docent-guided tours are available at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. at no extra charge, based upon docent availability. There is handicap access to all buildings except the Post Office. The Sanibel River Past, Present And Future

submitted by the City of Sanibel Natural Resources Department

The Sanibel Slough, known to most island residents as the Sanibel River, is a unique feature – one that is not present on most barrier islands. It is believed that the slough was formed roughly 1,000 to 1,500 years ago as ridges formed across the landscape and fed water to the low lying swales, creating the island's interior wetland system. Historically, the Sanibel Slough was separated by low beach ridges south of Tarpon Bay, which shaped two separate east and west basins. These two distinct sub-basins coalesced only during times of high water stages. The slough was never a true river; it was merely a catchment basin for water storage. However, in more recent years, human alteration has not only changed the course of the "river," it has transformed the ecosystem and impacted the ecological health of the slough.

In the 1940s, the land around the Sanibel Slough was relatively untouched by development. The interior wetlands surrounding the slough were an open, grassy and essentially treeless ecosystem aside from a few cabbage palms that could be found on the higher ridges. Cordgrass was the dominant plant in the low-lying areas along with sawgrass, bead grass, water-hyssop and sea purslane, while shrubs, such as salt bush, were present at slightly higher elevations. The slough was an important refuge that provided food and habitat for much of Sanibel's native wildlife. However, as time marched on into the 1950s, the Sanibel Slough would never again be the system it once was.

The transformation of the Sanibel Slough began at the peak of Sanibel Island's war on mosquitoes. Maurice Provost, an entomologist for what is now called the Lee County Mosquito Control District, studied the biology of the salt marsh mosquito on Sanibel Island. At the time of his research, Sanibel Island was known as "the world's greatest pest hell-hole." Provost and his research team captured 365,696 mosquitoes in one single light trap thus confirming Sanibel's mosquito problem. The mosquito researchers believed the slow runoff of water into the shallow interior wetlands created the ultimate mosquito breeding grounds. Provost's solution: dig the slough deeper and connect all the parts, so the Mosquito Control District could regulate water levels and allow fish that prey on mosquitoes to have free range of the system. In the mid 1950s, the district began digging drainage ditches, and by 1961, the original Tarpon Bay water control structure was completed, the final step in connecting the entire slough system. The result of these actions would forever change the landscape surrounding the Sanibel Slough.

By the 1970s, the Sanibel Slough's historical habitat diversity was a thing of the past. Cordgrass and saw grass disappeared from the low-lying swales, and was quickly replaced by buttonwoods, wax myrtle, and sea oxeye daises. In the now deepened slough, cattails, spatterdock, hydrilla, chara and duckweed became common vegetation. The alteration allowed Brazilian pepper to dominate the landscape, a plant that is very effective in out-competing native vegetation. These changes were all prompted by the lowering of the water table, a result of the Mosquito Control District's actions.

As development efforts on Sanibel escalated, the health of the slough started to deteriorate. In 1973, development increased 70 percent from the previous year. The Sanibel Slough experienced unregulated dredging, and vegetation was cleared on both sides to make way for development. The expansion of impervious surfaces, the lack of vegetated banks, as well as the practice of "mosquito ditching" increased the rate of stormwater runoff and reduced percolation of freshwater into the surficial aquifer for storage. In The Sanibel Report of 1976, John Clark reported Sanibel's surface water was substandard. He attributed the degraded water quality to poorly functioning package plants, leaky septic tanks, and the excess use of fertilizers and pesticides which added a surplus of nutrients and pollutants to the slough. The nutrients that entered the Sanibel Slough evoked the proliferation of algae, which in turn led to depleted oxygen levels and fish kills due to the bacterial decomposition of the algae. It became evident that something had to be done to prevent this from becoming a pattern.

Fortunately, a group of environmental stakeholders made it their goal to protect this exceptional natural resource. In 1967, the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation (SCCF) was formed with the core mission of preserving Sanibel's unique interior freshwater system. Among SCCF's first land purchases were the wetlands along the Sanibel Slough; the foundation acquired 500 parcels over 40 years. In 1974, the City of Sanibel incorporated and later adopted the Sanibel Plan, a comprehensive landuse plan principally based on protecting the island's natural resources. City codes were established that put development restrictions on the slough corridor. In 1994, modifications were made to the water control structures on Sanibel, bringing the water table closer to historic levels. By the early 2000s, 90 percent of the Sanibel Slough was under conservation. The stakeholders continued their efforts to restore the slough through various projects, such as habitat restoration, and those efforts continue on today. Unfortunately, even as those conservation efforts moved forward, declines in water quality and wildlife populations in the slough have been reported as recently as the late 1990s. Restoration efforts currently under way by the city and its conservation partners are designed to restore the natural hydrology, improve water quality and enhance wildlife habitat throughout the slough.

Water quality in the Sanibel Slough is affected by a number of past and present-day factors. Today, water quality in the slough is considered "impaired" by the Florida Department of Environmental Protection as a result of elevated nutrient concentrations (i.e., nitrogen and phosphorus) and low dissolved oxygen. Nitrogen and phosphorus originating from septic tanks, stormwater runoff from lawns, landscapes, golf courses and roadways, and municipal reuse water used for irrigation have contributed to this impairment. There are also a number of natural sources of nutrients that also contribute to the productivity of the Sanibel Slough, including wetland plants and wildlife that inhabit the interior freshwater wetlands of Sanibel.

Since incorporation in 1974, the City of Sanibel has implemented projects and policies aimed at protecting and improving water quality in the Sanibel Slough and the coastal waters surrounding the island. Arguably one of Sanibel's greatest accomplishments to protect on-island water quality was the acquisition of more than two-thirds of the entire island for conservation purposes. This was made possible through a strong partnership between the City, the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation and the JN "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge. The island partners work in concert to manage conservation lands for wildlife habitat and to monitor the health of the island's unique ecosystems. This includes extensive water quality monitoring within the Sanibel Slough and bayous, and the surrounding coastal waters. The

Women Of St. Michael's Host Deanery

St. Michael & All Angels Episcopal Church hosted members of the Fort Myers Episcopal Church Deanery on March 20 for a luncheon meeting and lecture. The Fort Myers Deanery is comprised of 11 Episcopal churches in Cape Coral, Fort Myers, Fort Myers Beach, LaBelle, Lehigh Acres, North Fort Myers, Sanibel and Pine Island.

The featured speaker was Carol Kramer, an Ojibway Elder. Kramer was born and raised on the Ojibway reservation in Pine Point, Minnesota. She provided insights on the spirituality of the Ojibway people, indigenous Native North Americans, who are perhaps better known as Chippewa.

Dressed in hand-beaded clothing, with headband and traditional moccasins, Kramer related stories, memories and anecdotes about her life on the reservation, and after leaving it. She described dancing in traditional powwows and healing by means of traditional medicine. Kramer also recounted her journey to learn about, and accept, traditional Ojibway beliefs along with her Episcopal faith, which she described as her dual spiritual heritage.

Central to her presentation was the examination of seven spiritual gifts that are key elements of Ojibway spirituality:

Guest speaker Carol Kramer related stories about her life as an Ojibway Elder Honoring the Great Creator; Wisdom, Forgiveness and Serenity; Humor; Respect for Elders; Nurture of Children; Generosity; Mysticism and Dreams. About the importance of generosity, Kramer said, "The highest compliment you can pay any of the Ojibway people is to call them generous."

Kramer continues to dance in Ojibway powwows, having begun this practice at age 9. She still participates in Ojibway dance as an 80-year-old. Upon returning home to Pine Point last fall for her 70th powwow, she was honored as the oldest traditional female dancer. This visit also marked her participation in a 5K memorial run, which she finished in 45 minutes, to the delight of family and friends.

Betsy McCullough, president of the Women of St. Michaels, welcomed the members and introduced Nancy Terrell, Fort Myers ECW Deanery director. Terrell requested volunteers for a committee to recommend replacement candidates for her position, when her term ends in November 2017. Leila Mizer, Tampa ECW Deanery director, gave a short presentation on the successes of Cornerstone Kids, a comprehensive after-school program for Lee County elementary school children. The Reverend Dr. Ellen Sloan, rector of St. Michaels, led the group in a brief communion service.

A luncheon, catered by Bailey's, followed the presentation in the Parish Hall. Noah's Ark re-opened after the luncheon to accommodate deanery shoppers, marking, for many, their first visit to the thrift store.

For more information about the activities of the Women of St. Michael's, contact Rector Ellen Sloan at 472-2173 or visit www.saintmichaels-sanibel.org.*

'Raptor Whisperer' To Share Insights At Lecture

Author Craig A. Koppie will discuss his role in the DC Eagle Cam Project photo provided

Author and bald eagle savior Craig A. Koppie will appear at JN "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge on Friday, April 7 following the release of his latest co-authored book, Mr. President and the First Lady: The DC Eagle Cam Project.

As part of the 2017 "Ding" Darling Lecture Series, Koppie will present two free lectures at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. about his longtime fascination with raptor nests, his work restoring decimated bald eagle populations in the late 1970s, and his part in installing the live eagle cam at the United States National Arboretum in Washington, DC in 2015.

A wildlife biologist with the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service for more than 30 years, Koppie has also written, along with Teena Ruark Gorrow, the award-winning Inside a Bald Eagle's Nest and, later, Inside an Osprey's Nest. He has been climbing into nests since age 16 to rescue orphaned birds, relocate chicks from Canada to the U.S. as part of the National Wildlife Federation's successful effort to save bald eagles from extinction, and observe the tender and parenting side of our fierce national bird.

Following his presentations, Koppie will be signing copies of his books. They are available for purchase in the Refuge Nature Store, proceeds from which benefit wildlife, research, and education at "Ding" Darling.

HighTower/Thomas & Swartz Wealth Management sponsors the free 12-lecture series with support from the "Ding" Darling Wildlife Society-Friends of the Refuge (DDWS).

Seating for the lectures in the "Ding" Darling Visitor & Education Center Auditorium is limited and available on a first-come basis. Early arrivals can save one seat each and then may explore the Visitor & Education Center or Indigo Trail before the lecture starts. Saved seats must be filled 15 minutes before lecture time.

As usual, Wildlife Drive closes on Friday, but visitors are welcome to explore the center, Indigo Trail and recreational opportunities at Tarpon Bay Explorers, the refuge's official recreation concession located at Tarpon Bay Recreation Area.

Note: Opinions expressed in guest lectures do not necessarily reflect the views of refuge and DDWS management, staff and board of directors.

For more information, call 472-1100 ext. 241 or log on to dingdarlingsociety.org/articles/lecture-and-film-series.

The final lecture of the season:

April 14 - Author Charles Sobczak, Alligators, Sharks, & Panthers: Deadly Encounters with Florida's Top Predator - Man.✱

City Seeking Public Input On Water Bodies

The City of Sanibel, in conjunction with the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation (SCCF) Marine Lab, has finished water quality sampling in lakes and ponds across the island as part of the Sanibel Communities for Clean Water Program.

This program will provide the public, city council and city staff baseline data on the status of water quality within water bodies throughout the island. Data collected will be presented on an interactive website, which will allow Sanibel residents to see how their community lake ranks in water quality, based on United States EPA and FDEP numerical nutrient criteria, when compared to other water bodies on the island as well as state standards.

This data is currently available through the city's water quality website www.mysanibel.com/Departments/Natural-Resources/Protecting-Our-Water-Quality/Sanibel-H2O-Matters.

Residents will be able to examine their role in protecting water quality, and how their actions can improve the health of their lakes, wetlands and other water bodies. The program will recommend Best Management Practices (BMPs) to improve water quality tailored to each individual community with the goal that residents will adopt these voluntary environmentally friendly measures.

In addition, the City of Sanibel would like to gather information regarding current lake and pond management practices in community lakes to better assess the needs of each community. Data collected will be used to guide residents and Homeowners Associations (HOAs) towards the implementation of environmentally sensitive BMPs.

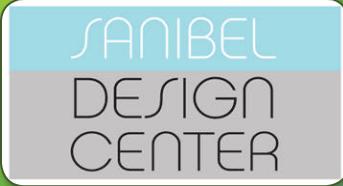

The survey is available online at www.surveymonkey.com/r/2HNFK73. It may be returned electronically to dana.dettmar@mysanibel.com, via the mail or dropped off to the Department of Natural Resources at Sanibel City Hall, 800 Dunlop Road, Sanibel, FL 33957.*

Plant Smart

Rougeplant

Although usually a shrub, rougeplant might grow to small-tree stature native member of the pokeweed family couldn't be prettier or easier to get along with.

In the wild, rougeplant grows in woods, hammocks, disturbed areas and along roadsides.

This perennial evergreen shrub usually grows one to five feet, but can grow to six feet or higher. Adaptable to a sunny or shady spot, it remains attractive all year because the ornamental fruit and flowers are usually present on the plant simultaneously.

The wavy ovate or lanceolate leaves are alternate with long-tapered points.

The three- to six-inch upright spikes of showy flowers are pink or pinkish white. They appear at the branch ends and bloom throughout the year.

Individual flowers measure only about one-eighth of an inch across. What appear to be four petals are actually sepals, petal-like structures.

Green berries ripen to a shiny brilliant red, are nearly translucent and are only a little bigger than the flowers.

The red fruit juice has been used as dye and inspires another common name, bloodberry.

This plant does best in a natural landscape where it isn't subjected to repeated pruning or shaping. It will grow in nutrient-poor soil but needs some organic content to thrive.

Once established, it is moderately drought-tolerant. It is also somewhat salt-tolerant, so it can be used in coastal landscapes if it's protected from flooding, spray, and wind.

Medicinal uses include a tea that is made from the leaves and used to treat diarrhea.

Propagate with the seedlings and with cuttings.

Guided Native Vegetation Tours

The City of Sanibel Vegetation Committee is offering guided native vegetation and landscaping tours of city hall grounds, planted exclusively with native plants.

Tours of city hall grounds will be held on Wednesday, April 12 as well as on Saturday, April 22, both beginning at 10 a.m.

Walk the grounds for ideas on planting native vegetation that requires no fertilizer. See how to plant a garden that reseeds itself with very little maintenance, is good for the environment and will attract birds and butterflies.

Vegetation committee members will provide valuable information on proper planting and care of native vegetation. The City of Sanibel encourages planting of vegetation that is indigenous to the area as it requires very little maintenance, no fertilizer and no supplemental irrigation.

Registration is not required. Attendees meet at the main entrance to Sanibel City Hall, located at 800 Dunlop Road, in front of the main staircase. For more information, contact the city's natural resources department at 472-3700.

The Natural Resources Department section of the city's website, www.mysanibel.com, offers information and photos of native plants, a listing of licensed contractors, Sanibel's vegetation standards and codes, and the Environmental Reference Handbook prepared by the city's vegetation committee. The vegetation committee also offers free native plant tours of the grounds at city hall at 10 a.m. on the second Wednesday and fourth Saturday of the month from November to April. Air Potato Is Not Your Ordinary Potato

One of Florida's most troublesome invaders is the air potato (Dioscorea bulbifera), a member of the family of the true yams. Air potato, like most yams, is a vine which cannot support its own weight. In order to capture sunlight, the air potato ascends by twining and climbing other plants. Air potato forms dense canopies that can shade out vegetation, and cause the collapse of native plants. It can grow up to 70 feet in one season, starting from the previous season's tubers. These tubers, also referred to as bulbils, closely resemble potatoes, and grow attached to stems; appearing in mid-summer and falling to the ground in late fall when the vines die back. The potatoes lie dormant until the following spring when they sprout, and begin the cycle again.

Found in Asia, Africa and the United States, air potatoes thrive all over Florida, which of course, includes Sanibel Island. Sanibel has included air potato on its list of regulated invasive, exotic plants. These plants must be removed when a property is developed, and the property must be maintained free of these invasive, exotics in perpetuity.

Unfortunately, air potatoes are extremely difficult to eradicate. Herbicides, such as Brush-B-Gone, do temporarily halt the growth of the vine, but require repeated applications and careful protection of desirable neighboring plants. Hand picking the potatoes and digging up the roots may slow down next year's vines and crop tubers, but a few missed tubers can mean failure. Do not dispose of potatoes or vines in vegetative waste.

The best hope for stopping this creeping vine, which can quickly suffocate trees and bushes, appears to be a tiny red and black beetle (Liloceris cheni or Lili beetle) with a voracious appetite for air potato leaves. Since releasing several hundred thousand beetles, Florida has seen a significant reduction in these vines. Beetles are available to residents and municipalities, free of charge, from the Florida Department of Agriculture (<http://bcrc1.ifas.ufl.edu/airpotatofiles/airpotatofirms.shtml>).

A Week Of Struggles

by Capt. Matt Mitchell

This week provided some of the tougher fishing days I have experienced in quite some time. This was due not only to one of the worst tide patterns I have seen for months, but also periods of crazy strong winds. Although we did manage to catch fish every trip out, nothing came easily and once we did locate and catch a few fish, it just quickly came to an end. If variety was what you were after, it wasn't all bad as black drum, flounder, bluefish and even a few pompano were all part of a very unpredictable and strange mix bag of the week.

Bringing live shrimp was the game-saving play on quite a few trips this week. This is after we worked really hard and caught only a few snook here and there on live shiner. We just had to switch it up. Fishing shrimp under a popping cork for trout, free-lining them for mangrove snapper or even bouncing them on a jig across the bottom is what it took to get on any kind of real action. When things get tough like it did for several days, it was hard to beat a shrimp for bait. Luckily, we don't have to deal with such bad tide conditions very often for more than just a few hours. One day, midweek, we had a 16-hour incoming tide. That's as bad as it ever gets.

Hiding from the wind back in sheltered mangrove creeks and bays was where I spent most of my week. I really slowed down my fishing style and worked every little bit of mangrove shoreline. This seemed to be what it took to make a difference and catch a few fish. Usually I bounce from spot to spot at a pretty fast pace looking for a wide-open bite while chumming and casting live shiners to feeding fish. This week, this just did not work for me. It was more a matter of taking my time and grinding it out using a variety of baits and techniques to catch a few fish here and there. Once we did get a bite, I'd stay put and get as much out of it as possible as any kind of bite was just hard to find.

As a tougher than usual week came to an end, not only did our tides get a whole lot better, we experienced a major warm up with a much more settled weather

Chris Krimendahl from Holland, Michigan with a snook that was just under slot size caught and released this week

pattern. Consistent weather conditions allowed fishing to get in a whole lot more consistent pattern too. If our weather continues to cooperate, gamefish will be making that move from the winter hangouts towards the passes. Look for the best action to be anywhere from the deeper creek mouths to the mangrove islands and oyster bars in the middle sound as they move into open water areas to feed. As conditions continue to warm, it's just about time to start targeting our local passes again for a wide variety of species including snook, trout and redfish.

Capt. Matt Mitchell has been fishing local waters since he moved to Sanibel in 1980. He now lives in St. James City and works as a back country fishing guide. If you have comments or questions, email captmattmitchell@aol.com.*

Anders Moderates Symposium

by Jeff Lysiak

On March 22, the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation (SCCF) hosted a casual but eye-opening group discussion on what people think about the meaning of "home," whether that means the place they grew up, the location where they currently live, or an entirely different destination.

Kristie Anders, SCCF's environmental education director, moderated the 90-minute interactive chat – called Finding Home: A Sense of Place – which explored the idea of connecting oneself within a community, and what it means to invest your time and energy into a place.

Sitting beneath shady trees next to the Butterfly House, Anders began the discussion by asking the participants, "Where is home?" The answers ranged from far away towns where people spent their younger days to their current residential cities.

"Is it where your parents are or is it the place where you grew up," asked Anders, who first held the symposium at SCCF 30 years ago. "And how motivated are you to protect that place you call home? What does it take for you to embrace the new environment and community you move into?"

After conducting an exercise in which the group was asked to draw their geographic image of the state of Florida, then – without any assistance – pinpoint the location of several cities and landmarks, Anders distributed a worksheet. Sitting in near silence, save for the chirping of a nearby cardinal, participants were invited to seek out what signals, sensations and tensions they felt in relation to colors, motions, desires, temperature, thirst and hunger beyond the five senses: sight, smell, touch, sound and taste.

"Do senses help you identify home?" the worksheet questioned. "For instance, is there a particular color that you identify with home? Does the color match with a

Locals Enjoying Benefits Of Biking

As part of the City of Sanibel's multi-faceted Traffic Communications Strategy, residents and visitors are encouraged to "Bike Or Hike" to their destination during season to avoid traffic delays and help reduce congestion on Island roadways.

Part owner of Tarpon Bay Explorers Nature Tours & Rentals, Wendy Schnapp, rides her bike three miles to and from work each day. "I'm religious about it," she said.

In addition to helping her get home faster during season and providing great exercise, Schnapp said another benefit of biking to work is being closer to nature she might miss out on if she were driving her car.

"This week, I've spotted marsh rabbits, a bald eagle and my favorite raptor - a kestrel," said Schnapp, who is so committed to island biking that she developed a promotion and spread the word through the Sanibel & Captiva Islands Chamber of Commerce and the islands' resorts: Visitors who arrive at Tarpon Bay Explorers via bicycle receive a reusable water bottle.

Other Tarpon Bay Explorers employees ride their bikes to work, including island resident Ty Symroski, who has led guided nature tours at Tarpon Bay Explorers for more than three years.

Symroski first worked in the City of Sanibel's Planning Department in the 1970s. "That was back when the Sanibel Plan was developed, which included the bike paths," he said. Forty years later, he uses those same paths as he bikes from his home on Bay Drive to Tarpon Bay Explorers. "It takes about 30 minutes," he said. "But I can get here in 20 if I need to."

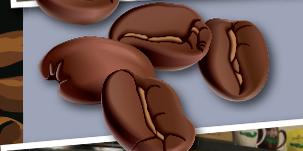

"Biking is the best way to get around Sanibel, especially in season," added Schnapp. "I wave to staff members waiting in their cars on Tarpon Bay Road as I ride past them."*

CROW Case Of The Week:

Virginia Opossum

by Bob Petcher

The Virginia opossum (Didelphis virginiana) is a dinosaur among mammals. It has been around longer than 70 million years and is regarded as one of the planet's oldest surviving vertebrate animals.

This particular opossum is actually North America's only marsupial, an animal with a pouch.

Known as the North American opossum, the Virginia opossum is about the size of a domestic cat, solitary in nature and mostly a nocturnal animal with tracks that generally show five finger-like toes in both the fore and hind prints, although it has claws on all its fingers except on the two thumbs.

Like a monkey, the opossum uses its tail to hang from tree branches. These "prehensile" tails are specially adapted for grasping, wrapping and hanging.

Another special trait of the Virginia opossum is its ability to react to threats by pretending to be dead. Known as "playing possum," it enters a near coma state after flopping to its side with mouth and eyes open, tongue hanging out and discharging a green fluid that accompanies a putrid odor from its anus to repel predators. Within this state, its heart rate also drops considerably, and its rate of breathing slows by a good 30 percent. However, its brain activity is unaltered, and it remains fully conscious. When it doesn't play possum, it can still react ferociously by hissing, screeching and showing its teeth in an intimidating manner.

Interestingly, the Virginia opossum has been found to be very resistant to snake venom. Its keen sense of smell is effective in locating food.

The omnivorous mammal eats just about anything, including lots of different plants and animals. On occasion, it will eat garbage and dead animals. Because so much of the so-called carrion is road kill, opossums are often struck and killed by cars while looking for food on roadways.

A male adult Virginia opossum that arrived at the CROW clinic on March 3 from Fort Myers most likely was injured by a vehicle. CROW officials reported it was bleeding and had multiple injuries including a fractured tail, puncture wounds on its back and a fractured jaw.

After an initial exam, the patient was fitted with a feeding tube. Surgery on the jaw was performed later that week. A wire was used to help heal the fracture. The following week, the opossum began eating a liquid diet on its own and the feeding tube was removed.

"The surgery went well and was relatively simple. We passed a wire through the lower mandible (jaw) and anchored it around the lower canine (tooth) to stabilize the fracture site," said

Patient #17-476 had his jaw wired after surgery. The x-ray shows the work done.

CROW intern Dr. Spencer Kehoe.

CROW medical staff explained the next steps in the long recovery of the patient are to remove the wires once the jaw has stabilized and teach it how to eat solid food again. It may take between one to two months before the opossum can be evaluated for release, although the patient has done well through the healing process to this point.

"It may take six to eight weeks after placing the wire for the fracture site to stabilize enough to remove it if there are no further complications," said Dr.

Kehoe. "He will have to adjust to eating hard foods again since his jaw will not be 100 percent, but the act of eating itself he will remember."

Shell Of The Week

Eastern Beaded Chiton

by José H. Leal, PhD, Bailey-Matthews National Shell Museum Science Director and Curator

Last week, I introduced the Striate glass-hair chiton, mentioning that that species was the less common of two local shallow-water species of chitons. Today, I present the other species, the more commonly found eastern beaded chiton, Chaetopleura apiculata (Say, 1838). Chitons belong to a class of mollusks named the Polyplacophora (Greek for “bearers of many plates”). The chiton shell is divided into eight (rarely seven) plates, or valves. The valves are interlocked, and are surrounded by a tissue called the girdle. The eastern beaded chiton may reach one inch in size. As the common name implies, the external surface of the valves are covered with minute beads. The valves are only minimally covered by a narrow girdle (the girdle itself is covered with microscopic scales). The color in this species is very variable: valves may be orange, pink, cream, green, gray or showing many combinations of these colors. The chitons in the illustration were collected inside valves of pen shells by José H. Leal and Kim Nealon on Turner Beach (Captiva) in December 2003. Learn more about local mollusks at <http://shellmuseum.org/shells/southwest-florida-shells>.

Attention Sanibel/Captiva Gardeners

On Thursday, April 6 at the Sanibel Public Library at 10 a.m., Stephen Brown will present a program titled Landscaping with Florida Native Plants (palms, trees, shrubs, vines and wildflowers): Designs Selections and Pleasures. He will discuss the correct plants for sun or shade, salty or dry conditions or as understory companion plants with superb digital photography.

Brown has been the horticultural program leader for Southwest Florida for 26 years and is unquestionably an expert on native plants. He is a frequent visitor and consultant to Sanibel and Captiva to monitor potential problems and to advise the city’s Department of Natural Resources and SCCF. For over 20 years, he was the program leader and coordinator of the Master Gardener program for the University of Florida for Southwest Florida and graduated over 250 Master Gardeners in Lee County. He is responsible for instruction and certification of all landscape professionals who apply fertilizers, pesticides, herbicides and fungicides in Lee County.

Additionally, Brown is the recognized expert in Southwest Florida on palms, flowering trees and shrubs, and serves as a consultant to many cities, destination resorts, regional parks, preserves and commercial plantations and nurseries.

In his spare time, Brown writes a lively Q&A column in the News-Press weekly and a monthly article in Florida Gardener. He maintains a free informative website with amazing videos and downloadable fact sheets. His presentations are informative, up to date, lively and always accompanied by excellent photography.

This is your only opportunity to listen and learn and ask questions of a Southwest Florida expert on landscaping with native plants.

Free and open to the public, seating is limited at the Sanibel Public Library, located at 770 Dunlop Road.

CROW Calendar Of Events

The Clinic for the Rehabilitation of Wildlife (CROW) has specialty programs available for residents and visitors. Meet the staff and learn what it takes to rescue, rehabilitate and release wildlife in Southwest Florida.

For reservations, contact Rachel Rainbolt at rrainbolt@crowclinic.org or 472-3644 ext. 229 to register. Hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. CROW is located at 3883 Sanibel-Captiva Road.

Friday, March 31, 11 a.m., adults $7, teens $5, 12 and under no charge – Opossums at CROW (daily presentation).

Virginia opossums are the only marsupial, or pouched mammal, native to the United States. They are highly adaptable animals and can live in a variety of habitats, both natural and human made. Although it may not be obvious to some people, opossums are a unique member of Florida's wildlife, playing an important role in the function of a healthy ecosystem. One of CROW's animal ambassadors will be present.

Friday, March 31, 2 p.m., adults $7, teens $5, 12 and under no charge – Wild About Rehabilitation, presented by CROW staff (daily presentation).

After a patient stabilizes in the hospital, CROW's rehabilitation staff provides them with a combination of balanced diet, husbandry and physical therapy. This supportive care is necessary to ensure success during the final step in the rehabilitation process. Ask the staff how they work their magic. One of CROW's animal ambassadors will be present.

Friday, March 31, 2 to 3:30 p.m., $20 per person, advance registration required – Wildlife Walk with Rehabilitators and Staff (hospital tour).

Wildlife Walks are approximately 1.5 hours: a 45-minute presentation with a 45-minute tour. Not recommended for children under the age of 13. Photography opportunity following the tour with an animal ambassador.

Saturday, April 1, 11 a.m., adults $7, teens $5, 12 and under no charge – Baby Care at CROW, presented by a CROW volunteer (daily presentation).

Wildlife parents are devoted to the care of their young and rarely abandon them, and juveniles found "abandoned" might actually be in a natural stage of development. Those needing assistance are placed in a specialized wing of the wildlife hospital and are provided supportive care around the clock until they are old enough to care for themselves.

Saturday, April 1, 2 p.m., adults $7, teens $5, 12 and under no charge – Wildlife Rescue 101 (daily presentation).

After a patient stabilizes in the hospital, CROW's rehabilitation staff provides them with a combination of balanced diet, husbandry and physical therapy. Supportive care is necessary to ensure success during the final stage in the rehabilitation process. Ask the staff how they work their magic. One of CROW's animal ambassadors will be present.

Monday, April 3, 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., $20 per person, advance registration required – Wildlife Walk with Rehabilitators and Staff (hospital tour).

Wildlife Walks are approximately 1.5 hours: a 45-minute presentation with a 45-minute tour. Not recommended for children under the age of 13. Photography opportunity following the tour with an animal ambassador.

Monday, April 3, 11 a.m., adults $7, teens $5, 12 and under no charge – Opossums at CROW (daily presentation).

Virginia opossums are the only marsupial, or pouched mammal, native to the United States. They are highly adaptable animals and can live in a variety of habitats, both natural and human made. Although it may not be obvious to some people, opossums are a unique member of Florida's wildlife, playing an important role in the function of a healthy ecosystem. One of CROW's animal ambassadors will be present.

Monday, April 3, 2 p.m., adults $7, teens $5, 12 and under no charge – CROW Case of the Week, presented by a CROW student (daily presentation).

CROW's teaching hospital offers externship, fellowship and internship opportunities for natural science and veterinary medicine students. While on site, students learn the ins and outs of conservation medicine and wildlife rehabilitation, and share their favorite patient stories. One of CROW's animal ambassadors will be present.

Monday, April 3, 4 to 4:15 p.m., adults $10, teens $5, 12 and under no charge, advance registration required – Speaker Series: The Feather Wars, presented by Jim Powers, research historian for Southwest Florida Museum of History.

A 50-year war was fought in South Florida from 1870 to 1920 with unfathomable casualties. The world beyond South Florida was slow to recognize the one-sided belligerency fought in the swamps and wetlands of the expansive Florida Everglades. Cracker settlers grabbed their shotguns, and professional hunters and wealthy tourists eagerly joined exporters to form an army of profiteers. Initially, the opposition army was avian alone and could only scatter or fly away because their plumage was considered fashionable and was of greater monetary value than an equal weight of gold.

Tuesday, April 4, 11 a.m., adults $7, teens $5, 12 and under no charge – Wild About Rehabilitation, presented by CROW staff (daily presentation).

After a patient stabilizes in the hospital, CROW's rehabilitation staff provides them with a combination of balanced diet, husbandry and physical therapy. This supportive care is necessary to ensure success during the final step in the rehabilitation process. Ask the staff how they work their magic.

Tuesday, April 4, 2 p.m., adults $7, teens $5, 12 and under no charge – Birds of Prey, presented by CROW staff (daily presentation).

Raptors are birds that prey on other animals in the wild to survive. Their specialized beaks and talons make them some of the most effective hunters. This presentation discusses the unique adaptations of the native and migratory raptors of Florida. One of CROW's animal ambassadors will be present.

Tuesday, April 4, 2 to 3:30 p.m., $20 per person, advance registration required – Wildlife Walk with Rehabilitators and Staff (hospital tour).

Wildlife Walks are approximately 1.5 hours: a 45-minute presentation with a 45-minute tour. Not recommended for children under the age of 13. Photography opportunity following the tour with an animal ambassador.

Refuge Birding Tour Doesn't Disappoint

by Jeff Lysiak

One of the things that Carl Werner, longtime volunteer docent at the JN "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge, enjoys most about leading the semi-weekly Birding the Refuge Tour is that – much like the proverbial box of chocolates – “you never know what you’re gonna get.”

During the March 23 excursion – which is offered Tuesdays and Thursdays at 8:30 a.m. through April 23 – Werner shared his knowledge of local avian species, which he has done to help educate refuge guests over the past 13 years, including the last four as a volunteer guide.

“People always ask me how long this tour usually takes,” Werner told a group of seven amateur birders last week. “Officially, they say it’s about an hour and a half. But I tend to talk a lot and not pay attention to the time, so sometimes I’m out here until noon.”

Thus, Werner has been unofficially dubbed “The Bird Nut.”

Using both their own binoculars and Werner’s professional spotting scope to get a closer perspective, the birding group celebrated seeing some of the refuge’s most frequent avian visitors and resident species.

A pair of roseate spoonbills preening and feeding during low tide

Along the way, the group spotted several bird species – including juvenile and mature ibis, snowy egret, great egret, little blue heron, least sandpiper, willet, pied-billed grebe, mottled duck, anhinga, white pelican, osprey and black bellied plover – as well as the refuge’s “signature” species, the roseate spoonbill.

Werner said that there are four basic ways to identify various birds:

- Color
- Size
- Shape
- Behavior

“When you really get good at (observing birds from a distance), you should be able to identify birds simply by looking at the silhouette,” Werner said. “Nobody knows everything, but everybody knows something. That’s why I like talking so much and having people share what they know and what they’ve learned.”

Just past the refuge’s observation tower, 10 photographers huddled along the left side of Wildlife Drive to take images of four roseate spoonbills preening and feeding in the shallow waters.

A Florida native, roseate spoonbills (Platalea ajaja) are commonly mistaken for a flamingo. While flamingos are known for gaining their pink color from a crustacean-rich diet, roseate spoonbills are naturally pink, which intensifies with age. Spoonbills sweep

The refuge is home to approximately 245 avian species, including wading birds, seabirds, shorebirds, raptors, song birds, marsh birds and waterfowl. Werner explained that the best times to observe birds often come during periods of low tide and when winds are calmer.

A little further along Wildlife Drive atop a manmade platform, an osprey gave her two chicks their morning meal. The birding group also enjoyed seeing other wildlife the refuge is known for, including three species of mangrove (red, black and white) as well as mullet, who were seen frequently jumping out of the water.

In addition to the Birding the Refuge Tour, several free daily programs are offered including:

- Endangered Species (Mondays at 1 p.m.) – Habitats throughout the world are disappearing, affecting species everywhere. Discover endangered species of Southwest Florida and what you can do to help them.
- Florida Manatees (Wednesdays at 1 p.m.) – Explore the world of one of America's most endangered species, the Florida manatee, as it faces a challenging future. Find out what you can do to help save this species.
- Gators and Crocs (Tuesdays at 1 p.m., Thursdays at 11 a.m., Saturdays at 10 a.m.) – Is it an alligator or crocodile? Learn about the Order Crocodylia, including crocodiles, gharials, alligators and caimans. Learn how to identify families and local species in the refuge.

- Reptiles and Amphibians (Thursdays at 1 p.m.) – Discover some of the underappreciated refuge residents: snakes, lizards, toads and frogs.
- Family Craft & Story (Saturdays at 10 a.m.) – Join a naturalist for storytime at the refuge. Bring your family to hear a wildlife-themed story and make a craft about an animal from our estuarine ecosystem. Story-time is appropriate for pre-K through sixth grade, although everyone is welcome.
- Florida's Venomous Wildlife

(Mondays at 1 p.m.) – Learn about the venomous wildlife that lives in Southwest Florida, how to identify these animals and their habitats.

- Shorebirds of the Refuge (Tuesdays at 10 a.m.) – Are you stumped when you see those little brown birds? Learn how to identify the tricky shorebirds.

This popular craft beer tasting is set for Saturday, April 15 from 6 to 10 p.m. on the grounds of SCCF's Nature Center. There will be live music, dancing and a few surprises. "The combination of craft beer tastings, great food truck offerings, and world-class music make Beer in the Bushes the place to be next month," said SCCF's Jeff Siwicke, creator of the event.

The music headliner this year will be G. Love & Special Sauce. These Philadelphia natives are known for their pioneering hip-hop blues sound and have a nationwide following.

Teens Build Super Sandcastle

Three 17-year-old boys, visiting Sanibel from Wisconsin, constructed their own "sand city" on the beach near West Gulf Drive close to Rabbit Road. Michael Lo, Jack Loomis and Mark Bechthold's 15-foot by seven-foot sandcastle included amphitheater style terraces surrounded by walls. It took the trio close to five hours to build.✪

partnership has also been responsible for developing and implementing a number of important water quality restoration projects. In addition to land acquisition, other policies and projects to protect and improve water quality include the protection of environmentally sensitive lands, native plant protection and sod limitations, mangrove preservation, beach and dune protection, responsible development through restrictions on impervious surfaces and requirements for onsite stormwater management, implementation of the National Pollutant and Discharge Eliminations System (NPDES) Program, conversion of the majority of the island from septic to central sewer, elimination of wastewater treatment package plants, island-wide water quality monitoring, adoption of an urban fertilizer ordinance (2007), and Nutrient and Lake Management Recommendations for Golf Courses (2008).

In 2012, the city and the SCCF Marine Laboratory began work on the Sanibel Comprehensive Nutrient Management Plan. The goal of the Nutrient Management Plan is to systematically identify nutrient sources throughout the island and develop a list of projects and programs needed to reduce nutrient loading to the Sanibel Slough and coastal waters. The plan is on schedule to be completed in 2017. Information collected through the Nutrient Management Plan to date has identified specific nutrient sources contributing to the impairments in the Sanibel Slough. The primary nutrient sources identified include fertilizer runoff from residential and commercial landscapes and golf courses, legacy nutrients remaining in the soil from septic systems and wastewater treatment package plants, and municipal reuse water used for irrigation. Based on this data, a list of projects and policy recommendations has been developed to target specific nutrient loading "hotspots." This approach will ensure that resources invested to address the specific problems are used in the most cost-effective way to achieve the desired results.

Over the next several years, the city will be implementing a number of new projects and programs that continue to address on-island water quality. The Sanibel Communities for Clean Water Program will assist homeowners living adjacent to wetlands, lakes and other waterbodies in implementing Best Management Practices (BMPs) to protect and improve water quality. The Jordan Marsh Water Quality Treatment Park project will draw water from the Sanibel Slough through a series of wetland treatment areas to remove nutrients prior to discharge back into the slough. The park will be accessible to the public with educational signage to help island residents and other park visitors learn about Best Management Practices that can be implemented in their neighborhoods. The city is also evaluating options for upgrades to the Donax Wastewater Treatment Facility to reduce nutrients in the reuse water delivered to island golf courses and residential properties. These upgrades are expected to significantly reduce nutrient loading to surface and groundwater resources. In 2016, the city received partial funding in the amount of $825,000 from the Florida Legislature for these upgrades.

Reducing nutrient loading to the Sanibel Slough and coastal waters will require behavioral changes in the way we manage our lawns, landscapes and wastewater systems and will involve investments in capital projects to eliminate existing nutrient sources. We want to thank the citizens of Sanibel for their commitment to protecting the island's natural resources and for continuing to support these efforts to improve water quality.✪

Pura collection by Roberto Demeglio
Jeweler Unveils Collection By Italian Designer

Lily & Co. Jewelers on Sanibel is unveiling the Pura collection by Italian designer Roberto Demeglio. The collection is innovative, unconventional and flexible – bracelets made of ceramic with 18-karat gold and diamonds on a stretch coil.

“These high fashion Italian jewels are crafted using a patented stainless steel stretch coil system that allows the pieces to flex, twist, slide on easily, stay on firmly and never lose elasticity,” said Dan Schuyler, co-owner of Lily & Co.

Demeglio uses creativity and balance of design, technical excellence and craft tradition to put forth a unique collection. The Pura collection is crafted with the wearer in mind – no hassling with locks or clasps, just slip on the wrist. The high-grade ceramic is coated in Zircon to make it scratch and break resistant. Each piece is assembled in Demeglio’s factory in Velanza, Italy.

“I dedicate my craft to today’s modern women who lead active lives and need jewelry that will work with their lifestyle,” said Demeglio. “Gone are the days when a woman would spend hours to get ready for dinner with her husband or friends. Today, she is leaving a board meeting or picking up the children, with precious little time left for herself.” Demeglio believes a woman’s jewelry needs to go from day to night with effortless elegance.

Demeglio’s roots in the jewelry business date back to 1922 when his grandfather, who started as a watchmaker, opened a store with a workshop in Turin, Italy. Demeglio took over the business in 1984 and recreated a company centered on unique and eclectic designs.

Demeglio’s Aura collection can also be found at Lily & Co. These stunning bracelets are as rare and unique as the islands themselves with blocks of black matte ceramic combined with white, rose or yellow gold.

Lily & Co. Jewelers is located at 520 Tarpon Road, next to Doc Ford’s Rum Bar & Grille. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. For more information, call 472-2888.✪

mood, a personality or a memory?”

Next, the group was asked to touch whatever plant was nearby. “Pull the leaf until you reach the point that you feel the plant is pulling back,” Anders told the group, later asking when each person recalled feeling their earliest connection with nature. A majority of people, she noted, say that their connection with nature is associated with water.

Jay Norwood “Ding” Darling, she later explained, developed his passion for conservation after revisiting his uncle’s farm during his 20s, and noting the vast changes in the natural landscape and wildlife which he recalled from his own childhood.

Anders compared how what Darling set forth in his editorial cartoons and nature-focused actions helped create the basis for conservation efforts which helped establish SCCF 50 years ago.

“Sanibel and Captiva are diversified enough that you can find plenty of things to do to become a part of the community,” she said. “I think joining (organizations, clubs or community groups) and participating (in local events) is a big part of building a sense of home.”

Following a number of golden anniversary activities already this year, SCCF is planning several more events in the coming months to celebrate its successful history. They include a Farm to Table benefit dinner on Thursday, March 30, an open house at all four SCCF buildings on October 31 and the foundation’s 50th anniversary gala on November 11.

Anders will also host a lecture, SCCF: 50 Years of Conservation, on Tuesday, April 4 at the SCCF Nature Center, located at 3333 Sanibel Captiva Road. The program will begin at 1 p.m. The cost to attend the lecture is $5 for adults or free to children and SCCF members. For additional information, call 472-2329 or visit www.sccf.org.✪

Exhibit Features Rauschenberg Originals And Inspired Works

Works on exhibit

Robert Rauschenberg is considered one of the most important artists of the 20th century. Hailed by many as the “Picasso of post-World War II art,” he fills a separate niche that distinguishes his work from both abstract expressionism and pop art, though he often utilized elements of both styles.

Living much of his later years on Captiva Island, he helped launch the first BIG ARTS gallery – Phillips Gallery – with a sculpture he personally installed for the opening entitled, Dragon Blossom, Winter Glut. His contributions to the community extended to Southwest Florida, most notably the Fine Arts Gallery at Edison College in Fort Myers, today called the Bob Rauschenberg Gallery at Florida SouthWestern State College. Rauschenberg’s generosity was legend.

Deborah Patterson Butler, a retired art history and humanities professor who served on the gallery board at Edison for many years, presented a talk on the life and work of Robert Rauschenberg on March 29. Butler shared her knowledge on Rauschenberg’s style and various mediums. From his enduring global approach to art, his use of common objects and detritus in his work, to his use of photography, Rauschenberg’s contributions to the arts in America cannot be overstated. While he embraced popular culture – often collaborating with artists from other areas such as cinematography, music and dance – he did not consider himself a “pop artist.”

The After Rauschenberg juried exhibit, featuring two original Rauschenberg numbered prints, as well as artist submissions inspired by his work, will be on view in Phillips Gallery at BIG ARTS through April 29.

BIG ARTS is located at 900 Dunlp Road. For more information, visit www.bigarts.org or call 395-0900. ✨

Sanibel Library Foundation Hosts Author Luncheon

The Sanibel Public Library Foundation hosted a sold-out fundraising luncheon with author Melanie Benjamin at The Sanctuary Golf Club on March 13. The foundation leverages public tax dollar investment and helps the Sanibel Public Library provide dynamic and engaging initiatives that enhance the library experience.

Benjamin is the author of the 2016

New York Times bestselling novel The Swans of Fifth Avenue, which is about Truman Capote and his infamous betrayal of his socialite friends. Benjamin combines her passion for history and biography in novels depicting the lives of iconic women who have been somewhat forgotten. Her 2013 The Aviator's Wife gives insight into the life of one of Captiva's most beloved visitors, Anne Morrow Lindbergh. At the luncheon, Benjamin revealed that her next book will bring to life the friendship between Mary Pickford and Frances Marion during the golden age of Hollywood.

This was the sixth annual Lunch with the Author event which directly supports the work of the Sanibel Public Library Foundation. The presenting sponsor for the luncheon was Uhler and Vertich Financial Planners. Silver Sponsors were Jan and Blake Devitt, Barbara and Tom Dunham, Dr. Linda E. Estep, Gwenda Hiett-Clements, Laura Hansen, Linda and John Kramer, Kay and John Morse, and Patricia Schwarz.

Donations to the luncheon's gift basket auction were made by: Adventures in Paradise, Amy Jo's Boutique, Amy's Something Special, Beach Piez, Bennett's Fresh Roast, Billy's Rentals, B Unique Boutique, Blue Coyote Supper Club, Bromeliads by Appointment - Judy Hicks, Cape Nails, Cip's Place, Cargo Trading Co., The CROW Shop, The Carpenter's Bookstore, The Dale Home, The Dunes Golf & Tennis Club, Forever Green Ace Hardware, Finnimore's Cycle, Island Cinema, Island Paws, JB Designs, Joey's Custard, Kathee Jones, Lily & Co. Jewelers, The Lighthouse Café, Love Boat Ice Cream, Luc Century, On Island, Over Easy Cafe, Pasture & Pearl, The Pecking Order, Rosie's Café, RS Walsh, Rosie's Café, SCCF Native Garden Center, Sanibel Day Spa, Sanibel Home Furnishings, seashells.com, Sanibel Sweet Shoppe, Seabreeze Café at Sundial, Sea Glass Lane, Suncatchers' Dream, Tween Waters Inn, Whitney's Bait & Tackle, and Why Knot.

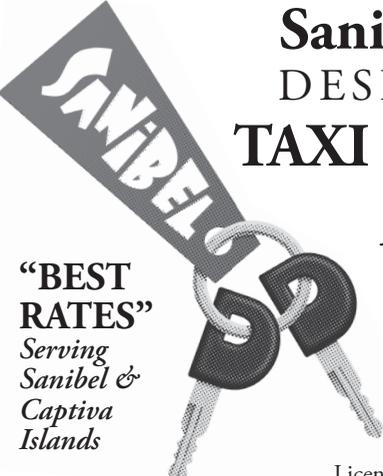

Beginning this spring, the Sanibel Public Library will undergo an extensive renovation. While the attractiveness and quality of the structure are outstanding, the infrastructure needs to be upgraded. At the same time, the interior of the building will be reconfigured to a more user-centered service design with an emphasis on flexibility. Proceeds from Lunch with the Author will help to furnish several new quiet reading areas.

BIG ARTS Film Director Series

Mrs. Miniver

by Sid Picker

Please note there has been a change in start time for The Director Series. All movies will begin at noon. On Wednesday, April 5 at the Island Cinema, the second film in this year's Director Series is the wartime classic Oscar winner Mrs. Miniver starring Greer Garson. This film stands in sharp contrast to William Wyler's first film in the series, The Little Foxes. Mrs. Miniver is Wyler's highly skilled, highly stylized paean to virtue, goodness, unselfishness, liberty, loyalty and patriotism. It is presented within the context of wartime England during the early years of World War II.

Mrs. Miniver is not a battle-scene war picture; it is a "home-front" war picture, focusing almost exclusively on how World War II affects a middle class English family as well as a structured English community. It is an example of superb structure, excellent screen writing, brilliant direction and wonderful performances. The film begins with pre-war stable family life and how that family, and the community in which they live, adjust to wartime conditions. The father is too old to fight but nevertheless takes part in the Dunkirk evacuation, and the eldest son becomes a Spitfire pilot. The film concludes during the Blitz period, or aerial bombardment, and is most remarkable for its hopeful conclusion inasmuch as it was made in late 1941 at the low point of British wartime fortunes. At the time, no one could be certain how the war would end.

The film swept the 1942 Oscars capturing awards for Best Picture, Best Director, Best Actress and Best Supporting Actress, Best Screenplay and Best Black and White Cinematography. It demonstrates that Wyler is as skilled at orchestrating goodness as he was with evil in Little Foxes – if anything, better because evil inherently fascinates whereas goodness tends to bore, but Mrs. Miniver hasn't a boring moment in it.

BIG ARTS Monday Night Film Series

Ixcanul

by Di Saggau

The BIG ARTS Monday Night Movie for April 3 is Ixcanul, which means “volcano” in the Kaqchikel language. The title refers to a peak that overlooks the Guatemalan coffee plantation and to the disruptive emotions involved in the film. Guatemalan filmmaker Jayro Bustamante has created a brilliant debut film that is a mesmerizing fashion of fact and fable. It’s a dreamlike depiction of the daily lives of the Kaqchikel-speaking Mayans who live at the base of an active volcano.

A young Maya woman and her parents work the land and care for their livestock. Just 17, Maria is reluctantly betrothed to the plantation’s overseer. It’s a match that secures status and jobs for her family. However, she prefers Pepe, a lowly coffee cutter who dreams of starting a new life in the United States. Maria hopes to join him. She makes a decision that will upend several lives and transform the movie from languid to hard-hitting tragedy.

The film is made with actual Maya farmers. The colors are rich and deep and the atmosphere is tranquil until the final third of the film. The volcano seen looming in the background shots serves as a symbolic barrier. The film eventually becomes a stealthily disturbing examination of the ways that indigenous people who remain in relative isolation get exploited by the handful of indigenous people who assimilate with the nearest urban center.

What emerges, finally, is a film that gives an urgent, original voice to a people too frequently marginalized in both movies and society at large. The non-professional cast is impressive as is the widescreen lensing and immersive sound design. The film runs 199 minutes. The moderator for the evening is Mary Arceneaux.

Admission to BIG ARTS Monday

Night Film Series is $10 and all screenings begin at 7 p.m. in Schein Performance Hall. Each film is followed by a complimentary reception and discussion. Film sponsors include June Rosner and Russ Bilgore, Stan and Visnja Gembicki, Hyde Tucker, Penny Wilkinson and the Island Sun.

To live your life,
I fear I wasted many hours,
Ignored the limits time had set,
Oblivious that each new day
Moved you steadily away from me
And all that I could give you then.

Now I fly out to see you, we exchange
A welcoming embrace,
Some pleasantries, our time together,
Wedged between the busy moments of our lives.

Knowing this short time we have
Is far too brief
And I will never tell you
All I wish I could have done.

I continue to pretend
I’ve no regrets for what I’ve lost
Knowing clocks do not turn back
Those hours I gave away,
Nor allow us to repeat a single day.

Book Review

The Chemist

by Di Saggau

Stephanie Meyer's new book, The Chemist, is quite a departure from her successful Twilight series. It's on the best-seller list and there's good reason for that. The Chemist deals with a protagonist who goes by the name of Alex, at least most of the time. She lives under various pseudonyms. Alex is a brilliant, paranoid chemist who is trained to torture terrorism suspects with her multiple chemical cocktails. Every time she comes back to her apartment, she has to undo special booby-traps that she has set up. Her jewelry is also lethal, including three rings that hold various substances and earrings that contain a gas that knocks a person out.

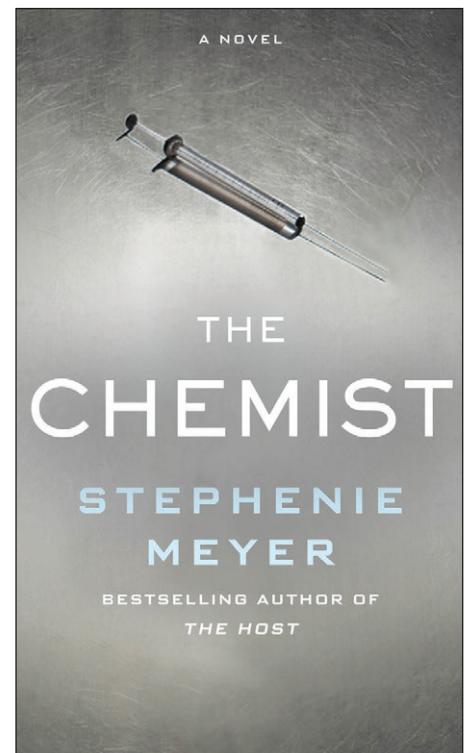

She originally worked for a shadowy branch of the U.S. government before her bosses considered her a liability and turned against her. Now she is a fugitive. When her former handler offers her a way out, she realizes it's her only chance to erase the giant target on her back. However, this means taking one last job for her ex-employers and, to her horror, her situation becomes even more dangerous. She doesn't know why they want her dead and she's getting tired of running.

When her old boss calls her in for one last mission, she's not sure she isn't being double-crossed, but she proceeds with the kidnapping of a Washington, DC schoolteacher Daniel Beach, who is said to be part of a vile plot to release a virus that will wreak global doom. This couldn't be further from the truth.

Alex resolves to meet the threat head-on and teams up with Kevin, a former C.I.A. operative who's also on the run from his bosses. It's a love-hate relationship. They begin to see through the layers of cross and double cross, and the two agents join forces and go into hiding together. Their bold escape plan becomes more complicated when Alex falls in love with Daniel, who happens to be Kevin's identical twin.

As she sees her choices being rapidly whittled down, Alex must apply her unique talents in ways she never dreamed of. This is a fast-paced thriller with a tough, mysterious heroine who has a penchant for decking herself out in dangerous jewelry, concealing syringes of poison in her belt and switchblades in her shoes. I was amused by Alex's special skills and her paranoia. Imagine sleeping every night with a gas mask over your face. In this tautly plotted novel, Meyer has created a fierce and fascinating new heroine with a very specialized skill set.✪

by Shelley M. Greggs, NCSP

Dear Shelley, My fourth and fifth grade children have many writing assignments that require revising and editing. They want me to help them, but working on their writing with them is difficult because they think I am being too nitpicking. How can I give them feedback without seeming overly judgmental?

Jolene P., Fort Myers

Jolene,

Writing is such a deeply personal and reflective experience. Even for the best writers, it is not an easy process and providing feedback on your children's writing assignments may often feel like walking on eggshells. If you're too critical, your children might not want to share their writing assignments with you again. On the other hand, if you give too much praise, you may not be helping them improve, and your children may question the sincerity of your feedback. It's difficult to make constructive comments to your children so that they accept your advice instead of feeling as if you are criticizing them, but here are a few ideas that may make this easier for you.

Highlight both the positive and negative aspects of the writing without judgment – without using the words “good” and “bad.” Make sure that your children understand the functions of revising, editing and rewriting and explain that revising writing isn't a matter of having done something wrong: It's a chance to make something that's already very good even better. Revising involves making changes like adding or deleting words, reorganizing sentences, or ideas, while editing involves reviewing spelling, punctuation, capitalization, sentence structure, grammar and correcting any mistakes.

When something doesn't work, you might ask, “Why did you choose to say it this way?” or “Did you mean to say this?” Making it a conversation, rather than criticism, can help engage your children in the process, and teach her that editing and revising are a natural part of growing as a writer, regardless of age or skill level.

With beginning writers, the revising and editing process will be simpler. Start by reading your child's piece aloud exactly as it is written, having your child listen for the following things: Are any words missing? Are any important facts or events missing? Is there a beginning, middle and end to your work? Read the piece aloud again, and if any of these things are missing, have your child revise accordingly.

With a child who has more writing experience you might also ask him or her to think about the following revising questions: Do I describe what my characters look and feel like? Do I use the right action words with my nouns? Ask your child to fill in any details s/he may have left out.

Then, have your child reread the piece and think about the order of sentences and paragraphs. You might ask whether reordering one or two sentences helps communicate an idea more logically. Ask if words or ideas are repeated in the same paragraph. Use a thesaurus to improve vocabulary and suggest expanding an idea instead of repeating it. Finally, make sure that your child can identify the main idea in each paragraph.

Now it's time to edit the piece for spelling and grammar. Any word processing program will have a spelling/grammar checker that will do this quite easily but you may want your child to learn how edit independently. Use a grammar checklist to help your child learn how to edit for grammatical errors. Once they understand how to edit for spelling and grammar, using technology to do this makes sense.

As your children move into middle and high school, they should be writing on the computer and using all the supports that technology provides to support the writing process.

CHR Thanks Volunteers And Executive Director

by Jeff Lysiak

On March 23, Sanibel's Community Housing and Resources (CHR) invited their loyal and dedicated volunteers to a spring-themed luncheon to show their appreciation and gratitude for all the ways in which volunteerism helps the organization grow.

CHR Board President Richard Johnson and Executive Director Kelly Collini addressed the crowd of nearly 40 attendees, thanking each specific volunteer group for all that they contributed over the past year. Sanibel City Manager Judie Zimomra, Councilmember Jim Jennings and Planning Commissioner Holly Smith were thanked for all that they do to facilitate CHR's relationship with the city. Mardi Gras planning committees and volunteers were heralded for contributing nearly 3,000 volunteer hours in 2016.

Johnson sincerely thanked his volunteer board of directors who contributed nearly 2,500 volunteer hours last year. All volunteer contributions combined totaled 6,205 hours, or the equivalent of three full-time employees, which is a tremendous cost-saver for CHR.

The presentation was capped by a lovingly comical poem, written by Collini, once again thanking all of the volunteers who give of their time and talents every day to help CHR continue to grow. The poem, entitled How Do We Love Thee?, was read aloud by the author:

You are the heart and soul of CHR, this you must know

Because of your hard work and talents, CHR can grow

Stakeholders Updated On Blind Pass Study

by Jeff Lysiak

Almost one year after the first Blind Pass Inlet Management Study stakeholders meeting was held last spring at The Sanctuary Golf Club, about 70 islanders gathered at the Sanibel Recreation Center on March 24 to hear an update on the status of the ongoing study.

During last week's information-sharing session, co-hosted by the Lee County Department of Natural Resources and project partners CB&I Coastal Planning & Engineering, Inc., the City of Sanibel and the Captiva Erosion Prevention District, residents reviewed the study's objectives along with the status of the numerical modeling effort.

According to Steve Boutelle, operations manager for the Lee County

Steve Boutelle, operations manager for Lee County Department of Natural Resources

Department of Natural Resources, the study is evaluating a number of options for the ongoing management of Blind Pass and the adjacent beaches within its area of influence. "The study is taking longer than we thought, which is due to the complexity of issues affecting Blind Pass, and we wanted to explore all of the best options that are available," he said.

Michelle Pfeiffer and Thomas Pierro, representatives from CB&I, made the formal presentation of the inlet management study.

According to Pfeiffer, the primary objective of the study is to develop a plan for keeping Blind Pass open, formulate a more effective dredging/nourishment schedule, extend the life of beach-related projects and protect the existing infrastructure. The last time a study of the inlet was conducted was back in 1995.

Since the last study more than 20 years ago, the inlet has been impacted by several major storms – including Hurricane Charley – as well as the opening and closing of Clam Bayou and Old Blind Pass, a number of nourishment projects, dredging projects and the installation of a jetty.

Pierro noted that the current study has revealed that beaches adjacent to Blind Pass are erosional, there is a southerly flow of inlet waters along Captiva and across Blind Pass, and a northerly flow from the north end of Sanibel into Blind Pass.

"The current inlet management plan has been beneficial over time," said Pierro. "Blind Pass has been dredged, and we hope that the dredge plan helps to keep that channel open."

In February, Lee County began a dredging management and beach renourishment project which is expected to be completed in May. The dredged sand will be used to renourish portions of eroded beach south of Blind Pass and the north end of Bowman's Beach. That project is being funded through tourist tax revenues from Lee County and a grant from the Florida Department of Environmental Protection.

During her presentation, Pfeiffer showed a multi-image graphic which detailed some of the historic events that have occurred at Blind Pass. They

The Final Encore With Chorus Director

Steve Cramer celebrated his 10th and final year as director of the BIG ARTS Chorus with spring concerts in Schein Performance Hall on March 28 and March 30.

When Cramer took over as director in 2008, the chorus was far different than today. With only 30 members, the chorus performed a short program together with the BIG ARTS Band. Not many, including Cramer, could have imagined the growth in numbers and quality of the chorus over the next 10 years. The group now has 90 members rehearsing throughout the season to perform multiple full-length concerts in winter and spring, in addition to many appearances at various community events.

Beyond the musical accomplishments, chorus members cherish the fun and friendship and all of the "firsts" that Cramer brought to the chorus over the years.

There are too many show features to recount but audience favorites include a full Salvation Army band, complete with tuba entering the side doors and marching through Schein Hall during Guys and Dolls, and a real life appearance by the "Duke of Earl" during a '50s medley.

In 2011, the chorus performed excerpts from Oklahoma. Chorus manager Lillian Decker recalls Cramer's idea to have the lead singers drive into

Schein Hall on a decorated golf cart singing Surrey With The Fringe On Top. "The audience went wild! It was the first of many creative and fun production extras that made our spring concerts special," said Decker.

From performances of Die Fledermaus, where Cramer conducted the entire operetta wearing a curly white 1500s period wig, to the French Revolution reenactment in Les Mis, to Puerto Rican dancers in West Side Story, and amateur tappers who learned to "hoof" three weeks before the show, chorus members have done it all.

There is great synergy within the group and none more apparent than the relationship between Cramer and Ellen Whitten, the chorus accompanist. "I have known and worked with Steve for five years," said Whitten. "We both taught middle school chorus, so we have a lot in common. Steve is the most patient, positive director I've ever worked with. Even when we know a piece isn't perfect, he encourages us all with his smile, his humor and his musical knowledge."

Susan Andrews, who has sung in the chorus since 1992, reflected on Cramer's leadership: "Chorus members include some well-trained voices and professional musicians who have had careers in fine arts, entertainment and music education. At the other end of the spectrum, there are some who don't read music, but love to sing."

"Under Steve's direction, the chorus has blossomed," Andrews added. "Steve is a master at keeping the group challenged. He continually has found the right mix of music to keep singers interested and to showcase their talent."

Chorus members all agree that Cramer's patience and humor created a welcoming culture that is just the right combination of musical challenge and fun. "It takes a special talent to bring a group like ours from the beginning rehearsals, where everyone is struggling just to read the music and the words at the same time, to performance night where we have mastered the music, the style, the vocalizations and added costumes, dancing and skits," said Pam Mascio who has sung with the group for five years. "There are some scary rehearsals in the middle stage where we worry that we are in way over our heads. But with Steve's calm direction, by show time, we manage to pull it off. He believes we can meet the challenge... and so we do."

Many on Sanibel and Captiva have enjoyed chorus performances at community events like Baileyfest, the Community Thanksgiving Celebration and the South Seas lighting. Minnesota Twins fans have likely heard the chorus sing The Star Spangled Banner at Hammond Stadium during spring training.

Cramer has provided opportunities and experiences beyond what most community chorus singers imagined. It is a big job, but Cramer shares the credit with others as he explains, "As we all know, 'it takes a village', and great village leaders, to create a wonderful group. I have been blessed with that leadership, from a fabulous volunteer chorus manager, to a "roadies" stage crew, skit writers and many more."

But it is Cramer who orchestrates the fun. "He even made it snow in December on the island," said Decker as she recalled the chorus' participation in the South Seas tree lighting ceremony. "There were children running around and Santa reciting the Night Before Christmas story, and then snow began to fall. It was magical!"

BIG ARTS Chorus members acknowledge the impact Cramer's creativity and leadership have made on the group. "It has been my privilege to sing in choral groups most of my adult life, but the last 10 years singing with Steve have truly been the best," said long-time chorus member John Pryor. "I will miss him but I will cherish the time I sang with him." ❄️

The rooster her class painted in February 2015 was walking to the right. In the new painting, he will walk to the left. If you have the rooster in your collection, you will be able to do a companion piece.

The brushstrokes on the bird are bold and thick as a contrast to the sharp, thin lines of the grass in the foreground and background. The painting will be done on a red canvas.

Janku said she loves this painting for the kitchen and as a reminder of life in the countryside.

Call The Community House at 472-2155 to register. Visit Janku's website for more information on other classes at <http://www.sissijanku.com>.*

Roosevelt's 100th Anniversary Of First Captiva Visit Commemorated

Perched atop a chair in the Visitor & Education Center's auditorium, President Theodore Roosevelt (Joe Wiegand) described how he earned the nickname "Bull Moose" at the JN "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge on Monday

by Jeff Lysiak

To commemorate and celebrate the 100th anniversary of his first visit to Captiva Island, the 26th president of the United States, Theodore "Teddy" Roosevelt, stopped by the JN "Ding" Darling National Wildlife Refuge on Monday afternoon to share a few stories and encourage people young and old to enjoy the great outdoors.

During his annual visit to the refuge, the robust American statesman, soldier, hunter and explorer – portrayed by Roosevelt doppelganger Joe Wiegand – shared tales of his many travels and heroic exploits, his political ascension and his policies which helped preserve national parks and landmarks.

Roosevelt stated that during his two-term presidency (1901-09), he successfully established the United States Forest Service, signed into law the creation of five National Parks (Crater Lake in Oregon, Mesa Verde in Colorado, Platt in Oklahoma, Sully's Hill in North Dakota and Wind Cave in South Dakota) and signed the 1906 Antiquities Act, under which he proclaimed 18 new U.S. National Monuments. He also established the first 51 bird reserves, four game preserves and 150 National Forests, including Shoshone National Forest, the nation's first.

"Let this great wonder of nature remain as it now is. Do nothing to mar its grandeur, sublimity and loveliness. You cannot improve on it," Roosevelt said upon visiting the Grand Canyon in 1903 during his first term. "But what you can do is to keep it for your children, your children's children, and all who come after you, as the one great sight which every American should see."

One member of the audience, a young girl sitting in the front row, raised her hand and told Roosevelt that when she visited the Grand Canyon last year, the sight "took her breath away."

"There are so many wonderful outdoor spaces, and we need to preserve and protect them for our children and our children's children," Roosevelt told the audience. "There's a great deal of satisfaction that comes from challenging yourself when exploring the great outdoors... it's a wonderful teacher."

Roosevelt's love of outdoor activities helped improve his asthma suffered as a youngster. Hunting, riding horses and hiking all contributed to his athletic frame.

In 1898, Roosevelt made his initial visit

Teddy Roosevelt shared a number of stories about how the National Wildlife Refuge System was established to Florida following the outbreak of the Spanish-American War. "The mosquitoes back then were thicker, but the population here was thinner," he said.

Many years after his presidency, Roosevelt was invited to return to Florida to hunt manta rays off the coast of Captiva, which he visited in 1917. "I came here in the spirit of a naturalist – it was a thrilling time to be an adventurer," he added. "Hunting is conservation... if done properly."

Wiegand, a historian, writer and lecturer on the life and times of Roosevelt, has portrayed the 26th president to audiences across the country, including a performance at The White House for President George Bush in 2008.✪

CHR Board President Richard Johnson, right, introduces Melissa Rice as the non-profit organization's next executive director photos by Jeff Lysick

CHR Appreciation

Build a deck, mend a fence, raise a dollar, hang a door
 Your many hours and expertise help us do so much more
 And if we had to pay for you, do you know what that'd cost?
 Three full time positions – all that money lost
 LT committee, you guys are simply just the best
 Applications just keep on coming and we have put you to the test
 From, "I have a little criminal record"

to "Can I have an 80-pound pup?"
 I swear to you, as God is my witness, you could not make this stuff up!
 That little thing called Mardi Gras, oh what a success!
 We owe it all to volunteers... by the way, who cleaned up that mess?
 And the board members who give so much, day after day
 Sacrificing family time and businesses, all without any pay
 Never doubt your worth to us and know that you are key
 To providing homes and resources at a very affordable fee
 Today we hope to honor you and

Outgoing executive director Kelly Collini read a poem during last week's luncheon

Members of CHR's staff, board of directors and volunteers attended the March 23 luncheon at The Community House

make sure that you know
 Because of your hard work and talents, CHR can grow!
 Later, Johnson announced the retirement of Collini effective at the end of the month. Johnson lauded her five years of guiding CHR, noting, "We've come a long way... all of our bills are paid and Kelly helped us build some reserves."
 Melissa Rice, the organization's current treasurer, will ascend to the executive director title on April 3.
 "I'm looking forward to this opportunity," said Rice. "Kelly (Collini) brought us to this great point, which will make it easier for me to take over after all of the hard work she did."
 CHR's buildings and grounds volunteers were also honored for giving nearly 900 hours of sweat equity, helping CHR with the upkeep and maintenance of its 74 units. The organization's Landlord/Tenant Committee members and many others were all highlighted for their contributions.

 Sanibel Catering Company by Bailey's catered the meal.
 Established in 1979, CHR – working in partnership with the City of Sanibel – provides affordable housing for families and individuals who work full-time on Sanibel or are retired or disabled longtime residents of the island. CHR owns housing units at various locations on Sanibel, including 74 rental properties – one of which is a 12-unit complex for seniors – and 14 Limited Equity Ownership (LEO) homes through the Coast and Islands Community Land Trust.

Blind Pass Study

included the opening of the inlet in 1953, a closure in 1970, a reopening (following Hurricane Agnes) in 1972, extension of the jetty 100 feet in 1989, a dredging project in 2008-09 and subsequent dredging – completed in two phases – in 2012 and 2013.

CB&I employed a numerical modeling simulation to compare outcomes of proposed inlet management strategies, along with a "no action" scenario. The program – called Delft3D – evaluates data (waves, tides, currents, bathymetry, etc.) and simulates morphology.

Evaluating what they've learned over the past 12 months, Pierro noted several new findings:

- Fill placements have a positive benefit to Sanibel and Captiva beaches surrounding the pass without a considerable effect on inlet stability

- The current system balances well with the existing Captiva Terminal groin
- Structural installations on Sanibel can offer protection from channel variability

The Blind Pass Inlet Management Study partners will evaluate the combined management strategies and gather additional information and feedback related to the study before choosing the best option, which will likely be a combination of several options available to manage the inlet.

"While this is not a water quality study, water quality is very important," said Boutelle.

Following the formal presentation, a short question-and-answer session was held.

A third stakeholders meeting will be held at a date and location to be determined. For more information about the study, contact Steve Boutelle, Lee County Natural Resources Division, at 533-8128 or sboutelle@leegov.com.✪

Rotary Happenings

submitted by Shirley Jewell

Hospitals are pretty much places where most of us want to spend as little time as possible. Hospitals serve a fixed purpose, but time spent there is usually stressful. The club's guest speaker this past week was Doug MacGregor, coordinator of the Arts in Healthcare for the Lee Health System. This program tries to alleviate stress for both patients and family members by employing activities using art and music as a diversion allowing a respite for the mind and soul during times of health crises.

Anyone who has walked into the lobby of HealthPark Hospital is immediately impressed by the beautifully designed space. A welcoming, multi-storied open atrium lobby with patient and volunteer artwork displayed throughout, frequently distracting patients and visitors from their anxiety. Often, one of the 75 music volunteers in the Arts in Healthcare program are found seated at the lobby piano, playing music for visitors as they take a break from their visits to family members or waiting for patients during doctor visits, rehab, testing appointments or during patient resting periods.

One noted music volunteer is piano prodigy Noah Waddell, who usually plays at 4 p.m. every Thursday afternoon.

"Music is the moonlight in the gloomy night of life." – Jean Paul Friedrich Richter Music is also brought right into patient rooms. Downloads are placed on portable disc players tailored to requests or designed as a form of stimulating or soothing remedies. Alzheimer's patients are often stimulated by music of their generation, bringing their minds alive or videos of outdoor scenes and national parks that steer memories of days gone by.

There are number of art galleries throughout the hospital that allow a comforting and beautiful place to rest the mind. Art is even presented on the ceilings in certain areas of the hospital, areas where patients find themselves on their back looking up. Patient rooms have a variety of ceiling tile designs; just above the rehab area and radiation rooms are 385 painted ceiling tiles depicting the sky and beautiful billowing white clouds painted by volunteers.

MacGregor told us a story about a series of ceiling tiles placed above one of the hospital nurse's stations. "An 18-year-old patient, who unfortunately had to stay at the hospital for a month, wanted to thank his nurses for the great care he received during his stay. He decided to paint Cookie Monster-style ceiling tiles dedicated to the nursing staff and included all of their names on the tiles to say thanks. Now, when the nurses and staff have a hard day, they can look up and know all of their wonderful care is appreciated."

Volunteers go in and help patients set up for painting and crafts, some teach first-timers how to get started with projects. During this time, thoughts are shared and friendships are formed. Patients benefit from the human interaction.

Many of you may recognize the name Doug MacGregor; he is The News-Press Sunday edition editorial cartoonist. He himself will sit down with some younger patients and draw with them their favorite superheroes. They talk about their heroes' superpowers and talk about the super powers they might need to get better. "POW! BAM! KABOOM!" If they can't draw, MacGregor will draw the pictures and the patients will express their ideas.

MacGregor uses art and music in a variety of ways in this innovative and creative healthcare program. Helping him implement the activities used to relieve stress, particularly for patients with long-term stays, are approximately 1,000 program volunteers.

An Art Cart on wheels brings arts and craft supplies right into patients' rooms: paper, canvases, colored pencils, crayons, glue and all kinds of painting and crafting supplies. The cart

Environmental Education Center Noted By Author

submitted by Jonathan Salas and Zoe Spanbroek

The Center for Environmental and Sustainability Education is honored to be cited by esteemed author David Orr in his new book Dangerous Years: Climate Change, the Long Emergency, and the Way Forward.

Orr's book is about the future of our civilizations considering what we know about climate change, its many complications, and how we can save our planet. The Center for Environmental and Sustainability Education at Florida Gulf Coast University is one of the "many underfunded institutions" that are driving the change we need in our world, according to Orr. In order to face the challenges of climate change and "to find real educational innovation we must go to the periphery, both inside out outside the academy," to places like the center.

The Center for Environmental and Sustainability Education is grateful to David Orr for all of his generous contributions over the years, particularly his active involvement as co-chair of the center's board of advisors. Orr's ongoing efforts to revitalize environmental education will soon culminate in another new project: co-authoring a book with center director Peter Blaze Corcoran for parents, grandparents and teachers on climate change education.

The center welcomes your contributions to the Haffenreffer Challenge. All gifts given at this time will be matched up to a total of $6,000 thanks to Sanibel residents and long-time center supporters Mallory and Peter Haffenreffer and an anonymous donor. Donations go directly to programs.

For more information about the center and its many projects, visit www.fgc.edu/cese. To make a contribution, call Peter Blaze Corcoran at 590-7166 or email pcorcora@fgcu.edu.✱

Superior Interiors

Storage Systems Promote Healthier Living

by Jeanie Tinch

As you are gearing up to spend more time inside your home, this might be a good time to think about organization. It also might be a time to follow up on one of your New Year's resolutions. "Getting organized" is said to be the second most possible vow made when the year turns to a new one. So, you can either complete the resolution you made or get a head start on next year's.

As a little more incentive, here's a list of some of the benefits you will gain from tackling that chore:

- You will be able to relax more. I've read that we often waste two hours in a single day looking for something. Organization can help you find things faster.
- You'll feel better about your home.
- You'll be healthier by reducing stress.
- You'll be a better role model for others.
- You'll save money because many purchases actually never get used because they can't be found once they're brought home. You will buy items that you have place for.

Start with your bedroom. Shouldn't you have a closet that makes you feel better at the start and end of every day? Then look at your entryway – the one you use most often. How does that make you feel every time you use it? Then move on to your pantry, laundry, each bedroom, the garage, etc. View them each as an opportunity to make you feel better. A time to purge.

Sources For Help

Today, there are closet, shelving and storage systems that will fit anywhere in the home or office. And they don't have to be ordinary. There are inspirational designs for every room or space. The combinations are limitless and there are extensive, stylish design options ranging from traditional to contemporary.

We use systems that provide us the ability to adapt to every need. The endless configuration options achieve multiple uses such as room dividers, a display system, shelving, storage or a fabulous walk-in closet. Whatever the space, we can create a personalized furniture system just for you.

Tight on space? Systems like these can help you transform any space into one that is not only functional, but looks great too. Whether it be a space to entertain the family, putting space under a staircase to good use or a place for display, there is a system that will work.

While there are websites that can help you and there are some systems that can be designed and installed by the more accomplished do-it-yourselfers, you might find it advantageous to use a professional.

Before that decision, however, you'll need to give some thought to such factors as: Are there seasonal changes in the contents to be stored? Are there bulky items? For closets, do you want shoes on the floor or on shelves? Are you aiming to store smaller items like jewelry?

Then there are the measurements: Measure how much space your clothes take up now. Measure both the front and back dimensions of a closet. Be sure to account for the baseboard and any inside trim. Like the proverb says: measure twice, cut once.

If you do work with a professional, be sure to have a clear understanding of such things as who will move the contents out of the space being re-done? Who will remove any current molding, baseboard, etc. and repair the damage? In other words, who will get it ready for the installation?

It may seem daunting, but remember those benefits. And you won't have to make getting organized one of your resolutions for the New Year.

At the recent annual meeting of the Committee of the Islands (COTI), Barbara Joy Cooley was named COTI's Citizen of the Year.

As a COTI board member, Cooley was one of a small team that worked tirelessly to enact the Peoples Choice charter amendments in 2005. For several years, she chaired the COTI environment committee and as a talented writer, frequently wrote commentaries that influenced public opinion and policy on key issues. While she served as president of COTI from 2010 to 2014, the organization saw its influence and respect grow in the wider community due in large part to her leadership.

Members of Zonta probably know her best as the long time editor of the organization's first rate newsletter, as she once again showed her willingness to put her natural talents to work where they were most needed to support an organization whose mission she values.

Most recently, she turned her energies and talents to the League of Women Voters of Sanibel where she is vice president. She was a member of the organizing committee for the successful candidates debate on February 1 of this year.

As chair of the natural resources committee, she is actively working with local members and the league's leadership in Tallahassee for the enactment of legislation to improve water quality and make Everglades restoration a reality. She is the organizer of Go Solar Sanibel, an upcoming educational program to acquaint Sanibel residents and business owners on the benefits of solar power.

The objective of the Art in Healthcare program is to help patients and their families get through a rough time in life.

COTI board member Larry Schopp, in presenting the award to Cooley, said, "Sanibel's volunteer organizations provide the human-power, energy and dedication it takes to accomplish things government can't accomplish. Barbara Cooley has it all – the energy, talent and dedication that have made her stand out in each of the organizations she has served. As such, she is the ideal recipient of our Citizen of the Year award."

Eric Draper, executive director of Audubon Florida, as keynote speaker at the COTI annual meeting, invoked numerous questions and comments from the COTI membership as he spoke about threats to water quality.

Draper spoke about Big Sugar's perceived needs to have Lake Okeechobee water in dry season and the actual need for reducing ground water by pumping and reducing drainage in order to put more water back in the ecosystem. Currently, there is too much polluted water ending up in the rivers during the dry season exacerbating land use issues.

In the wetlands, Draper cited a declining bird population as an indicator of the evidence for climate change. Restoring wetland, for example, is imperative for the wood stork to survive.

He stated that Sanibel led the state in getting local fertilizer ordinances.

And he said that a goal should be to put green back in red counties as Sanibel has done. Unfortunately, he advised that three million tons of fertilizer are used in the sugar industry. He also stated that Florida is not designed to handle waste water issues of 20 million residents and 120 million visitors annually.

The three major problems he listed are agricultural fertilizer, faultless and unplanned use of waste water, and permitting for new construction.✱

Will Power

Recalculating

by Craig R. Hersch, Florida Bar Board Certified Wills, Trusts & Estates Attorney; CPA

I'm always looking for shortcuts when driving, especially during busy season. Most long-time Sanibel residents know that the easiest way off the island during March and April is not Periwinkle trust that benefits your spouse for the rest of his or her life. You can name your spouse as his or her own trustee so they don't have to turn to a bank or trust company to receive income or assets. At your spouse's death your trust then distributes to your children in equal shares.

But what happens if one of your children becomes addicted to drugs or alcohol? What if they have made other poor choices that doesn't warrant them to receive an inheritance, or at least control their own share as they normally would?

There might also be tax reasons to exercise a power of appointment. What if the distribution to grandchildren in the document would trigger a generation skipping tax that can be avoided? What if there are income tax issues that can be cleaned up?

Since you are dead, you can't change the provisions of your will, right?

While you can't change your will, you can imbed a "power of appointment" to your spouse to allow him or her to change it. You can limit the powering in a way such that they can't leave your estate to a new spouse that they remarry, but you can allow them to change how much or in what manner your children eventually receive their inheritance.

There is a danger with leaving a power of appointment, however. Your spouse could disinherit one of your intended beneficiaries for almost any reason, including a reason that you may consider frivolous. So when granting a power of appointment, you have to be sure that you explicitly trust that person, and should go so far as to have a conversation with him or her about your expectations.

This leads me to another interesting point. If you are a beneficiary of a continuing trust, you may have a power of appointment yourself. Suppose your father left a trust for you that continues on for your lifetime and then terminates on your death to your children. You may want your estate planning attorney to review your father's trust to determine whether you have a power of appointment to change the ultimate disposition of the assets.

You may want your spouse to receive the income from those assets if you predecease him or her before the assets are distributed to your children. You may also find it advantageous for your children's inheritance to continue on in trust as opposed to an outright distribution that could become subject to the claims of a divorcing spouse or creditors.

To exercise the power, you have to include very specific language in your will. A general disposition of "everything to my wife" is not an exercise of a power. Instead, your will should specifically reference the power and then be very specific and direct as to how the assets are to be distributed. It's easy to mess this up and create more problems than you solve, as there are a host of legal and tax issues associated with the identification and exercise of a power of appointment.

But it's nice to know that you can build in your own "recalculation" of your estate plan if it should become necessary. For more detailed information on creating this power of appointment, check out a recent podcast I recorded on my estate planning website - www.felp.estateprograms.com - under the Design Module.

Drive, rather, it's down West Gulf to Middle Gulf then East Gulf Drives (did I just give away a secret that I shouldn't have?). But sometimes my "shortcuts" get me into trouble, especially when I'm traveling and don't know the local terrain.

Coming up on a fork in the road, I ask my wife Patti "Should we take the left fork or the right fork?"

"How should I know?" Patti responds. I decide to go right.

"Recalculating," Mrs. Garmin states in her soothing GPS voice. It turns out to be a wrong turn that takes us longer to get to where we are heading. Despite the frustration of taking a wrong turn, I find it amazing when technology can help you correct a driving mistake.

Believe it or not, you can gear up your estate plan to "recalculate" if you make a mistake as well. You can do this by granting someone a "power of appointment."

Suppose, for example, that your estate plan leaves your assets in a continuing

Habitat Marks 7th Anniversary Of Women Build

For the seventh year, Habitat for Humanity of Lee and Hendry Counties (Habitat) is hosting Women Build. Hundreds of women in Lee County will trade their stilettos for steel-toed shoes to help rehab three homes, for three families, in two weeks. This year will mark 15 families who have been given a hand up through the Habitat Women Build program. Women Build is an initiative to engage women in the effort to provide safe and decent homes for families in need of affordable housing. By recruiting, educating and inspiring women to build, they can transform lives in their communities.

Local women are needed to raise $150,000 and provide women-power for the construction of the three rehab projects. No construction experience is necessary. For more information on donating or participating, call 652-1673 or visit www.habitat4humanity.org and click on the Get Involved tab.

Over the last six years, 1,991 Women Build donors raised $667,604 for Habitat for Humanity of Lee and Hendry Counties, and 1,417 volunteers contributed 5,642 hours to rehab 12 homes for families in need of affordable housing.

The local initiative coincides with Mother's Day for its significance; as families with children make up a staggering number of those in need of affordable housing. Work on the homes is scheduled to begin April 29 and continue through May 12, pending the fundraising goal of $150,000 is achieved. Rehab work will be completed in time for a dedication of the homes on Saturday, May 13, when keys to the homes are handed over to the new homeowners. During Women Build 2017, homes will be rehabbed in Cape Coral, Fort Myers and Harlem Heights.✪

Sculpture Goes Up For Auction

The life-size sculpture Ding's Darlings – Two Tri-colored Herons by famed island wildlife sculptor Jim Sprankle goes up for auction for SanCap Cares' 17th annual Island Celebration on Sunday, April 9 to benefit Golisano Children's Hospital. The intricate piece, depicting a pair of mating birds, is a top feature of the event's live auction, and all funds raised by its sale will be split 50-50 between Golisano Children's Hospital of Southwest Florida and the "Ding" Darling Wildlife Society-Friends of the Refuge (DDWS).

Brenda and Dewey Tate, former Sanibel Island residents, donated the three-foot-high sculpture. "Dewey and I were drawn to Sanibel years ago because of the 'Ding' Darling National Wildlife Refuge," said Brenda Tate. "We met Jim and Patty Sprankle soon after migrating to Sanibel from Atlanta. We simply fell in love with Jim's amazing wood carvings and his generous spirit. Jim created Ding's Darlings for us in 2001, and they have been happy members of our family since."

Upon recently leaving the island and downsizing, the Tates decided it was time for their "darlings" to fly home to Sanibel. "We are so grateful to Amanda Cross and the entire SanCap Cares team for making this possible," said Tate. "I'm confident Ding's Darlings are flapping their wings with joy to help benefit two of our favorite causes – Golisano Children's Hospital and 'Ding' Darling."

"I am so pleased that the piece, which took me more than six weeks to carve, is fulfilling a destiny with two of my favorite island non-profits," said Sprankle.

"The SanCap Cares committee and wildlife society share not only a place in Jim's and the Tates' hearts, but also a philosophy that island non-profits work better by combining forces," said Amanda Cross, this year's honorary chair of the SanCap Cares fundraiser. "Sanibel is an incredibly philanthropic community, and we know that many support multiple organizations. We are happy to include 'Ding' Darling in this effort."

Sprankle has donated works of art for most of SanCap Cares' live auctions, Cross added. "In 2015, he surpassed the quarter-of-a-million mark for money raised to support the children's hospital with his generous donations – an achievement for which we are incredibly grateful."

Sanibel 8-Ball Pool League

Ricotta Captures Pool Tournament

Terry Ricotta from the League Champion Bunt's Ball Buster team won five straight matches to take first place honors in the annual year-end single game double elimination 8-ball tournament. Twenty-one shooters competed for six hours on the two tables at American Legion Post 123 on March 28. Ricotta defeated John Reigert, Tarzan Russell, Jack Cunningham, Jimbo Gaubatz and Gaubatz again on his way to the championship title.

This year's piece is the largest and most valuable we have had the honor to auction in our 17 years."

"Jim's contributions to 'Ding' Darling are immeasurable," said Birgie Miller, DDWS executive director. "He served as board president for many years, has volunteered since 1997, and has donated dozens of sculptures and his famous 'Sprankle Feather Club pins' for charity auction. In addition, a showcase full of his hand-carved duck decoys, each sold for sponsorship, and a whole flock of his bird sculptures decorate and educate at our 'Ding' Darling Visitor & Education Center."

This year's SanCap Cares starts at 5:30 p.m. on April 9 at The Sanctuary Golf Club on Sanibel. It includes dinner and silent and live auctions. The tri-colored herons sculpture will be on display at The Sanctuary Golf Club, located at 2801 Wulfert Road, starting on April 1. People who are interested in placing bids by phone before or during the event, should contact Cross at SanibelCaptiveCares@gmail.com or 472-2082.

"We are so grateful to SanCap Cares for including us in this fundraising endeavor," added Miller. "We like to think we are both working for the health of our children, in keeping with the refuge's mission to educate children about the environment and get them outdoors to keep active and live happier, healthier lives." ❄️

Sanibel Café took fourth. Kevin Pottorf from Sandycappers and Nate Buffam from Fresh Legion Crew tied for fifth and sixth. Mike DeWitt from Bunt's Ball Busters and Gator Gates from Fresh Legion Crew tied for seventh and eighth.

The winners will be awarded cash prizes at the awards banquet at American Legion Post 123 on Monday, April 3 at 6 p.m. Team cash prizes and awards to the top percentage shooter, the player with the most 4-0 matches and most improved player will also be presented. A 3-Ball tournament will take place after the banquet and program.

On Monday, April 10, the Sanibel League again plays its annual match against the North Fort Myers Senior 8-Ball League. The match starts at 6:30 p.m. at Legion Post 123. North Fort Myers leads the series 6 to 3. ❄️

Baseball Season Starts This Weekend Along With Basketball's Final Four

by Ed Frank

It's a crescendo of sports this weekend as the 2017 Major League baseball season opens along with the college basketball premier event – the Final Four.

After more than 900 spring training games played by the 30 Major League teams, the trucks full of gear and equipment are packed for return to home stadiums.

The warm, balmy weather of the Cactus League in Arizona and the Grapefruit League here in Florida gives way to the 162-game grind of the American and National Leagues where teams are certain to encounter the chill and often bitter winds of spring in the North.

The opening day slate this Sunday features three divisional matchups – the New York Yankees visit the Tampa Bay Rays, the San Francisco Giants at the Arizona Diamondbacks and the World Champion Chicago Cubs take on their arch-rival St. Louis Cardinals Sunday night in St. Louis.

We will get back to some final preseason words on our local Spring Training teams, the Boston Red Sox and the Minnesota Twins, later in this column, but first some thoughts on this weekend's Final Four.

I'm certain your brackets were busted long before Gonzaga, South Carolina, North Carolina and Oregon emerged as the Final Four. Yes, Gonzaga and North Carolina are No. 1 seeds, and Oregon is a three. But who would have ever picked South Carolina, a No 7 seed, to make it to Glendale, Arizona, for the NCAA Finals unless you are a South Carolina alum?

There is much drama connected to these four teams. Both South Carolina and Gonzaga, who face off in the first game Saturday, have never made it to the Final Four before. And Oregon and North Carolina in the second game features the 20th Final Four appearance by the Tar Heels, and the first Final Four for the Ducks since way back in 1939 when they won the very first NCAA championship, then just an eight-team tournament.

North Carolina's last Final Four was as recent as last year when they lost in the championship game to Villanova on a buzzer-beating three-pointer by Kris Jenkins.

Early Las Vegas odds listed Gonzaga a slight favorite to win the championship.

This up-start South Carolina team ended the dreams of the Florida Gators faithful with a 77-70 victory in the Elite Eight Game. But congratulations to Gators coach Mike White who took his team that far in only his second year at Gainesville.

As for the Twins and Red Sox, both teams launch the new season at home Monday, the Red Sox hosting Pittsburgh in an interleague game, and the Twins hosting division rival Kansas City.

There are numerous pre-season predictions for all 30 clubs, but the majority predicts a second consecutive American League Eastern Division title for the talent-loaded Red Sox.

It's a far-different story for the Twins. Most predict an improvement in 2017 over the 2016 team that compiled the worst record in the Majors along with a last-place finish in the A.L. Central. Improved pitching and the emergence of several promising prospects are keys to improvement in 2017. Last year, the Twins started the season 0-9 and never recovered.

Trust Company's Final Investment Program In Series

Guests of The Sanibel Captiva Trust Company took part in an open discussion with Director of Research Timothy Vick, entitled Tips or Tricks: How to Invest with Confidence, on turning potential investment traps into opportunities and highlighting ways to bring discipline to financial decision making. This was the third in the season-long WOWPlus speaker series hosted by the trust company.

Vick covered the massive number of headlines in the modern news cycle and how to confidently navigate the noise. "Stock market forecasts have shown no greater reliability than dart-throwing," Vick said. "Invest based on probable outcomes, never on possible ones." Teachable moments from the past year and maintaining confidence in the market following the presidential election were also a focus of the presentation.

The final program of the WOWPlus series is entitled A Beautiful Friendship Between Long-Term Care and Finance, presented by Samira K. Beckwith, CEO and president, Hope HealthCare Services, and Robin L. Cook, executive vice president, The Sanibel Captiva Trust Company.

This women's only program will deal with such questions as how to age in your own home or choose to be part of a retirement community, as well as how to plan financially for this special time of life.

"It's important to work with a professional to assess your long-term health care needs, just as you would work with an advisor for your investment strategy," said Cook. "Planning ahead helps to create a happy and comfortable lifestyle, while avoiding possible devastating effects on your nest egg."

The program will be held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday, April 11 at The Sanctuary Golf Club, located at 2801 Wulfert Road. Reservations are required and can be made by calling Frances at 472-8300 or by emailing rsvp@sancaptrustco.com.

WOWPlus is an educational series on financial, estate planning and quality-of-life matters. It stands for Women, Opportunity and Wealth. The Plus was added this year to include gentlemen for two of this season's programs.✪

Jeweler Supports Fundraiser For Cancer Patients

Lily & Co. Jewelers returns as a Grand Slam Sponsor of the 9th annual Madisen's Match on Friday and Saturday, March 31 and April 1 at The Landings Yacht & Golf & Tennis Club in Fort Myers. Lily & Co. donated a Rolex Yachtmaster which will go up for auction at the Friday evening gala. Silent and live auctions raise funds for the Golisano Children's Hospital.

"We are pleased to be a part of this terrific charity tennis event," said Dan Schuyler, who owns Lily & Co. with realtor Karen Bell. "The funds raised from Madisen's Match stay locally, here in Southwest Florida, and go directly to helping brain tumor patients and their families. We think that is a very worthy cause to support."

Madisen's Match Gala & Auction will be an evening of dinner and entertainment by the Danny Sinoff Jazz Quartet. Saturday will feature six celebrity tennis pros: Mardy Fish, Robby Ginepri, former David Cup Team Captain Tom Gullikson, French Open Finalist Mikael Pernfors, French Open Doubles Champions Luke Jensen and Murphy Jensen. Sponsors and participants will have the opportunity for interactive on-court instruction, round-robin, Pro-Am and feature exhibition matches.

In its eight-year history, Madisen's Match has raised more than $500,000 to support the Tim and Tom Gulikson Brain Tumor Foundation, the Brain Tumor Navigator Program at Regional Cancer Center of Lee Memorial and building of the Madisen's Match Playroom in the Golisano Children's Hospital of Southwest Florida.

Kidney Transplant Program Reopens

Effective March 20, the Lee Health kidney transplant program reopened as the Lee Health Transplant Institute at Gulf Coast Medical Center. The United Network for Organ Sharing (UNOS) approved Lee Health's reactivation of its kidney transplant program on March 1. The transplant team will perform kidney transplants from deceased donors at this time, and Lee Health is committed to reopening the living donor program at a later date.

The transplant program has been comprehensively restructured from community-based to health system-based to provide the highest level of quality care and safety to patients. The new structure meets national transplant standards, and Lee Health has established new guidelines for evaluation and selection criteria of candidates.

Lynsey Biondi, MD, program director and fellowship trained kidney transplant surgeon, leads the transplant institute. Dr. Biondi is joined by fellowship trained kidney transplant surgeon Jacfranz Guiteau, MD, and fellowship trained transplant nephrologists Gautham Mogilishetty, MD, and Shalini Saith, MD. An administrative team, anesthesiologists, intensive care units, surgical progressive care units and other departments support the newly designed kidney transplant program.

"For Southwest Florida residents living with end-stage renal disease, kidney transplantation may be their only hope for a better, healthier life," said Jim Nathan, president of Lee Health. "The Lee Health Transplant Institute offers a vital service with a skilled and professional team providing leading-edge care that will help our neighbors, family members and friends live lives that are as healthy and active as possible."

Lee Health's Transplant Institute currently has 160 patients in evaluation for a transplant. On March 20, Lee Health transmitted 21 patient names to UNOS for transplant when a matching organ becomes available.

The transplant institute is significant for our community to keep patients close to home. There are only nine kidney transplant programs active in Florida.*

Benefit For Organ Transplant Recipients

Night For Life will celebrate its 10th anniversary at Broadway Palm Dinner Theatre in Fort Myers on Monday, April 17 from 5 to 9 p.m. The fundraising event is sponsored by the Organ Transplant Recipients of Southwest Florida, Inc., to benefit local organ transplant patients and those on the transplant waiting lists. This event also raises awareness about organ donation.

Entertainment this year includes the popular local band 41 South. Tickets are $35 per person, $50 for VIP seating. Cost includes a buffet dinner, program, entertainment and the popular silent and Chinese auctions. Doors open at 5 p.m.

Life Insurance

Insuring Cash Flow

J. Brendan Ryan, CLU, ChFC, MSFS

Cash flow is an essential in life. From even before the day we are born up to and even beyond the day we die, we need money to survive, thrive and finally check out.

We spend on ourselves and, especially at the beginning and the end of our lives, others spend for us and on us.

There are four great potential interrupters of cash flow: unemployment, death, disability and retirement. And financial instruments exist to protect against these last three threats.

As for the interruption of cash flow resulting from death, life insurance was created hundreds of years ago. Some life insurance, of course, is used for its lump-sum benefit, such as for buying a business from a deceased partner's estate or paying off a loan or taxes in a single payment. But the vast majority of life insurance is used in the family setting to replace the cash flow that had been provided to the spouse and kids from the earned income of the breadwinner who died. He or she no longer needs the cash flow, but the survivors sure do.

Regarding retirement, the paycheck stops when the worker leaves the workforce. But our financial system has devised retirement-income plans – and tax law has encouraged and supported them - to replace that lost income and thus continue the cash flow, hopefully for the rest of the retiree's life and that of the spouse, if needed.

As for disability, many people do not think about this at all, or they assume that this is a benefit that is automatically provided by the employer or that Social Security will cover. So, they feel, they do not have to worry about it.

Large employers' benefit packages do cover disability, subject to limits, as discussed below. But many medium and small employers do not. And Social Security can be helpful but is hard to qualify for, has a long wait and, in many cases, pays an inadequate benefit.

Employer-provided disability benefits received, if the premium has been paid for by the employer and not included as salary for the employee, are taxable as ordinary income. And, depending on the design of the plan, it may or may not pay benefits all the way to normal retirement age, even if the disability lasts that long.

Major shortcomings of most employer-provided plans include the cap on the amount of salary that is covered. The plan may cover the first $8,000 or $10,000 of gross monthly income and pay 60 percent of that income as a disability benefit. And the formula usually does not cover bonuses. So, a person making $15,000 or $20,000 per month plus a bonus will get only a fraction of that 60 percent. Plus, it usually covers just total, not partial, disabilities.

Those who enjoy no employer-provided disability benefit or who make substantially more than the maximum covered salary have an alternative if they are healthy enough to be insurable.

They can obtain an individual income-replacement policy from one of a number of insurers. In many cases, one can in this way cover earnings up to 70 percent of gross earnings and can have it payable during total or partial disability all the way to retirement age. This policy is portable, going with the employee from one job to another. The premium is usually paid by the employee with after-tax dollars, then any benefits are received tax-free. If the employer chooses to pay this policy's premium for the employee, then premiums paid are deductible by the employer and not taxable to the employee, but any disability benefit received would be taxable as ordinary income.

Having an emergency fund is essential in protecting one's cash flow. But for longer, even permanent, interruptions of cash flow due to death or disability, insurance can be a godsend.

Beautifulife:

Repurposing

by Kay Casperson

This week after doing a bit of my own spring cleaning, I began to think about how much fun it has been to repurpose things along the way. And so, of course, I wanted to share some of my thoughts in hopes that it might just spark up an idea for you as well.

Finding a new home for something that doesn't fit in its original space or making it into something that is more useful or practical takes a bit of creativity and thought, but it can also be quite rewarding to know that you didn't just toss it out because it had lost its original purpose. Repurposing can be used for organization, decorating, crafts or even for someone else to enjoy the use of now.

I love it when I can take a piece of furniture or a home accessory that doesn't work in its original space or has lost its purpose and I can find a new home for it. I always think about whether this will work at one of my locations or in any other space. If I cannot repurpose it in one of my own spaces, then I know someone else will be able to, so I donate it to a charitable organization. There are many places that will take gently used furniture, clothing and accessories and either resell them or give them to families in need or just to someone looking for "that one cool piece."

Sometimes, having a storage space comes in handy when you are deciding what you want to do with certain items and need to put them somewhere temporarily. Just keep in mind that if you have not found a new home for things after a period of time – say a year or two – then you need to part ways with those items and give them a new home by donating them.

Here is a list of ideas for repurposing things that just might spark a thought for you:

- Pull out some of your beautiful serving platters or bowls and turn them into displays of gorgeous seashells or things that you have collected over time.

- Turn drawers into jewelry chests and makeup organizers or even an armoire into a place to organize sunglasses, jewelry and accessories.

- Take a coffee table, end table or even a dining table and have it painted with a theme that adds a bit of fun and personalization. (I've even gone as far as to have a piano refinished and distressed to work well with my turquoise beachy theme.)

- Use fun mason jars or glasses that don't match your set anymore to hold your makeup brushes or makeup pencils to keep them clean and organized.

- Baskets can be great for putting together fun gifts for people or for rolling up towels and storing them near the bath tub.

- Your small teacup plates, small serving bowls or little decorative boxes can become great holders for earring backs, small jewelry items, rings or watches.

- Save all your ribbon, pipecleaners, yarn, extra material, colored pencils, paints, brushes, tape, glue, tissue paper, glitter, magazines, etc. and put them in art bins so that you can pull them out and create a collage about something you're dreaming about doing someday; we call them vision boards.

There are so many ideas for finding new homes for things and I know you have a few of your own as well. All of these things add to the fun you will have in continuing your journey to having the most balanced and beautifulife.

My affirmation for you this week is:

"I look for new ways to repurpose my belongings and enjoy knowing that the memories will live on and someone else is inspired along the way."

Baby Shay before her emergency surgery photos provided

Baby Shay is now a bright 1-year-old

Children's Hospital Impacts Local Family

Dr. Amy Stanfill, a pediatric surgeon at Golisano Children's Hospital (GCH) in Fort Myers, recently spoke with committee members from SanCap Cares, a group representing Sanibel and Captiva islanders who generously support the children's hospital. Dr. Stanfill had recounted her excitement about the opening of the new home for the hospital in May at a gathering of SanCap Cares sponsors. Afterwards, she agreed to share a story about how the equipment, facility and staff of the children's hospital have saved the life of one young patient, commenting, "I love to share happy family stories."

This is the story of the remarkable recovery – in the doctor's own words. "Baby Shay was born in a Naples

Dr. Amy Stanfill, pediatric surgeon at Golisano Children's Hospital, describes some of the life-saving results facilitated by hospital equipment donated through SanCap Cares fundraising hospital five weeks early and weighed exactly four pounds. She was in the hospital for about four days when she became ill and doctors diagnosed NEC – the intestines and colon of the infant rupture and become dead tissue – a life threatening condition. Doctors in Naples suggested a transfer to Miami, but her parents, Ashley and Jerred Hoover, requested their baby be sent to the Level III Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) at Golisano Children's Hospital in Fort Myers instead. Baby Shay was transported from Naples in the SanCap Cares-funded NICU ambulance. I was called in at 11:30 p.m. knowing there was likely to be a delicate surgery. When Shay arrived, she was critically ill and the diagnosis was confirmed. The pediatric anesthesiologist and I arranged for emergency surgery as soon as she was stabilized. You can imagine the stress and emotional toll this would take on a new mother and father.

During surgery, in the overnight hours between midnight and 7 a.m., Shay was indeed found to have a rupture and dead portions of her small intestine and much of her colon. It was necessary to remove this and make an ostomy, where the intestine loop comes to the skin and empties into a bag. A six-week long recovery in the NICU followed, due to the critical nature of her condition, size and prematurity. The NICU physicians and surgery team worked very closely to ensure her recovery. She recuperated, and the ends of her intestine were reconnected in a second surgery when she was six-months old.

Because she was a long-term patient, Shay was able to stay in one of the private NICU rooms, built to match the design of the new hospital's neonatal unit. Shay's mom, Ashley Hoover, compliments the staff and volunteers at the NICU, recalling especially the extra efforts of Nurse Gillian, the precious crocheted hats provided by volunteers, and the special attention Shay received when her parents could not be in the hospital. They were very grateful to be able to make the one-hour trip each way to GCH instead of having to stay over in Miami. The family also has a 3-year-old son, Hayden. Shay is now a thriving 1-year-old and, according to mom, "you wouldn't even be able to tell anything ever happened to her."

This is just one example of the teamwork of the nurses, physicians, and operating room crew as well as the necessary instrumentation to run a pediatric OR (including that fabulous OR table also funded through SanCap Cares) all located right here at Golisano. I'm extremely proud of the job we do, so we can care for these babies right here in our community."

Best Strategies To Control Seasonal Allergies

by Suzy Cohen, RPh

Dear Readers: I know so many of you suffer from seasonal allergies this time of year. In my teens and 20s, I was super allergic to cats, dust and pollen but by the time I hit 31, I was virtually perfect. Still, even today at 52 years old, I can wipe down the car and porch furniture from pollen, and play with cats. Sam says I'm still virtually perfect, lol! Anyway, in my youth, my immune system was weak, I took all kinds of antihistamines to no avail, but I changed my life by giving my diet a complete makeover and changing the bed linens. I'll help you right now too.

Doctors often prescribe antihistamines to block your body's histamine reaction, which causes the breathing problems and runny nose. They also prescribe corticosteroids to reduce inflammation but unfortunately those further suppress immune function.

Some medications cause drowsiness and dry mouth while others cause ridiculous insomnia, stomach pain, aggression and psychosis. Children get attention deficit problems and nightmares. As much as I approve of quick-fix allergy pills for instant relief, they're not ideal to take for the rest of your life. Do you want to cover it up or fix it once and for all?

The best alternative to medication is to revamp the way you eat. You have major control of your immune system health and the fury of its reactivity to antigens like pollen. Your immune cells reside in your gut and so you can control how touchy those cells are by feeding them better. When I say this out loud to people, I often hear "Ah whatever, I'll eat what I want to, and just take this pill, it's a lot easier." True, but over time, your immune function weakens, leaving you open to more and more allergies and major health problems.

If you truly want to get better, do what I did. Eat clean, organic fruits and veggies. Juice them, eat them and cook with them. They're high in fiber and keep your digestion moving. Pineapple is particularly good due to the high content of bromelain, a proteolytic enzyme. Sprinkle "warm" spices on your food like ginger, garlic, cayenne and cinnamon because these thin mucous. Local honey might be helpful to sensitize you to local pollens. Green superfood powder drink mixes are potent detoxifiers of the intestinal tract.

You'll have to cut out or dramatically reduce intake of dairy products, which have been tightly associated with allergies/asthma and consume less wheat and soy-based products. Those last two categories are heavily refined and may be genetically modified (GMO).

There is a longer version of this article at my website with more food tips, but right now I'll share lifestyle strategies that could easily change your life. Buy new pillows and blankets and switch to something hypoallergenic. For example, exchange down for organic cotton. Wrap the mattress with a bed-bug cover. Take a shower before bed and if that's not possible, at least run a wet brush through your hair (it gets the pollen out). And finally, when the season is upon you, keep your windows closed.

Eden Energy Medicine

EEM First Aid: Digestive Rumbles

by Karen L. Semmelman, Certified EEM, JD, AAML (03-01)

Having received requests to provide tools for dealing with everyday ailments, this column will be the first of several to provide suggestions based on Donna Eden's work. So you had a great dinner of fried shrimp, spicy salsa and key lime pie for dessert. Good for you for indulging your pleasure vices. But now the aftermath – Stomach Rumbles. Hold the fort – EEM to the rescue. Try one or more of the following until relief is achieved:

1. With your knuckles, use firm deep pressure and rub up and down on the inside of your thighs for 1 or 2 minutes (location of the small intestine

Neurolymphatic reflex points)

2. Place both hands in the middle of the chest at the base of the sternum and with firm pressure in your fingers, rub along the bottom edge of your front rib cage, continuing to rub this edge until you reach the waist (location of more small intestine Neurolymphatic reflex points). Repeat 2 or 3 times.

3. Place the middle finger of the left hand in your belly button and the thumb and middle finger of the other hand on the stomach points on your face. These points are located directly under the pupil of your eye, right at the bottom edge of your cheek bone. To aid in finding the location, place the top of your index finger at the middle of your eye, and then feel where your second knuckle touches the face. This is the approximate location. These points interface directly with the stomach meridian, which controls the energy for stomach.

If you have a question, email Karen at SemEnergyCenter@gmail.com or visit www.semmelmanenergy.com. EEM does not diagnose or cure illness, but working with subtle energies of the body has been shown to help many conditions. ✨

Ligament Injuries

by Ross Hauser, MD
and Marion Hauser, MS, RD

When joints are injured, the tissue that is commonly damaged is what we call "white" tissue. White tissue has a poor blood supply which compromises healing ability after injury. Structures made up of white tissue include cartilage, discs, labrum, ligaments, meniscus and tendons. Muscles, on the other hand, are red, and have a great blood supply and repair more easily. Many pain treatments focus on red tissue (muscles), such as physical therapy, and the white tissues are traditionally subjected to treatments that perpetuate the cycle of degeneration and lead to osteoarthritis, such as cortisone injections and arthroscopy.

Ligaments are an especially important white tissue component and key to maintaining the health of the entire joint. They connect bone to bone and are full of free nerve endings. Ligament injuries are some of the most common causes of musculoskeletal pain, and predispose the joint to further injury because they change the whole dynamic of the joint. For example, a ligament injury to the knee may give rise to jumper's knee, meniscal tears, chondromalacia patella, bone spurs and osteoarthritis. Why would a ligament injury cause other problems in the joint? Ligament injury creates a disharmony between the soft tissue, muscles and bony structures which interferes with the stability of the joint, leading to destructive joint motion. If the ligaments are left untreated, the body will try to stabilize the joint through joint swelling or overuse of the muscles, causing spasms. Eventually, this leads to bone spur formation, degenerative arthritis and/or nerve compression.

The regenerative medicine approach focuses repair of the damaged ligaments as well as the resultant damage to cartilage or other tissue. This can involve prolotherapy (regenerative injection therapy) along with an exercise program to nourish the joint while the ligaments repair and effectively stopping the cycle of pain.

Got A Problem?
Dr. Connie Is In

by Constance
Clancy

Q: My daughter's boyfriend recently broke up with her and she is feeling so rejected. I would like to help her work through this and I don't want to say the wrong thing. Can you assist?

A: Feeling rejection in the romance area can be like a sharp pain in the gut. It can make one question if one is good enough, and she may ask herself "Can I ever have a boyfriend again? What's wrong with me?"

You can help your daughter be more loving with herself as she learns to accept that this is a part of life. Help her to change the way she talks about her rejection. She can learn to shift the negativity to "it just wasn't a good match." She can express the hurt, then dust herself off and realize that it was not about her and she doesn't have to take it so seriously and personally which takes some processing.

It's OK for her to witness the feelings and explore and transform them. By witnessing her reactions instead of getting too lost in the pain will help her minimize the hurt.

You also might tell your daughter that she has a choice to be sad for ten minutes and become more joyful for the rest of her day. This way, she recognizes her feelings, then turns her feelings into joy as opposed to mulling over her hurt all day.

It's truly what she chooses to do with her time that will help her to heal.

Mom And Me

by Lizzie and Pryce

Lizzie and Pryce answer your questions and give advice about aging concerns from a two-generational perspective. A mother and daughter team, Lizzie is a retired RN and health educator, and Pryce is a licensed psychotherapist in private practice who specializes in the care of elders and people with chronic illnesses.

Dear Mom & Me,

I had been looking forward to visiting my son and his family for the Christmas holidays. They live on the other coast, so I decided to stay for 10 days. As it turned out, it was about seven days too long.

Their children – ages 7, 9 and 11 – have faces like angels, dress like bums and behave like savages. So many happenings were bothersome to me, but what was the very worst was meal time, or what goes for meal time. The family seems to be constantly at the refrigerator, gathering materials to make sandwiches. The food seems to be eaten at all hours of the day and night, with no apparent scheduling. When we did sit at the table together, it was like being at the animal trough. The kids get up and wander around, the parents answering their cell phones or making calls at the table.

My son had beautiful table manners before he went to college, but now he and his wife act dreadfully, and the kids act even worse.

I was totally disgusted. I barely tolerated the ordeal and tried to fake an illness in order to get an earlier flight home, but everything was fully booked.

I have learned a great deal from this visit. I now know I'll enjoy each day here in my own space and let them enjoy theirs, but God please help them.

Now that I have vented my recent experiences, I would like to know, do others have similar problems or is it just in my family?

Martha

Dear Martha,

You are definitely not alone with these problems. The generations do live differently, and what was important in one generation usually is irrelevant, not important and not worth even discussing in the next generation.

It is unfortunate that you had such a miserable time. Times have changed, but so have we. Think back and maybe our homes were not an oasis of calmness and tranquility with family meals all so perfect and well organized. Our memories can play tricks on us.

I am glad you have a plan and can start to enjoy each new day. As the old saying goes, "Family are like fish – they start to smell in three days."

Lizzie

Dear Martha,

It is easy to forget what it is like being around children if you have not been around them for a long time. High energy and chaos go part and parcel with kids. Also, the holidays and having the grandparents visit is hardly a normal, quiet time. It is a time for increased excitement, energy and joy.

It does seem that in today's world there is increased stimulation to the point of over stimulation, and people have a difficult time turning the stimulation down. Answering the telephone at the table and behavior like that does seem to be over the top.

Martha, today is a different world than when you were raising children. If you are going to be so judgmental, perhaps you should use today's standards, not yesterday's.

It does seem to be a crime that you would be willing to not be a part of your adult children's and grandchildren's lives instead of trying to reach a middle ground.

PETS OF THE WEEK

Lee County Domestic Animal Services

Houston And Patches

Houston is a male 9-year-old bluetick hound who came to Lee County Domestic Animal Services extremely overweight. Our staff and volunteers immediately started him on a weight-management program including daily exercise. It only took a few pounds for him to start feeling young again. He is an absolute love bug that would be a great addition to your family.

Houston ID# 689972

Patches ID# 687173

His adoption fee is $50.

Patches is a female 1-year-old domestic shorthair who is currently our longest-term resident in our catteries. She is a young and beautiful black cat that needs to be an only child. We believe she has had difficulty finding her perfect home because does not get along with other cats. She does, however, love people and her cat tower that she hangs out in during the day.

Her adoption fee is $25.

For information about this week's pets, call 533-7387 (LEE-PETS) or log on to Animal Services' website at www.LeeLostPets.com. When calling, refer to the animal's ID number. The website updates every hour so you will be able to see if these or any other pets are still available.

The shelter is open for adoptions from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The shelter is located at 5600 Banner Drive in Fort Myers, next to the Lee County Sheriff's Office off Six Mile Cypress Parkway.

All adoptions include spay/neuter surgery, age-appropriate vaccinations, rabies vaccination and county license if three months or older, flea treatment, worming, heartworm test for dogs six months and over, feline AIDS and leukemia test for cats, training DVD, 10-day health guarantee, and a bag of Science Diet pet food.

The adoption package is valued at $500.*

PAWS Of Sanibel

Prince Harry

This handsome guy needs a forever home.

Prince Harry

Prince Harry is a young, approximately 1-year-old beautiful light orange Ocicat mix with a beautiful coat. He has a lot of attitude/personality and loves to jump, run and play. He was picked up by the Sanibel Police on East Lake Road. He has been neutered, microchipped, combo tested and has had all his immunizations.

He is currently being fostered, but his foster parents are preparing for an extended vacation out of the country. PAWS would love to find him a great home with a wonderful family. As with all of the cats at PAWS, he must be kept inside, unless you teach him to walk on a leash during daylight hours only. Sanibel has become so overrun with wild critters that all small animals should be kept inside at night, and never should be allowed to roam free.

Call Pam at PAWS at 472-4823 with questions or to adopt Prince Harry.*

PAWS Of Sanibel

Hugo And Caramel

PAWS of Sanibel is trying to find a temporary foster for two dogs, beginning in April, while the owner continues to undergo cancer treatment, which is taking longer than anticipated and won't be finished until July. The dogs have been staying with friends since last fall, and the arrangement has been working great. However, they can only continue fostering them until next month.

Hugo and Caramel

The dogs can be fostered together or separate. They are bonded but also resilient and we know that two big dogs can be a lot for anyone. The family is staying with relatives on Sanibel, however, they're in a condo that doesn't allow pets. They would love to be able to visit with the dogs and would like to be able to walk them. They would provide all food, etc.

The two dogs are named Hugo and Caramel, short for Carmelita. Both dogs are around 3 years old. Hugo is a vivacious black labrador with a little mastiff mix and much like big teenager. He knows basic commands. He does great with dogs, so-so with cats, and he would do well with an experienced dog owner. He is a large, healthy dog.

Caramel is medium-sized Chow and Terrier mix, is a real good listener and pretty good at keeping Hugo in line. Caramel is a very obedient and attentive dog. They both are kennel trained and sleep together in the same large kennel.

They also go to the kennel for rest and time out as their spot. They eat two scoops each of the same food, mornings and evenings. Food, bowls, kennel and supplies will be provided.

If you can help in any way, or foster one or both of these sweet dogs, call Pam at PAWS of Sanibel at 472-4823.*

My Stars ★★★★★

FOR WEEK OF APRIL 3, 2017

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Avoid having someone else take credit for the project you started by finishing it yourself. Then it will be you lovely Lambs who will be wearing those well-deserved laurels.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The facts about a new opportunity are still emerging. Wait until they're all out in the open, and then use your keen business sense to help make the right decision.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might feel confused, even hurt by a friend who suddenly puts distance between you. If she or he won't discuss it, don't push it.

An explanation should come in time.
CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your willingness to be part of the team opens doors that had been shut to you. Keep them open by keeping your promises even when your commitment seems to be wavering.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Congratulations. You're really getting things done to purr-fection. And don't forget to take a catnap now and again to keep those energy levels up and bristling for action.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your "plain-talking" honesty is admirable. But sometimes sharp words can leave painful scars. Be careful that what you say doesn't come back to hurt you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October

22) A stress-filled period takes a positive turn as you deal with the underlying problem. Act now to avoid a recurrence by changing some basic rules in your relationship.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your rising energy levels make it easier for you to achieve some important objectives. This could lead to a big boost in how you're perceived, both at home and on the job.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A changing picture begins to emerge as you learn more about an offer that seemed so right but could be so wrong. Look to a trusted adviser for guidance.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Spiritual aspects are strong.

Take time to reflect on the path you're on and where you hope it will lead you. It's also a good time to reach out to loved ones.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You could be assuming far too many responsibilities, whether it's at work or in personal matters. Be careful that you're not weighed down by them.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're getting closer to your goals. And since nothing succeeds like success (or the promise thereof), don't be surprised to find new supporters swimming alongside you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are always the first to try new ventures and confront new challenges. You inspire others with your courage to follow your bold example.
