

Davis Art Center Rooftop To Open During Art Walk

The Sidney & Berne Davis Art Center will hold an open house of the entire building during Art Walk on Friday, May 7 from 6 to 10 p.m. The new Sidney's rooftop sculpture garden and reception area will be highlighted, and there will be a walk-through of the Davis School of Music classroom and Six Fingers Recording Studios.

The open house will also feature two contrasting exhibitions: Unfunctional Function, a solo art show from artist Juan Abuela in the Grand Atrium; and the Functional Art group show will be on display in the Capital Gallery.

The unusual art show Unfunctional Function offers another look at how things are used, or not used. Things are not always what they appear to be once stripped of their functions. Striving to find balance by grasping at the intangible inner workings of the human mind, Abuela bends the unbendable, makes workable the unworkable and takes the

Starry Night Exhibition At Arts For ACT Gallery

Arts for ACT Gallery will showcase the original artwork of Amanda Zirzow during her first solo exhibition, themed A Starry Night in May. The opening reception will be held at the Arts for ACT Gallery on Friday, May 7 from 6 to 9 p.m. The exhibition will be on display in the main gallery all month.

Zirzow is a prolific, self-taught artist and an Arts for ACT Gallery member artist and volunteer. Her bold, colorful, expressionist style of artwork is inspired by encounters from wildlife and her scuba diving adventures. Combined with her unique style, she washes her subjects with texture and colors only found in her imagination. Her high-contrast style with bright colors and bold outlines draws the viewer in and sparks that wow factor. Additionally, much of Zirzow's art is framed with hand-built wood frames constructed from discarded crab and lobster traps that add a one-of-a-kind look and texture that are as original and unique

Fireworks Set To Go Off On July 4

by Bob Petcher

This year, Fort Myers Beach residents and beachgoers can look to the sky after sunset on Independence Day and expect more than stars.

After a quiet celebration for America's birthday on Estero Island last year, the Fort Myers Beach Town Council unanimously approved Fourth of July fireworks this year during a meeting on April 19. However, the Fourth of July parade, which has been a staple on Estero Boulevard, is not being planned.

"This is not a decision to be taken lightly," said Mayor Ray Murphy. "I hope that everyone continues to practice social distancing, wear masks where you feel you need to and continue to stay safe."

What Uncle Sam Asks Of You: Do Your Part At Home

by Gerri Reaves, PhD

World War II (WWII) wasn't fought only by those on the battle fields.

Simply put, civilians at home were expected to be inconvenienced and to sacrifice. No one could escape the fact that there was a war on that was costing American lives.

Civilians took on a variety of volunteer efforts, from selling war bonds or planting a Victory Garden to staffing the USO or serving in the Civilian Defense Corps.

They also dealt with unusual circumstances like German U-boats prowling the coasts, which required nightly black-outs.

In fact, in his unpublished memoir in the archives of the Southwest Florida Historical Society, Bill Mellor describes encountering one in the Gulf just north of Boca Grande Pass while returning with fellow Sea Scouts from a "Sea Scout Rendezvous" in St. Petersburg.

That night, they heard an explosion in the distance, investigated and found debris but no survivors. They spotted the U-boat, which fortunately only circled the scouts and then left the scene. The scouts reported it to the authorities after arriving in Fort Myers the next day.

One wartime duty that no one could escape was rationing, for anybody who consumed sugar, coffee, meat or dairy products, wore shoes, or owned a motorized vehicle, had to strategize to get the most of the ration entitlement.

The Office of Price Administration (OPA) issued tokens and ration books.

The rationing was intended to help prevent price fixing, speculation and inflation. The Office of War Information, in cooperation with other agencies, such as the State Defense Council of Florida, worked full tilt to inform citizens.

Steel was rationed, so a new car, lawn mower, washing machine, or even auto parts became impossible dreams except for a few.

Early in 1942, just months after the bombing of Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, and the commencement of the war, Fort Myers, like the rest of the county, learned that citizens would soon be receiving their copies of War Ration Book One, which would contain stamps for the purchase of sugar for 28 weeks.

Unused stamps would not be good beyond the registration period.

Florida beekeepers expected to have a busy time trying to compensate for the lack of sugar with honey.

Gas rationing also began early in the war. Prior to being issued a gas ration book, car owners were required to swear that they were not in possession of more than five tires and to agree to periodic inspection of those tires.

In February 1943, families were told they could pool coupons if they desired, and that each person was entitled to three pairs of shoes per year.

A nationally syndicated column from the Regional Office of War Information, War Questions from the Home Front, provided advice on the intricacies of rationing, in addition to other topics such as car inspections, allowance checks, the economy of dry versus canned beans, whether puppies qualify for a ration book (no) and star window stickers symbolizing each family's service member.

Bulletins such as the information-packed circa-1943 publication, What Uncle Sam Asks of You: General Orders for the Home Front, laid out expectations, which involved not only ration compliance but behavior.

For example, everyone was urged not to repeat rumors, and upon hearing one, to report it to the Defense Council Rumor Clinic.

Among the many "conservation" instructions was the laundering and donation of unusable silk and nylon hose.

Even children couldn't escape the rigors of rationing. Piggybanks were denounced as "unpatriotic." The U.S. Mint had stopped producing copper pennies, and citizens were advised to turn pennies into war stamps.

Walk through downtown, imagine the WWII era, and ponder how your ration book might determine your shopping possibilities. Then visit the following research centers to learn more about how locals contributed to the war effort.

Crime Drama Opens At Lab Theater Friday

The case is anything but black and white. Charles Strickland is a wealthy white businessman charged with assaulting a young black woman. He says they had a relationship. She says he raped her. Lawyers Jack and Henry must decide whether or not to take his case. The simmering tensions continue to build until they threaten to engulf everyone.

David Mamet's Race, which opens at The Laboratory Theater of Florida on Friday, April 30 at 8 p.m. turns the spotlight on what we think but can't say, revealing dangerous truths and sparing no punches.

Artistic Director Annette Trossbach

says, "Pulitzer prize-winning playwright David Mamet gives us a provocative examination of guilt and prejudice in this compelling crime drama. Director Sonya McCarter has carefully guided our actors through a legal case that is a veritable minefield of simmering racial tension."

This show features strong adult language and mature themes.

Directed by Sonya McCarter, this show features Michael Massari as Jack, Lemec Bernard as Henry, Cantrella Canady as Susan and Brian Linthicum as Charles Strickland.

Tickets are $28 each or $10 for students with valid student IDs. Seating is limited and sold by section for safety.

Friendship Walk Raises Over $60,000

Best Buddies Southwest Florida recently raised $61,613 during its third Friendship Walk – a CARE-a-Van drive thru event – at Miramar Outlets. While the Friendship Walk is one of two major fundraisers the organization hosts, the day-of event is a celebration for the progress made toward inclusion for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities (IDD).

Morgan "Moose" Wright, who has competed multiple times on NBC's American Ninja Warrior and is also a Golden Apple award-winning physical education teacher and decorated U.S. Army officer, served as grand marshal. With over 100 volunteers committed to set-up/take-down and manning 22 stations of give-aways, attendees left with way more than they arrived.

In addition to Best Buddies prizes, vendors included Starbucks, PDQ, Culver's, Coca-Cola, Publix Bakery, Movement Mortgage, Local Chapters of Business Women (LCBW), WAY-FM, STARability Foundation, Florida Sibling Alliance, ABLE United and the Lee County Sherriff's Office with the United Way. Displays were provided by Cape Coral Police, Golisano Children's Hospital, Lee County Sherriff's Office and the Submarine Vets Naples Base. Beasley Media and B103.9 provided music and Way Too Tall Torrie danced the day away with Mussel Man from the Fort Myers Mussels and superheroes Captain American and Spiderman. More entertainment was provided by the dance team from Estero High, cheer squads from Ida Baker High, Bonita Springs High and FGCU. Junior ROTC from Estero High School, led by Senior Army Instructor Derek Carlson, assisted with parking.

The Friendship Walk this year was also a memorial to the life of Emma Bullock, a former Best Buddies chapter officer at Estero High School, who tragically passed in February. Forget-me-not seeds were given in her memory. The Bullock family was honored in the lead car, provided by Tamiami Ford, as the top-performing team for 2021. The commemorative traveling trophy will reside at Estero High

Premiere Chosen For Festival's Closing Night Film

The Fort Myers Film Festival has announced that the closing night film and awards ceremony will include the U.S. premiere of the documentary The Lost Film of Nuremberg (2021) by Jean-Christophe Klotz, and will honor local filmmakers including KC and Sandra Schulberg. Following the film screening at the Sidney & Berne Davis Art Center on Sunday, May 16 at 4 p.m., there will also be a panel and discussion.

After 75 years following the first Nuremberg trial, French journalist and filmmaker Jean-Christophe Klotz made the new documentary that delves into the making of Nuremberg: Its Lesson for Today (1948) and explores the reasons it was suppressed and not screened in the U.S.

Nuremberg: Its Lesson for Today, which will also screen as an official 2021 FMFF selection prior to the closing film on Sunday, May 16 at 2:30 p.m., is one of the greatest courtroom dramas in history, showing how international prosecutors built their case against the top Nazi war criminals using the Nazis' own films and records, spearheaded by filmmakers Stuart and Budd Schulberg. The trial laid the foundation for all subsequent trials for crimes against the peace, war crimes, and crimes against humanity. Both films document one of the greatest courtroom dramas in history and explores why the U.S. government suppressed it for decades.

Cost to view the film is $10.

The awards ceremony will feature local and international filmmakers, Champagne and dessert, and the

United Way Program Provides Millions Of Items

United Way of Lee, Hendry, Glades, and Okeechobee started the Gifts-in-Kind program in 2016. It was humble beginnings with the first year taking in 5,694 items worth over $430,000. The items donated and distributed included office furniture, new shoes, clothing and a vehicle. In a single year, those numbers doubled, and they have been on the rise every year since.

Each year, the United Way Gifts-in-Kind program gets a wide variety of physical donations and builds strong partnerships with a multitude of national and regional retail chains such as Publix, Jofran Furniture and Matter Brothers Furniture as well as local business and community leaders, and charitable individuals. These items go directly to partner agencies at no cost to them. This helps those agencies utilize their hard-earned money for their programs instead of having to buy desks, decorations or filing cabinets.

In 2020 alone, the United Way saw over $5.5 million worth of goods come into its warehouse for the program. They were then distributed directly back into the community. That is over 1.2 million items to help local agencies and programs.

United Way has been able to donate cars to those supporting their family and severely in need, furnish entire households after major hurricanes or homelessness, donate tens of thousands of school supplies to local schools and teachers, and provide office furniture to agencies after major flooding. This program has allowed the organization to be there to donate holiday meals to those in need, Christmas toys to foster families and clean clothing to students suffering without. There have been countless smiles from those who found exactly what they were looking for in the inventory.

To date, the United Way Gifts-in-Kind program has distributed 1,919,535 items that are valued at $12,359,317. These items have gone to the supporting

Friendship Walk

School for the next year, according to the family's wishes.

"Thank you to everyone who made this year's CARE-a-Van a success," said Walk Chair Cindy Lingley. "From our walk committee that worked tirelessly on plans for many months to the volunteers who came to help make this event so successful. And to Emma Bullock's family who joined us to support the buddies Emma served so passionately."

Fairy Tales Come To Life On The Outdoor Stage

Florida Repertory Theatre will present Into the Woods Jr. as part of the education department's popular Conservatory Program. Just like the older cast's version of Into the Woods, the junior edition features a professional creative team and stars a cast of local young artists on the theatre's outdoor stage. Into the Woods Jr. ran from April 28 through April 30 and continues to run through May 2.

All performances begin at 8 p.m., and tickets range in price from $60 to $100 for a socially distanced six-person square on Florida Rep's lawn.

"Producing live theatre has been a tremendous challenge, but these students have proven, time and time again, to let nothing get in their way of creating live theatre. Their professionalism and sense of responsibility never cease to amaze me," said Education Director Kody C Jones.

Into the Woods is Stephen Sondheim and James Lapine's modern classic that looks at all the famous fairy tales in one spellbinding story. Cinderella, Rapunzel, Red Riding Hood, the Big Bad Wolf, a wicked witch and a pair of handsome princes are just some of the characters who appear in this musical where everyone has a wish and everyone wants a happy ending. Into the Woods follows a baker and his wife on a journey through the forest as they try to break an evil witch's curse. Together, they discover just how far they'll go to make their dreams come true and how their actions have consequences they never intended.

The Spring Conservatory featured two different versions of the modern classic. The older student production opened April 14 and concluded April 24. The younger Conservatory students perform Into the Woods, Jr., which is shorter and ends with the first act - where all the fairy tale characters have found their happy endings.

Cast members of Into The Woods Jr.

The full version of the musical takes a darker turn in the second act when the realities of wishes come true and come to haunt some of the heroes.

"We are so pleased to wind down our spring outdoor series with these two Conservatory productions," said Artistic Director Greg Longenhagen. "Performing outdoors since last November has been quite a successful experiment, and we're so grateful that our patrons and parents have been willing to join us under the stars. While nothing replaces the magic of live theatre inside the Historic Arcade and ArtStage Studio Theatres, patrons have expressed their gratitude for the socially distanced experience with Florida Rep Outdoors."

Assistant Education Director Christina DeCarlo directs Into the Woods Jr., and is joined by musical director Carolann Sanita, set designer Nick Lease, costume designer Tony Toney, lighting designer Tim Billman, projections designer Rob Siler, sound designer Katie Lowe, properties designer Miranda White, stage manager Sarah

Joyce, assistant projection designer Ben Lowe and assistant stage manager Mara Benton.

The cast of Into the Woods, Jr. includes Emerson Black, Sophia Brook, Ella Cameratta, Danae Teblum, Nina

Dotres, Yanissah Lynn Fabre, Trevor Gluski, Carter Gurule, Ellie Kahle, Gigi Lieze-Adams, Lulu Lieze-Adams, Macy Magas, Liam Martinez, Shennan Nelson, Justin Price, Grace Ryan, Ava Stoeberl, Aiden Thayer, Cooper VanderMeer, Maudie Wells, Marianna Young and Mia Zottolo.

Into the Woods and Into the Woods, Jr. are sponsored by Lynne Birdt.

Volunteers Needed For Soup Kitchen Benefit

Volunteers are needed for Community Cooperative's 18th annual Sam Galloway, Jr. & Friends Soup Kitchen Benefit on Thursday, May 6. Volunteer shifts start at 9 a.m. and run as late as 10 p.m.

The event raises money that helps thousands of men, women and children in our community who struggle with hunger and homelessness, and this year's benefit will be particularly significant since the event's creator, Sam Galloway, Jr., passed away in March.

It was Galloway, Jr.'s idea to hold a community fundraiser in the service garages of Sam Galloway Ford, creating a unique and highly attended fundraiser. In 2020, the event raised a record $1 million, attracting 700 supporters and 150 volunteers along with nearly 20 area restaurants that contributed to the event's success.

"Most people don't realize the effort it takes just to get the event space ready," said Stefanie Edwards, chief development and operations officer for Community Cooperative. "Oil changes, tire rotations

Volunteers serve food during the soup kitchen benefit and other vehicle service is happening in the space in the morning, we transform the space by the evening for the event, and the next morning the service garage is back in full swing, like hundreds of people didn't have dinner there the night before."

In addition to helping coordinate the benefit event, volunteers have a role in raising money for Community Cooperative, which during the pandemic served three times more people at mobile food pantries than the prior year.

In 2019, Community Cooperative assisted more than 150,000 Lee County residents, providing nearly 1.3 million pounds of food, serving 231,008 meals to homebound seniors through Meals on Wheels and logging 42,590 volunteer hours.

In 2020, Community Cooperative assisted more than 174,000 individuals, providing more than 2.2 million pounds of emergency food, serving 246,000 meals in the Community Café, delivering 105,000 meals to homebound seniors through Meals on Wheels and logging 34,000 volunteer hours.

For more information on volunteering at the soup kitchen benefit or other programs, visit www.communitycooperative.com, email volunteer@communitycooperative.com or call 332-0441.✪

Food Bank Donates Needed School Supplies

Midwest Food Bank of Florida, a volunteer-driven, faith-based organization dedicated to alleviating hunger, malnutrition and providing disaster relief locally and throughout the world, has donated much needed school supplies to The Foundation for Lee County Public Schools.

As part of the community partnership with the local school foundation, the private, non-profit 501(c)(3) charity food bank recently donated a variety of school supplies for local children in need. This donation included pens, pencils, pencil cases, notebooks, folders, sticky post-its and coloring supplies for schoolchildren of all ages.

Midwest Food Bank Florida currently supports over 172 nonprofit partner agencies. This means that many local churches, veteran supports, shelters, schools, soup kitchens and mobile pantries are likely getting a large portion of their food each month from the Fort Myers warehouse. Every Tuesday, the partner agencies come to the food bank's warehouse and shop for what they need, which is 100 percent free to them.

In Lee County, Midwest Food Bank supports 84 partner agencies, which also includes providing food to several Lee County public schools.

"At Midwest Food Bank Florida, our core values encompass all areas of community engagement. We continue to seek community partnerships both to strengthen our own mission of food relief for our Southwest Florida community, and to find new ways to expand available resources to people in need," says Karl Steidinger, executive director of MFB Florida.

Midwest Food Bank has 12 locations, including 10 in the U.S., and one each in East Africa and Haiti. For more information about MFB Florida, visit www.midwestfoodbank.org/florida. ✪

Florida State Park Fee Schedule Changes

In order to continue its tradition of award-winning visitor experiences and affordable nature-based recreation, the Florida Department of Environmental Protection's (DEP) state park system will implement changes to its fee schedule for camping/cabin reservations and related utility fees beginning May 5.

Currently, fees are collected for making, changing and canceling reservations. There will be no change in these fees under the new fee schedule, and they will continue to be collected at the time reservations are made, changed or canceled. Utility fees, which are currently collected from day campers using park utilities, will be extended to cabin stays and overnight campsites using electric and water. The fee will be assessed daily.

The Florida Park Service has not increased any fees since 2009. Subsequent increases in utility fees are proportionate with increasing costs of electric power, water, sewer and utility maintenance. The increase in revenue will enable Florida's state parks to continue providing high-quality recreation in an unmatched natural setting.

Entry fees for Florida state parks and trails will remain unchanged.

The new fee schedule is as follows.

Reservation Fee – Non-refundable reservation fee per reservation for reservations online or using the call center; fee collected at the time of reservation; reservation fees do not apply to primitive sites. (No change in fee) – $6.70

Cancellation Fee – Cancellation fee assessed for each reservation canceled; visitors canceling on the day of arrival assessed a cancellation fee and the first night's use fee. (No change in fee) – $17.75

Transfer Fee – Visitors charged a transfer fee when making reservation

Red-Shouldered Hawk

by Bob Petcher

The red-shouldered hawk (Buteo lineatus) is known as one of the nation's most distinctively marked common hawks, sporting barred reddish-pinkish underparts and a solidly banded tail.

This medium-sized forest hawk hunts critters such as frogs, mice, snakes and other small reptiles and amphibians. Like a loggerhead sea turtle, the red-shouldered hawk returns to the same nesting territory year after year. According to the Cornell Lab of Ornithology, one red-shouldered hawk occupied a territory in southern California for 16 consecutive years.

At CROW, an adult red-shouldered hawk was admitted after it was found near the Sanibel Outlets in Fort Myers. The hawk was seen standing in the median of the road with its head hanging for over an hour. During initial examination, the head was still weak, still in a hanging position, and a bruise was noted below the right eye. In addition, the hawk was severely dehydrated.

Patient #21-1816 was in rough shape upon admittance and succumbed to its illness

"A catheter was placed in this patient for intravenous fluid administration," said Dr. Melanie Peel, CROW veterinary intern, about the hawk's first day at the clinic. "The patient was kept in an oxygen cage to aid in ease of respiration. Blood was obtained to evaluate for signs of infection."

The next day, the patient's condition seemed worse than the day before, and blood was noted coming from the mouth. Veterinarians expressed concern for rodenticide poisoning or trauma secondary to neurological signs from possible West Nile Virus.

"We suspected this patient either had rodenticide toxicity, which can cause spontaneous bleeding due to altered coagulation or had internal bleeding from trauma of some sort. Both of which may have caused blood to be present in the mouth," said Dr. Peel. "West Nile Virus infection was only one of our differential diagnoses for this patient, but was not confirmed, as this requires more testing. West Nile Virus is not uncommon in this region of the U.S. and causes neurologic signs in red-shouldered hawks. It is also not uncommon for these birds to fall out of trees due to their neurologic signs, which was another differential for possible trauma."

Two days after admittance, the red-shouldered hawk received a blood transfusion from CROW's red-tailed hawk ambassador, Talon.

"Ambassadors have been utilized in the past for successful transfusions," said Dr. Peel. "In addition to education and occasional temporary foster situations, they can aid in the medical treatment as well. Transfusions can be necessary after severe blood loss related to trauma or rodenticide poisoning, as two examples, which can often be successful in helping rehabilitate these animals if they are not too severely affected."

The patient continued to receive supportive care and remained under close monitoring. Sadly, the blood transfusion and efforts from the veterinary staff were not enough to help the very sick patient.

"Unfortunately, the systemic disease caused by the possible diagnoses was too advanced and severe, therefore the blood transfusion did not help this patient," said Dr. Peel. "A quality-of-life decision was made for this patient since clinical signs were not improving. Humane euthanasia was ultimately elected."

CROW (Clinic for the Rehabilitation of Wildlife, Inc.) is a non-profit wildlife hospital providing veterinary care for native and migratory wildlife from our local area. The hospital accepts patients seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mail donations to P.O. Box 150, Sanibel, FL 33957. Call 472-3644 or visit www.crowclinic.org.

Full Moon Arrival

by Capt. Matt Mitchell

After what turned out to be a few days off early last week due to a stalled front bringing rain and thunderstorms, it sure felt good to get back out on the water. Changes in weather are all part of the game and locating the fish once back at it didn't take long.

After going right back to our same springtime patterns, the snook had not moved and, better yet if anything, they had been untouched for a few days. The bite was better than we had before the weather.

Extreme south winds over the weekend blew the tides up much higher than predicted by the tide chart and made for a near perfect oyster bar set up. Of all the wind we fish through, nothing fires up snook fishing more than a south wind, Add in a strong incoming tide and you often have what can only be described as a beat down.

Pick an oyster bar that sets up on a south wind. This will allow you to sit a long way out and make a super-long, wind-aided cast. The fish have no idea you're even there, and they eat with abandon.

The huge full moon of April early this week is the traditional start of our spring tarpon migration. As conditions gradually calmed down, anglers were greeted by tarpon throughout our area. From the beaches to the passes and the sound, the switch has been flipped to the "on" position as the silver king has arrived in massive numbers. While making my usual rounds while staying on the lee side of the bay, we saw tarpon everywhere we went.

Making that switch to tarpon fishing in May still excites me. We are lucky enough to live in the most premier tarpon fishery on the planet. This annual change of pace as a guide is much anticipated. Knowing that you're chasing that fish bucket list with clients makes it even higher stress than usual. Locating these fish is the easy part of the equation. Sitting in hundreds of rolling tarpon certainly does not always guarantee success, it's still up to the fish when they decide they want to eat.

When everything does come together with a face grab, there is not a better feeling.

Shiny Blueberry

by Gerri Reaves

Shiny blueberry (Vaccinium myrsinites) is a native evergreen shrub of special value to native bees and a nectar source for butterflies.

It requires little maintenance and works best in a natural garden or as a low hedge or border.

A member of the heath family, it is also called Florida evergreen blueberry and southern evergreen blueberry.

The blue-black berries of summer provide food for birds and small mammals, and are edible for people too. Rich in vitamin C and sugar, they resemble the familiar commercial blueberry but are only about one-third of an inch across.

This woody shrub usually grows less than three feet tall and has slender branches and stems. Its natural habitats include scrub, pine flatwoods and sandhills.

The alternate shiny leaves are about a half-inch long with very fine teeth.

Native shiny blueberry is a low-maintenance wildlife-friendly shrub with edible fruit

Elliptical or ovate in shape, they can be reddish in winter or spring. A magnified view of the lower side reveals stalked glands, a distinguishing mark.

The urn-shaped flowers appear in branched clusters and resemble a bunch of tiny dangling bells. They range from white to dark pink, have reddish sepals, and bloom mainly in spring.

Give it full sun to partial shade in well-drained sandy soil. It will grow in nutrient-poor soil and has a moderate growth rate.

Once established, it is drought tolerant. It does not tolerate salt.

Colonies form via underground creeping stems.

Solitary plants usually do not fruit unless two genetically unrelated plants are present. It can be grown in containers too.

Propagate it with seeds or cuttings or by division.

The Seminoles used shiny blueberry to treat a variety of illnesses.

County Accepts Grant For Water Quality Project

The Lee Board of County Commissioners has accepted a $180,000 Innovative Technologies Grant from the Florida Department of Environmental Protection for a water quality and treatment research project.

The research, in partnership with Florida Gulf Coast University and the South Florida Water Management District, will test various methods for removal of nitrogen from the Caloosahatchee surface waters in order to improve water quality.

The research will take place at the C-43 Water Quality Treatment and Testing Project Boma site in Glades County, which includes 12 tanks, called mesocosms, containing wetland vegetation that were used to conduct a water quality assessment of nutrient removal from Caloosahatchee water that was allowed to flow through the wetland cells.

This project will utilize some of these mesocosms to test innovative technology that could reduce nutrients in water bodies, and prevent or mitigate harmful algal blooms.

The Caloosahatchee estuary has a total maximum daily load (TMDL) state designation for Total Nitrogen and an adopted State of Florida Basin Management Action Plan to lower this pollutant. Commissioners spend millions of dollars annually on projects to reduce pollutants in the estuary.

LCEC Sponsors Garden Club For Safe Tree Planting

Lee County Electric Cooperative (LCEC) will partner with the Garden Club of Cape Coral to sponsor a landscaping project for a Habitat for Humanity's Cape Coral Women Build home. The club will work with Lee County Master Gardener volunteers to create a Florida Friendly landscaping in the hopes of being an example to others in the community. This project will be documented, and a video will be created volunteers to educate residents on the nine principles of Florida-friendly landscaping.

"Our decision to sponsor this initiative has to do with the importance of the first principle in the Florida-friendly landscaping program, Right Plant, Right Place," said Public Relations Director Karen Ryan. "We are passionate about helping residents in our community understand it can be life-saving to plant vegetation planted safely away from power lines and care for trees properly."

LCEC reminds all residents that:

Touching or contacting power lines with tools may cause a powerful or fatal electric shock.

When pruning trees, all tools and trimmings must remain a minimum of 10 feet away from energized lines.

Only qualified line clearance arborists may work within 10 feet of energized lines.

Always contact LCEC before performing or contracting tree work near electric lines. LCEC can schedule safe clearing in advance of your tree care or deenergize the line.

LCEC has a strong focus on tree planning and care. Contact with power lines is extremely dangerous, and in some cases, fatal. To learn more about LCEC's commitment to safe tree care practices, visit www.lcec.net.*

Cuttlefish Exhibit At Shell Museum

Flamboyant cuttlefish hatchling

Small, colorful and rather feisty cuttlefish hatchlings are now on exhibit at the Bailey-Matthews National Shell Museum on Sanibel.

Viable eggs from flamboyant cuttlefish (Metasepia pfefferi) arrived at the museum from Woods Hole Marine Biological Laboratory in late January. After a few weeks of incubation, the eggs began to hatch. Shortly after hatching, they began to stalk and hunt their live prey of mysids, a small shrimp-like crustacean.

Unlike other cephalopods, flamboyant cuttlefish are very active during the day. They can not swim very far, so they use their arms to “crawl” along the ocean floor. Rather than swim away when they are threatened, they will display a variety of colors to startle their prey, warning them that they are toxic.

The flamboyant cuttlefish are on display in the Cephalopod Gallery and can be found in a small “crib” within the exhibit. The use of the crib is so the aquarists can keep a close eye on them, to ensure that all are eating. Once they are large enough, they will be released into the permanent exhibit.

The Bailey-Matthews National Shell Museum is located at 3075 Sanibel-Captiva Road. It is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. For more information, visit www.shellmuseum.org or call 395-2233.*

Smart Fishing Practices Help Protect Wildlife

Mind Your Line, a collaborative effort among Sanibel-Captiva conservation organizations, is issuing a plea to local fishing enthusiasts to use smart practices to protect the region’s majestic brown pelicans.

The brown pelican (Pelecanus occidentalis) is protected by the U.S. Migratory Bird Treaty and included in the state’s Imperiled Species Management Plan. Nonetheless, a leading cause of lethal injury in pelicans and other shorebirds is fishing hooks and monofilament entanglement.

The COVID-19 pandemic led to an increase in anglers on the water seeking outdoor, socially distanced recreation or fishing to feed their families in the face of economic hardship. As a result, many boat ramps and fishing piers in the region have seen an uptick in the number of injured and entangled wildlife – particularly brown pelicans.

As a member of Mind Your Line, Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation (SCCF) is working with local partners to spread the word about proper fishing practices to reduce harmful impacts on birdlife. The popular Punta Rassa Boat Ramp on the mainland at the east end of the Sanibel Causeway has been the site of a steady stream of disturbing cases because a large group of pelicans, mostly juveniles, hang around the docks and the ramp daily. As fishing charters and private boats return to the ramp and fish-cleaning station, these pelicans gather around and beg for handouts. Many of these birds are suffering from embedded fishing hooks or monofilament entanglement. Others have torn pouches from trying to swallow bony fish carcasses.

Volunteers, county parks staff and good Samaritans have been able to corral and deliver them to the Clinic for the Rehabilitation of Wildlife (CROW) for treatment, but often the injuries are too severe, and the birds do not survive.

An traumatic incident happened recently when a juvenile brown pelican became trapped in the fish-cleaning station’s carcass grinding machine. SCCF staff returned to the ramp to gain a better understanding of the situation. They observed countless birds with embedded hooks and pouch injuries. On two out of three visits recently, they captured hooked birds to deliver to CROW.

Though there is signage indicating it is illegal to feed wildlife, people still improperly dispose of carcasses and bait in the water.

Do not feed fish scraps to the pelicans or discard carcasses in the water. If caught on a line, reel the bird in slowly to prevent further injury. Place a net under the pelican as soon as you are able to reduce stress and commotion, which can cause more injury. Remove the hook by cutting the barb and pushing it backwards to remove.

The brown pelican

Release the pelican if it is healthy. If it is not, call CROW at 472-3644.

Visit the Mind Your Line website at www.mindyourline.org for information about proper ways to discard monofilament and fishing gear and how to unhook a bird. If you have questions, email mindyourline@gmail.com.*

change. (No change in fee) – $10

Utility Fee – Non-registered, day-use sites per unit per day; all campsites with electric and water service and all cabins. Does not apply to primitive tent sites or to sites that do not use electric – $7

Park fees are deposited into the state park trust fund and appropriated annually to support park operations and maintenance. Utility fees help cover increased utility costs, repairs and improvements. Improvements include repairing or upgrading electric connections, and improving and operating wastewater and water systems, including connection to municipal water and wastewater systems.

“Utility payments and improvements are a large and growing cost of park operations,” said Eric Draper, director of the division of recreation and parks. “We are proud of continuing improvements to campgrounds and cabins to make overnight stays comfortable by providing safe and reliable electric, sewer and water service.”

Survey Launched To Help Transform Local Workforce

FutureMakers Coalition of Southwest Florida has launched their latest employment survey, and officials from the regional collective impact initiative are asking for the region's help in completing the online form. To take the survey, visit www.surveymonkey.com/r/kg33mhz.

The survey is designed to capture the views and values of employers doing business in Southwest Florida.

"The goal is to get as many employers as possible to take the survey," said Tessa LeSage, FutureMakers Coalition director. "We have a bold goal to transform Southwest Florida's workforce by increasing the proportion of skilled workers holding the credentials needed to fill in-demand jobs locally to 55 percent by 2025. We are currently at just over 41 percent, so there is much work to be done, and it will take all of us working together to get there."

The Southwest Florida Community Foundation is the backbone organization of the FutureMakers Coalition and administers this survey on behalf of the coalition. FutureMakers is a regional initiative with the goal of transforming the workforce by increasing the number of degrees, certificates and high-quality credentials to 55 percent.

"In order to grow a regionally strong workforce in our communities, we need to further understand the needs and perspectives of employers," LeSage said.

The survey is divided into three sections including a company's future workforce; most desired workforce skills; and current state of a company's workforce.

The survey, which takes about 15 to 20 minutes to complete, is now open and will close on May 14.

Aggregated results of the survey will be available after analysis on the FutureMakers website and as part of the annual outcomes reporting for the coalition. Data collected will be used by the Southwest Florida Community Foundation and the FutureMakers Coalition to guide regional collective impact around post-secondary attainment and workforce development. Individual responses will be completely anonymous.

FutureMakers Coalition has been designated a Talent Hub by Lumina Foundation in partnership with The Kresge Foundation to support local efforts to increase educational attainment. The coalition is committed to creating a cradle-to-career pathway to ensure success for traditional students and adult learners. It has grown to over 300 FutureMakers representing business, education, government, nonprofits, philanthropy, residents and students across Glades, Hendry, Collier, Lee, and Charlotte counties.

To take part in this community-changing initiative, visit www.futuremakerscoalition.com or email tlestage@floridacommunity.com.✪

The Lee County Tax Collector (LCTC) recently announced the winners of the 2021 Rock the Road Challenge. Owen Pelegrino from Cape Coral High School and Colton Rimes from Fort Myers High School took home top honors in the competition, which sought the best first-time student drivers in Lee County.

Both top finishers earned $1,000 scholarships from event sponsors Dawn and Mike Sullivan at Sullivan State Farm Insurance Agencies in Cape Coral. Competition finalists Brayden Fairchild of Bishop Verot High School and Steven Hill of Riverdale High School both earned $250 scholarships from Brian Rist at Storm Smart.

The event finals were held on March 27 at Miromar Outlets as part of the Lee County Sheriff's Office Teen Driver Challenge. Finalists completed a series of driving exercises, including navigating a serpentine course forward and in reverse, a figure eight, backing and cornering, evasive maneuvers and emergency braking.

"This last year has been especially challenging for student drivers, with the postponement and cancellation of many traditional driver education programs," said Lee County Tax Collector Noelle Branning, a judge of the Rock the Road Challenge finals. "I was thrilled to see the outstanding driving skills that these students exhibited during the competition."

The four finalists moved on to this final contest after earning high scores in the preliminary competitions conducted by LCTC at LeeTran in January and February. The preliminary rounds were judged by driving instructors and videos of each competitor can be viewed on the LCTC Instagram page @ leecountytaxcollector.

In all, 43 applications were received from 17 Lee County high schools. One student from each high school was selected at random to participate. Nine students participated in the competition.

The Rock the Road Challenge is one of several community projects of the Lee County Tax Collector's office. Other initiatives include Kids Tag Art, which helps fund art education and honors student creativity, and the Tree of Life, a permanent visual dedication to organ, tissue and eye donors. ## Davis Art Center somehow hears its call to become what it wants to become rather than what is expected.

Abuela's passion for balancing matter and spirit through color and design has fueled ambiguity in his works, creating what he calls a series of Unfunctional Function. He invites the viewer into a contemplation of oneself while gazing directly into his own reflection. Learn more about him at www.juanabuelaartist.com.

Functional Art illustrates quite simply that we live in a world of practicality. There are many things in our lives we use in order to operate more easily in the modern age. These things must be in our space for functional purposes but there is no reason they should not also appeal to the eye. Functional art is designed to make us rethink the way we look at everyday things, sometimes by using unusual materials in their construction to impressively display elegance and craftsmanship which contributes positively to aesthetic value and beauty. The functional art genre can be remarkably inclusive: it encompasses everything from furniture and lighting to dishes and even books. While the terms "fine" or "high" art typically apply to traditional works of art on canvas, panel, paper or stone, functional art infuses these aesthetic ideals into things that one might never have expected to view as art. Today, many functional art objects are as avidly acquired by collectors as some of other fine art pieces, such as sculptures and paintings. These items are appreciated just as much for their beauty as their use value. This group exhibition is curated by Cesar Aguilera.

Sidney's signature cocktails will be served at the rooftop sculpture garden and reception area while guests peruse the newest works of art including the colorful Heaven's Gate mural, created by Aguilera and Brian Weaver, and sophisticated sculptures temporarily on display from Miami artists.

The Sidney & Berne Davis Art Center is located at 2301 First Street in downtown Fort Myers. For more information, visit www.sbdac.com or call 333-1933.*

How To Decorate Your Entryway

by Marcia Feeney

Your entryway makes a statement that can define the look of the rest of your home. It's the second impression your guests get after the initial gaze upon your home's exterior; it sets the tone for the look and feeling exuded by your living room, kitchen, bedrooms and other gathering spaces around your house.

Because it can make such a major impact, decorating the entryway is a task that shouldn't fall under the radar. In fact, it's one that should be on the top of your priority list. While you should keep furniture and decor to a minimum to avoid cluttering the space, you should take advantage of certain colors, patterns and textures that can compensate for the small area you're working with.

Choose a color scheme that complements, or matches, the rest of your home. While this is the place in your home to make a statement, that doesn't mean it should stick out like a sore thumb in comparison to the rest of your house. The entryway or foyer tends to flow seamlessly into another room, so choosing a similar color scheme is a critical step to connecting the dots. This doesn't mean that it must follow the same pattern, colors and textures, rather, it should be complementary to the rest of your living space (or at least the first floor). We often call this the "common thread" that establishes flow within a home.

Play around with patterns and textures, but don't go overboard. Making that initial unforgettable impression can be easily achievable if you incorporate patterns and textures into a space that could be otherwise dull and forgettable. Just remember, less is more when it comes to small areas in the home. Something as simple as replacing a hardwood floor with something more thrilling and attention grabbing like sleek and modern tile can make the statement you're looking for. A textured wall can also make a major statement in the entryway.

Have fun with a statement piece. We all know that the easiest way to make a statement is with the placement of artwork, furniture, or other accessories that does all of the talking for the room. We suggest adding interest with a gorgeous chandelier, an attractive centerpiece table, a console table, or a stunning chest. Of course, finding the best statement piece for your entryway will rely heavily on the amount of space you have to begin with. The prior suggestions may work best for someone with a large entryway over anyone who has a small, narrow space to work with.

A homeowner with a smaller entryway may consider a different route in selecting a statement piece. For example, an exquisite lamp or set of sconces, gorgeous artwork, or a large decorative mirror can make a bold statement with little effort.

Seminar On Legal And Tax Ramifications

Recent trends show employers using the services of independent contractors and freelancers more frequently in today's business world. While this choice offers many advantages, there are restrictions that could lead to IRS and legal entanglements for the employer if not properly followed.

To help local businesses understand this issue and better protect themselves, the Above Board Chamber of Florida has assembled a group of expert panelists for this month's luncheon seminar at the Crowne Plaza Fort Myers at Bell Tower Shops and online via Zoom on Thursday, May 13 from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

By attending this seminar, The Legal Differences and Tax Ramifications of Hiring an Employee vs. an Independent Contractor, business leaders will learn guidelines to help determine whether hiring a new employee or using an independent contractor is best for their company's needs. The panel will discuss the advantages and disadvantages, as well as the responsibilities of a business owner.

The panel will also review new and existing laws and explain the nuances involved when creating relationships with independent contractors.

This seminar will help attendees better understand:

The differences between an employee and an independent contractor;

Your rights and responsibilities as a business owner;

What withholdings are needed for employees;

The burden if you misclassify a worker or don't correctly withhold or pay the required amounts;

The degree of control the employer has – or doesn't have – with employees and contractors; and

How to protect you and your business from being fined and incurring tax penalties.

Fort Myers panelists include:

Tracy Pyles, senior managing attorney at Lee Health;

Kevin Ruane, Lee County commissioner and president of Castleton Mortgage;

Mindy LaCroix, president of Minette L. La Croix, CPA PA; and Suzanne M. Boy, Esq, founding member at Boy Agnew Potanovic, PLLC.

The Fort Myers event is sponsored by Tom Holmlund, president of Acarté Technology, and Ruane. Jeanne Sweeney, CEO/founder of the Above Board Chamber of Florida, will emcee both seminars.

In-person registration for the seminar is $33 for members and $35 for non-members. Zoom registration is $10 regardless of chamber membership. To register, visit www.aboveboardchamber.com.

The Paris Library

by Di Saggau

The Paris Library is based on a true World War II story of the heroic librarians at the American Library in Paris. It's a wonderful read, an unforgettable story of romance, friendship, family and, most of all, the power of good literature. Set in 1939 Paris, we meet young Odile Souchet, the daughter of a police captain, who has just finished library school. She lands a dream job at the American Library, but when the Nazis march into Paris, Odile could lose everything she holds dear including her beloved library.

Odile falls in love with one of the officers her father brings home for dinner. As the war continues and Paris is taken over, she fears for her twin brother captured by the Germans. She transports books to Jewish patrons who are forbidden to come to the library. She also starts to question some of her boyfriend's actions.

Her story is juxtaposed with that of Lily, a teenager in Montana who, in 1983, gets to know her next-door neighbor Odile, who moved to Montana as a bride after the war. Lily begins to uncover more about her neighbor's mysterious past and finds that they share a love of language and longings, never suspecting that a dark secret from the past connects them.

image provided

The Paris Library is a powerful novel that delves into the consequences of our choices and the relationships that make us who we are. The author worked as a program's manager in 2010 at the American Library, and she integrates the stories of many of the real-life employees and patrons of the library into the story. The reader discovers an unforgettable novel about the power of books and friendship and how ordinary heroes can be found sometimes in the quietest places.

The American Library in Paris sits in the shadow of the Eiffel Tower. The largest English-language lending library on the European continent, it has 4,000 members and represents 60 countries. In 2020, the library will celebrate its centennial. Charles says, "The Paris Library is a reminder that we must protect and appreciate what we have."✱

School Smart

by Shelley M. Greggs, NCSP

Dear Shelley, My daughter, who's in middle school, has recently had a series of rejections and disappointments at school and socially. She did not get the position she wanted on her team, she's failed a few tests despite studying and her two best friends have moved away. I want to help her handle these disappointments and get her back on track at school. What could help?

*Renee P, Fort MyersRenee,

It is inevitable that our children will experience feelings of disappointment, rejection and defeat at times. These are powerful feelings that are to process. When we are disappointed, unhappy or sad and don't reach some of our goals, we can fall into a trap of self-blame and pessimism. Psychologists say that resiliency, sometimes called grit, is a characteristic that can help children work through these powerful feelings.

Katherine Prudent, a counselor who works with adolescents at the Freedom Institute, has recommendations for parents about teaching their children to cope with strong feelings and for developing skills to build resiliency.

Here are some suggestions for you to use:

Comfort and validate their experience – When our kids feel validated and understood, it helps them build a sense of self. It also normalizes their feelings. When children are able to feel and tolerate uncomfortable feelings, the easier it is to handle them the next time around.

For example, if your child is disappointed because she did not win, get an A, get invited, etc., you could say, "That's so disappointing, I know you were really hoping to..." Many well-intentioned parents attempt to minimize feelings of disappointment for their kids, when they really should be validating their kid's feeling. Your child is disappointed and may need some comfort before she can consider the other alternatives.

Make failing safe – Most of us are afraid of failure. Failure is an excellent learning experience, albeit an uncomfortable one. It can help us reassess our goals and come up with a new game plan to try again. The old adage about learning from one's mistakes is quite accurate in this regard and should be used often with children. Encourage them to continue and preserve no matter the failure. It's very important to make them understand that to "try again" as is said shows strength and determination.

Align your children's value to their distinctive qualities and character, not their achievements. All parents want their kids to go to the best schools, get straight A's and be superstars, but this pressure to succeed can send a message that your self-worth is directly correlated to your achievement, which is the incorrect message to send. Instead celebrate their unique qualities and encourage them to use these qualities to succeed.

We all want to protect our kids from trials and tribulations, but if we shelter them for too long, it may hinder their ability to develop a sense of self-efficacy. When we try to solve problems for them or intervene on their behalf, it sends a message that we don't think they can do things on their own and they start believing that. Try problem-solving together, and it will give them the confidence to handle situations in the future and give you the reassurance that they can handle it.

communities in Lee, Hendry, Glades and Okeechobee communities. This program does not resell any donated goods and ensures that each item goes to those that need it most.

This year, the United Way Gifts-in-Kind website launched as a tool partner agencies can utilize by logging in and physically seeing the items currently available. This site allows them to see photos, measurements and provides an easy checkout process. Thus, the method of getting important items to agencies in need has been made efficient and easy. In three short months, United Way's Gifts-in-Kind program has fulfilled 121 online orders, and officials look forward to continuing to make a lasting impact within the communities.

United Way of Lee, Hendry, Glades, and Okeechobee has raised and distributed over $199 million since it was established in 1957. For more information, call United Way at 433-2000 or visit www.unitedwaylee.org.✱

Base Operations at Page Field has been ranked in the top five percent of fixed-base operators (FBO) in an international survey conducted by Aviation International News (AIN). This is the ninth consecutive year Base Operations at Page Field has been named a top fixed-base operator by AIN. Base Operations ranked first in the Fort Myers/Naples area, had the third best score in the facilities category, was in the top 10 for its passenger amenities' score and landed in the top 10 overall for FBOs in the Americas.

"We appreciate being recognized as a top FBO for our outstanding commitment and delivery of services to our guests at Base Operations at Page Field," said Ben Siegel, CPA, CM, executive director of the Lee County Port Authority. "The Base Operations team always does a great job, but I have never been prouder of the way they have handled themselves and our business during these difficult times."

The FBO survey is conducted annually and asks pilots, flight attendants and dispatchers to provide feedback on the level of customer care at individual business and general aviation service providers throughout the U.S., Canada, Mexico, South and Central America, and the Caribbean. AIN conducts the survey year-round online and calculated cumulative averages from 2014 to present for this year's results. The survey asked qualified subscribers to evaluate FBOs they visited the previous year in five categories: line service, passenger amenities, pilot amenities, facilities and customer service representatives.

Finding The Right Basket

by Craig R. Hersch, Florida Bar Board Certified Wills, Trusts & Estates Attorney; CPA

When choosing how to approach your estate plan, it's important to realize that the different types of assets you own have different legal and tax treatments. The way that I most often explain it is to consider them grouped into separate baskets, and then decide how you want your estate plan to distribute each type of basket.

The first basket consists of your Florida homestead. Florida law limits what you can do with your homestead in your estate plan. My book, Asset Alignment and Your Estate Plan, details the complex issues surrounding the devise of your Florida homestead through your will or trust.

If you are married, for example, and do not have a nuptial agreement with your spouse, then you must bequeath your homestead in fee simple to your spouse. You cannot bequeath a life estate interest or put your homestead in some kind of a trust that benefits your spouse for life and then distribute it to others. If you do, then you have an invalid devise. I've written other columns on this topic before. If your plan involves bequeathing your homestead other than outright to your spouse, then this basket needs attention – and likely will need at least a limited nuptial agreement dealing with this issue.

The second basket consists of your IRA, 401(k), pension and profit sharing plans (Qualified Retirement Accounts). Here, whomever you leave these accounts to will have income tax liability associated with any withdrawals, just as you presently recognize taxable income (unless you have Roth accounts) when you take distributions. While a spouse is the only beneficiary who can “roll over” the account into his or her own account, non-spouse beneficiaries will have Required Minimum Distributions (RMDs) upon receiving an inherited IRA, regardless of their age. If a minor is named as a beneficiary, a court process will also be required without proper planning. Moreover, if you name a trust as the beneficiary of this kind of account, income taxes may be accelerated without proper planning.

The third basket consists of stocks, bonds, mutual funds, cash and bank accounts that are not Qualified Retirement Accounts. These assets receive a step-up in tax cost basis at the death of the account owner, meaning that unrealized capital gains are usually eliminated. These types of accounts have the fewest restrictions on how you can bequeath them in your estate plan.

The fourth basket consists of closely held business interests. These assets aren't easily disposed of, as they are not traded on any stock exchange. Moreover, you may have other family members or third parties involved in the business or entity. There may be a shareholder, partnership or membership agreement that either restricts the disposition, or requires that the interest first be offered to the other shareholders at death. In the case of “S” Corporation stock, there are important elections that must be made within a certain time period after the death of the owner, and the type of beneficiary is restricted under federal tax law.

The fifth basket consists of annuities and life insurance policies, which have beneficiary designations. Annuities are similar to Qualified Retirement Accounts because the beneficiary will usually recognize taxable income when receiving distributions. The recent SECURE Act had some major impact on these types of accounts. Wills and trusts generally do not govern the disposition of these assets unless they are named in the beneficiary designation. Trusts named as beneficiaries of annuities may incur higher income taxes than direct beneficiaries due to their compressed federal income tax rate structure.

The sixth basket consists of real estate that is not your Florida homestead. There may be inheritance taxes associated with this asset if it is owned in a state that imposes such taxes. Commercial real estate may be held in the form of a corporation, partnership or LLC discussed earlier. The ongoing management of this asset should be considered in your estate plan.

Yet another basket might be a trust in which you are a beneficiary and possess a “power of appointment” that would allow you to alter its disposition from the default provision in the governing document, which might be a parent's will or trust. Your attorney should determine whether you have a power of appointment, whether it is limited in any way, and whether the value of the trust will be considered taxable in your estate for federal estate tax purposes.

There may be other baskets in any individual plan. So as you can see, when planning your estate, all of the different baskets should be considered, along with their unique legal and tax consequences. Failure to consider the intricacies of each type of asset might result in missing planning opportunities or in unintended adverse results.

Bank Funds $109 Million For COVID-19 Loans

Sanibel Captiva Community Bank has processed more than 1,100 loans totaling just over $109 million under the Small Business Administration's (SBA) Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) to help local small businesses, nonprofit organizations and independent contractors support payroll and related costs, saving tens of thousands of jobs in Southwest Florida.

The PPP, which was originally launched in April 2020 to address economic challenges caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, provides forgivable, government-guaranteed loans for the nation's small businesses. According to the SBA, approximately 41.7 percent of Florida's workforce are small business employees.

In the first round of the program, the bank processed 766 loans for nearly $70 million. In the current round, almost 350 additional loans have been secured for $37 million.

“As a community bank, we combine traditional bank functions with relationship banking, which delivers added value to our customers and enables us to help support the Southwest Florida business community,” said Kyle DeCicco, Sanibel Captiva Community Bank's executive vice president and senior loan officer. “Over the past year, our team has worked tirelessly to process these loans, ensuring that essential funds are made available to Southwest Florida businesses.”

The average loan amount Sanibel Captiva Community Bank processed was just under $100,000. Loan amounts ranged from as low as $500 to more than $3.7 million. ✪ be the pyrotechnics company to set off the fireworks at the end of the Beach Pier. The show is expected to begin at approximately 9 p.m. Note that Matanzas Pass Bridge will close to oncoming traffic from 9:30 to 11 p.m. Anyone over the age of 6 will be required to wear a mask if they are unable to social distance.

Last year, due to COVID-19, Fort Myers Beach officials, along with officials from all other Southwest Florida town municipalities, postponed the annual fireworks show slated for July 4. The Fort Myers Beach Town Council did approve to authorize Town Manager Roger Hernstadt to execute a revised contract with Garden State Fireworks in the amount of $27,000 for the 20-minute choreographed display between July 4 and December 31, 2020. A nonrefundable deposit of $13,500 – 50 percent of the total cost – would have to be included with the signed contract, which was revised with language increasing a 90-day window to hold the fireworks show to 180 days to include New Year's Eve.

But, due to the ongoing pandemic, Town of Fort Myers Beach officials nixed the idea of a New Year's Eve fireworks celebration as well. They did, however, extend their previously extended agreement with Garden State Fireworks a second time, to allow the in-place contract to be applicable for July 4, 2021. ✪

Frankly Speaking

by Howard Prager

We all deserve to have a great moment. Whether it's scoring the winning goal or getting a win at work. Whether it's bowling a personal high or cooking a perfect meal.

Whether it's giving advice that helps others achieve their goal, or having fun with the perfect companions on the golf course. Whether it's doing something for your community or watching your team succeed. They all count.

Sports provides us an outlet either to achieve personal bests or to watch others we root for do so. I recall seeing Kerry Woods' 20 strikeouts, Walter Payton rush for over 200 yards in a game while helping his defenders to their feet, cheering the Dolphins on to their perfect season and seeing Franco Harris' "immaculate reception." Watching Michael Jordan, tongue hanging out do the impossible with a basketball or the Miami Heat do the near impossible and almost take it to the Lakers in the Finals last year.

Have you ever felt what it was like to be in that groove? I celebrated when my mom bowled her first 200 game and 500 series. I heard about my father-in-law Ed Frank cheering on his undefeated Indiana Hoosiers in Philadelphia in 1976. I was excited for my dad when he broke some key accounts as a sales manager and marveled as he treated his biggest and smallest customers with the same care and respect. I beamed when I won awards for world class leadership programs, and I treat my clients just like my dad did. And, I felt great pride when both my daughters-in-law got into their first choice for residency and graduate school.

As a kid, the excitement might be just making the team. Then making the lineup. Then making the catch, or a clutch hit. Or getting an 'A' on a test or paper. As we got older, the stakes are raised. For some, it's living vicariously watching the success of others we admire or care about. For others, it's satisfaction for a job well done or personal bests at various ages.

Sports is a metaphor for life, and the more we can relate, the more we share in the victories. This is whether it's one at bat or one test, one assignment or one goal, or celebrating a family member or friend who achieved a personal best in whatever they tried.

What are the moments that make you smile and will never forget? Neil Armstrong walking on the moon? Any of John F. Kennedy or Ronald Reagan's famous speeches? Hank Aaron breaking Babe Ruth's record? The longevity of ironman Cal Ripken Jr.? And these moments from 2021 alone: Tampa Bay and ageless QB Tom Brady besting young phenom Patrick Mahones and the KC Chiefs in the Super Bowl? The first woman to officiate a Super Bowl and the first team to have to women coaches in a Super Bowl? Baylor winning its first NCAA tournament and the Stanford women winning a very close NCAA final? Joe Musgrove pitching the Padres' first no-hitter, caught by a catcher (Victor Caratini) who in his previous start caught another no-hitter from Alex Mills of the Cubs? Carlos Rodon coming back from so many injuries to throw the first no-hitter for the White Sox this year? Hideki Matsuyama making history as the first Japanese man to win the Masters?

As we cheer on our favorite players and teams to victory, as we watch the matchups and series, the signings and the comebacks, or even just the opportunity to sit in a seat for a live sports match, think about the way you have had your day in the sun. We have (just about) made it through the worst pandemic ever, and here's hoping it's almost over, but remember it's not yet. What did you learn about yourself this past year and how you were able to survive with less physical contact last year? Think about how we made it through the "time with no sports," when a HORSE contest caught our interest on TV, or when we taped or stayed up late to watch Korean baseball or the ESPN series The Last Dance. Think about our kids, grandkids, nephews and nieces all making it through a school year and achieved their shining moment in the most challenging of times. We did it.

Our final two stories, including the good news story of the week, is about two no-hitters by two southpaws. One, a 31-year-old MLB all-star, and one a 17-year-old high school pitcher in Kentucky. Madison Bumgarner pitched the third no-hitter of the baseball season last weekend. And in a baseball-shortened double header of 7 innings each, the Diamondbacks held the Braves to just one hit in the two games, which is an MLB record. But in 1991, baseball decided that for a no-hitter to count, it must achieve a minimum of nine innings to be in the record book.

Let's turn your boos to cheers for Walker Smallwood, a 17-year-old at Dixie Heights High School in Edgewood, Kentucky. In 2018, he was diagnosed with bone cancer in his left leg. After numerous surgeries and treatments, all he could do was play catch. "It was pretty devastating," his mom, Pam, said. "He just kept asking, 'Can't I just pitch?' And we kept saying, 'No, you just really can't.'" His leg was just too fragile. "At the time, I guess I was just kind of in denial, because my whole life, day in and day out, was built around baseball and sports," Smallwood said. According to CBS News, "before stepping off the mound for good, his parents and coach decided to let Smallwood start one last game. 'What we agreed to was maybe an inning, a few batters,' Pam said. Smallwood added, "Say you did it, have some fun, and then that'll be it. Obviously, that's not what happened." Smallwood threw strikes. And kept throwing them. The coach decided to keep him in there until he gave up a hit. He didn't. A no-hitter in his very last game, only the second in school history. "When the last strike came, I was just in denial all over again. I was like, that didn't just happen," he said. "I was in tears, most of the stands were in tears - just one of those special moments that we'll cherish forever," Pam said. That's a lifetime record that Walker, his family and teammates will never forget.

Health Alert For Alva Boat Ramp

The Florida Department of Health in Lee County (DOH) is issuing a health alert for the Alva Boat Ramp based on reports of algae toxins found by the ramp. When blue-green toxins are detected, DOH recommends individuals avoid contact with the water. DEP will continue to post updates for Alva Boat Ramp on their website.

Blue-green algae can cause gastrointestinal effects if swallowed. Children and pets are especially vulnerable, so keeping them away from the water during a bloom is especially important. If you wish to report a new algae bloom, visit www.surveygizmo.com/s3/3444948/Algal-Bloom-Reporting-Form.

DEP, the five water management districts, DOH, the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission and the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services all work together to respond to algal blooms. DEP has been closely monitoring and testing algal blooms and will continue to respond to any new reports.

Food Drive Nets Tons Of Peanut Butter And Jelly

Community Cooperative's pantries are now filled with over four tons of peanut butter and jelly supplies thanks to community support of the nonprofit's 2021 Peanut Butter & Jelly Food Drive.

Peanut butter and jelly are some of the most frequently requested items at mobile food pantries because it is kid-friendly, shelf-stable and protein-rich. To help keep its shelves stocked all summer long, Community Cooperative launched its annual Peanut Butter & Jelly Food Drive in March to rally the support of families, businesses and the community in collecting supplies.

A total of 8,131.5 pounds of donations were dropped off at Community Cooperative's weigh-in on April 21, which equates to 128,000 peanut butter and jelly sandwiches for the community. Today, supplies are already landing in the hands of local children, families and seniors in need, distributed through Community Cooperative's mobile food pantry.

"Our community helped spread the

"These donations can now directly impact our neighbors in need, providing important sustenance to those who rely on these pantry staples."

Thousands of jars of peanut, almond and alternative nut butters, jellies and

Are Artificial Sweeteners Healthy?

by Julie Rosenberg, MD

Too much sugar in your diet? You're not alone. The average American consumes 17 teaspoons of added sugar daily, which is about 57 pounds of added sugar consumed annually per person.

How much added sugar should we consume? The American Heart Association recommends six teaspoons of added sugar per day for women (100 calories) or nine teaspoons of added sugar per day for men (150 calories).

The best way to reduce added sugar in your diet is not to consume foods or drinks with high amounts of sugar such as baked goods, candy, fruits canned in syrup, fruit juices and soft drinks. Do the math. One 12-ounce can of Coca-Cola contains 39 grams of added sugar (140 calories from sugar). Drinking water with meals and in-between meals is a great, no calorie alternative!

Pros and Cons of Artificial Sweeteners – Artificial sweeteners are substances with a very intense sweet taste that can be used in small amount to replace the sweetness of a much higher amount of sugar. If you're trying to reduce the sugar in your diet by using artificial sweeteners, it's important to understand their role in your diet and the pros and cons of using them instead of regular table sugar (sucrose).

Artificial sweeteners are synthetic sugar substitutes. They are widely used in processed foods, including "sugar-free" soft drinks, baked goods, jams and jellies, and some dairy products. They are also popular for home use and widely available in packets at restaurants for customers who want to sweeten food or beverages.

Artificial sweeteners are regulated by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) as food additives. They must be reviewed and approved by the FDA before being made available for sale to the public. The FDA has approved five artificial sweeteners: saccharin (Sweet N Low; Sweet Twin), acesulfame (Sweet One), aspartame (NutraSweet), neotame (Newtame), and sucralose (Splenda).

Possible health benefits of artificial sweeteners – Artificial sweeteners don't contribute to tooth decay and cavities. They have virtually no calories, while a teaspoon of sugar has about 16 calories. Artificial sweeteners are not carbohydrates, so, unlike sugar, they generally don't directly raise blood sugar levels.

Possible concerns with artificial sweeteners – Recent scientific data suggest that replacing sugar with artificial sweeteners may damage the way your body naturally processes sugar, making you more susceptible to overeating, weight gain, cardiovascular disease and diabetes. Data have also emerged suggesting that artificial sweeteners may impact the composition and function of the gut microbiome.

Novel sweeteners – Novel sweeteners are difficult to fit into a particular category because of what they're made from and how they're made. Stevia is an example. Stevia is a natural sweetener that comes from the stevia rebaudiana plant. Stevia leaf extract is Generally Recognized As Safe (GRAS) in accordance with FDA requirements. Crude stevia, or whole-leaf stevia, does not have this status and has not been permitted for use as a food additive.

Tagatose is a form of fructose (fruit sugar) that is 90 percent sweeter than sucrose. Tagatose is classified as a GRAS by the FDA. Due to its low glycemic index, tagatose may have a role in management of obesity and type 2 diabetes.

The bottom line – Avoid artificial sweeteners whenever possible. If you do use artificial sweeteners, choose them carefully and use them in moderation. Read labels. Food that are sugar-free aren't necessarily calorie-free. Processed foods often contain sugar substitutes and don't offer the same health benefits as eating a whole-foods, primarily plant-based diet.

Learn To Manage HIV During Free Workshop

More than 1.2 million people in the United States have HIV (human immunodeficiency virus), according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). In Lee County, the Florida Department of Health estimates around 2,300 community members are living with HIV, and that number continues to grow.

Lee Health is offering a free self-management program in partnership with McGregor Community Services. The six-week workshop – the next virtual workshop starts May 19 and runs through June 23 – is focused on education and awareness.

"There is a need for this kind of a program in our community, and at Lee Health, we want to meet that need," said Sharon Krispinsky, RN, chronic health program coordinator with Lee Health. "That's why we're offering a free workshop designed to teach a variety of tools to actively self-manage this condition. The workshop is for those living with HIV and their loved ones."

HIV is a virus that attacks the body's immune system and, if not treated, can lead to AIDS (acquired immunodeficiency syndrome). While there is no cure for HIV, with proper medical care, it can be controlled and managed. People with HIV who get effective treatment can live long, healthy lives.

The McGregor Clinic is one of the largest providers of HIV care in Southwest Florida. McGregor Community Services is a division of the clinic that offers different services to the community through free HIV rapid testing, education, mobile unit outreach and community mobilization. Their team members have volunteered to teach the self-management workshop.

Through the program, which was originally developed by Stanford University, participants will learn how to:

- Live with a chronic condition;
- More easily manage medications;
- Understand the benefits of exercise;
- Make smarter decisions related to healthy eating;

• Work more effectively with health professionals;

• Understand ways to manage difficult emotions; and

• Improve sleep through different methods and tools

"The techniques taught in this class are proven to help those with HIV successfully manage their condition," said Amy Zamot, prevention director at The McGregor Clinic. "Those with HIV and their loved ones who attend the workshop will meet and gain support from others, which is so important in self-management of the virus."

Virtual and in-person sessions are offered throughout the year. Participants of the program will be in small, confidential groups, and the classes will be lively and interactive.

How Glutathione Is Depleted From The Body

by Suzy Cohen, RPh

Dear Readers: What if you were taking an over-the-counter med like an antacid, or an analgesic, and it was stripping you of an important antioxidant called glutathione? Would you want to know?

Glutathione is made in the body, and it's found in many supplements nationwide. It is a powerful antioxidant that reduces oxidative stress. It may even help with skin conditions such as psoriasis, and alcohol-related liver injuries as well as non-alcoholic fatty liver. Special forms like the "acetylated" forms of glutathione penetrate the brain and may help with neurological diseases.

Recently, a friend who has my book Drug Muggers asked me to explain how medications deplete glutathione. He wasn't able to find studies on PubMed to correlate with all the medications I listed in the chapter for glutathione. He's correct, there is not a direct study to substantiate every single drug I listed because I'm thinking two steps ahead.

Today, I'll share with you my common sense reasoning behind the list of drugs included in my Drug Muggers book, so you can use the information and apply it to yourself or a loved one.

In the human body, you have many complex metabolic pathways, and one of them is called the transsulfuration pathway which makes cysteine. You need vitamin B6 for the transsulfuration pathway to produce cysteine. Anything that depletes or blocks B6 slows down the production of cysteine, which is required to make glutathione. The methylation cycle makes biologically active B9 (folate). And you make B12 in your gut. Think of each metabolic pathway as a spinning cycle, having different gears, and each gear needs to be well-oiled with nutrients or else the spinning stops temporarily. That would be bad for your health.

Here is a list of medication categories that impact levels of glutathione, and my reasoning behind it. By the way, if you'd like the more comprehensive version of this article, I routinely give my articles to my online subscribers and if you wish to, sign up at www.suzycohen.com:

Acid Blockers/Antacids – These medications severely impact the human gut microbiota. They suppress absorption, or block production of the entire B complex family, especially B12 which is required as a precursor nutrient in the pathway that ultimately makes glutathione.

Analgesics – The medications listed in my book all contain acetaminophen which can deplete glutathione stores. This is well known in the medical community. I hope your physician has told you that. If not, please pose the question because glutathione is directly depleted by acetaminophen (aka paracetamol in other countries).

Antibiotics – These life-saving medications are sometimes taken for more than 14 days and, if that's the case, you can expect a total disruption of your gut flora, which suppresses B12, which then means the transsulfuration "gear" is cranked, and now you can't make glutathione.

Nicotine – Smokers may not realize that glutathione production is suppressed and supplementation may be helpful to avoid profound oxidative injury to the lungs and liver. If you're uncertain about glutathione, and if it is right for you, please ask your practitioner before self-supplementing.

Blood Donations Urgently Needed

Lee Health is seeking blood donations to help replenish supply levels. Current blood supplies are critically low, and Lee Health's blood centers are in urgent need of donors.

As home to the region's only trauma center, it is vital that the health system's blood supply remains at healthy levels in order to quickly care for patients needing an urgent transfusion. Blood and blood products are not only used in the trauma center, but also to treat cancer patients, premature babies, anemia and a variety of other conditions.

Lee Health's blood centers are the sole supplier of all blood products for the entire health system. About 800 units of blood are needed per week, and the blood centers rely on life-saving donations from the community to maintain inventory levels.

The Lee Health Blood Mobile will be at numerous locations throughout Southwest Florida in May.

May 1 – AM Vets Post #81; 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.; 1910 North Tamiami Trail, North Fort Myers

May 2 – First Christian Church of Cape Coral; 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.; 2620 Country Club Boulevard, Cape Coral

St. Cecilia's Catholic Church; 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.; 5632 Sunrise Drive, Fort Myers

May 3 – Hahn Loeser & Parks LLP; 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.; 2400 First Street, Suite 300, Fort Myers

May 4 – Marine Concepts; 9 a.m. to 12 p.m.; 2443 SW Pine Island Road, Cape Coral

May 7 – SPADA Salon & Spa; 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.; 13161 McGregor Boulevard, Fort Myers

May 7 – Trauma Awareness Drive; 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Gulf Coast Hospital, 13681 Doctor's Way, Fort Myers

All blood donated at Lee Health stays within the health system to care for patients in Southwest Florida. If unable to attend one of the upcoming blood drives, donations can also be made at one of Lee Health's blood centers to help save lives.

Do Your Knees Hurt When You Run?

by Ross Hauser, MD and Marion Hauser, MS, RD

Most runners get used to nagging injuries and manage to work through them. As avid runners, we have certainly done that over the years. When we were actively running marathons one or two times per year, we experienced our share of injuries, including shin splints, plantar fasciitis, back and hip pain, and yes, knee pain.

For most runners, injuries do not become "real" until the injury hampers them from running. Prior to that, the aches and pains, stresses and strains of running are considered "normal." At some point, you can no longer manage the pain with foam rollers, Ben Gay, supplements, pain relievers, and various tapes and braces.

Many runners suffer from Iliotibial Band Friction Syndrome (ITBS) due to irregular compression forces between the iliotibial band and the lateral femoral condyle (the lower bony part of the thigh bone that connects to the shin bone). This causes the irritation and inflammation of the tissue, thus the other name "Runner's Knee." Typically, runners also have weak gluteal muscles that allow the IT band to rub against the outside of the knee joint causing friction, pain and inflammation. Tight hip muscles are also common in runners, which increases their chances of developing ITBS. Runners who overpronate, or their foot rolls in, can cause the lower leg to rotate inwards, resulting in increased friction in the knee. One other interesting cause of ITBS is running on uneven surfaces such as the beach or roads with gutters that drain to one side. We have both experienced this injury from running on uneven surfaces – so watch where you are running!

Common symptoms of Runner's Knee or ITBS include pain on the outside of the knee, more specifically around the bony protrusion on the outside of the knee. Pain is typically progressive and gets worse over time and/or worsens as the runner runs. Sometimes the pain seems to disappear only to return once resuming training. Running downhill typically feels worse than running uphill.

Typical treatments include rest, ice, anti-inflammatory medications, stretching exercises, deep massage and foam roller exercises. If the injury is not too extensive, these methods may work for you. If you are not getting relief from these therapies, we utilize prolotherapy treatments at our Caring Medical office to the ligament and tendon attachments to rebuild and strengthen the soft tissue and provide beneficial outcomes, along with a gait analysis and an individualized rehabilitation program. Sometimes the problem is more systemic and involves treating the hip, knee, ankle and/or foot.

Happy Running! We hope to see you out there on the multi-use path or beach!

Stone Crab Season To End

Florida's recreational and commercial stone crab seasons in state and federal waters will come to a close on Sunday, May 2, with the last day of harvest being Saturday, May 1. This annual season closure date was modified last year as part of a suite of changes that were made in response to a long-term decline in harvest and because the stone crab fishery is likely undergoing overfishing. These changes are intended to increase the stone crab population and build resiliency in the fishery.

Beautifulife:

The Mind

by Kay Casperson

This week, I had the opportunity to have my 85-year-old Dad visit me from Minnesota. He usually travels here a couple of times a year but has not come for quite some time since the pandemic hit. Dad was recently diagnosed with Alzheimer's, and so I wasn't sure if having him fly here alone was such a good idea. But, after many discussions over our weekly phone calls, I could tell in his voice that he was ready to get out of there for just a bit. I knew he needed some sunshine, outdoor fun and a granddaughter fix.

Spending quality one-on-one time for a week with my Dad gives me a clear indication of how he progresses with this disease. I flew out to Minnesota last July with my daughter and spent a week with him in his environment. But, when he arrived here, I have to say that I was pleasantly surprised to see just a slight decline in his memory function.

My Dad's father had Alzheimer's and ultimately died of it when he was in his late 80s. This disease is so complex as most people are very healthy in their bodies yet see a gradual decline in their minds. Dad's doctor recently told him that he had the heart and body of a 65-year-old man. He has always been extremely healthy, vibrant and witty. I can see how frustrating it is for him when he can't remember what we talked about just minutes ago.

We can help individuals get through this mind deterioration with a sense of dignity, determination and joy. Here are my suggestions:

Talk about the past. The short-term memory is the first to go, so ask questions about long ago. You will be sure to have great conversations that bring much happiness and fulfillment.

Make it simple. Create environments that are easy to navigate in the home with little clutter and easy access to the necessities. Label bottles with everyday things such as skincare, medicine, food items, etc.

Familiar faces. Avoid crowds and ensure that you surround them with people they already know. Not only will your loved one feel more comfortable, but you can also be at ease with those that lovingly understand.

Keep a calendar. Get a calendar that your loved one can write on and keep track of daily and weekly events and tasks. These can include everything from when to take medicines, going to events, or remembering birthdays.

Exercise the mind. Make sure your loved one has plenty of things to keep their mind active. Crossword puzzles, name searches and books, to tinkering in the garden or having a home project to work on are all excellent activities. These things will continue to give a sense of accomplishment and fulfillment.

Hygiene and health. If your loved one lives alone like my Dad, this can be tricky. Remembering to shower regularly, do laundry and eat the right foods at the right time are things that can get a bit confusing.

Luckily, my sister lives close enough to check on him to make sure he stays on top of things.

As we age, certain things seem to wear out faster than others. For some, it can be hips or knees, and for others, it can be the mind. But, what I know for sure is that regardless of what goes first, we can always make the best of what we have to make it last as long as possible. It is essential to continue to help others live their best and most beautiful lives forever.

My affirmation for you this week is:

"I will cherish every moment I have with my loved ones and will continue to help them live their best lives."

Gulf Red Snapper Season Set To Open In June

Gov. Ron DeSantis recently announced that the popular 2021 Florida gulf red snapper recreational season is set to open on Friday, June 4 and will run through Wednesday, July 28, with a possible fall reopening if quota is available.

"This will be the longest summer season anglers will have since the FWC (Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission) started setting seasons for fishing in the gulf state and federal waters off Florida," said Gov. DeSantis. "The state is proud to provide continued access and opportunities for Florida families to enjoy the Fishing Capital of the World."

This season will apply to those fishing from private recreational vessels in gulf state and federal waters, as well as charter vessels that do not have a federal reef fish permit and are limited to fishing in state waters only.

"Anglers across the state look forward to red snapper season each year," said FWC Chairman Rodney Barreto. "Our agency looks forward to providing 55 days of red snapper opportunities in gulf state and federal waters."

If you plan to fish for red snapper in state or federal waters from a private recreational vessel, even if you are exempt from fishing license requirements, sign up as a state reef fish angler (annual renewal required) at www.gooutdoorsflorida.com.

Beef and Sweet Pepper Skewers

24 ounces beef (tenderloin, sirloin or your favorite cut of beef) cut into 1-inch cubes

- 2 large bell peppers (your favorite color), cut into 1-inch squares
- 2 large onions cut into 1-inch squares
- 1 cup steak sauce (your favorite)
- 8 bamboo skewers (soaked in water for 1 hour) or metal skewers
- cooking oil spray for grilling

Sea salt and fresh ground pepper, to taste

Make skewers by alternating the beef, peppers, and onions. The skewers can be made with all of the same ingredients or they can vary. Lightly season the completed skewers with salt and pepper. Preheat the grill to medium-high heat. Lightly spray the skewers with the cooking oil spray and carefully add the beef skewers to the grill. Cook to the desired temperature while brushing on the steak sauce. When the desired temperature or doneness has been reached, remove the cooked skewers from the grill. Let the food rest for 3 minutes before serving them warm.*

Maui And Rose

Hello, my name is Maui. I'm a blondie brindle 1-year-old male boxer mix. I will go home or on vacation with you. With a name like Maui, I am ready for either. I am the life of the party and will keep you entertained. I would love to be in a home with another pup to play with and keep him/her company. My adoption fee is $10.

Hi, my name is Rose. I'm a fawn 3-year-old female pit bull mix. I'm a happy girl that is full of smiles. I can light up a room with my personality and charm. If you are active and like to go on long walks or run, I would be a great companion. My adoption fee is $10.

Lee County Domestic Animal Services is located at 5600 Banner Drive in Fort Myers. Adoptions are available by appointment Monday through Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Visit www.leelostpets.com to complete an online application. ## My Stars ★★★★★ FOR WEEK OF APRIL 26, 2021

- Aries (March 21 to April 19) Impatience is still somewhat of a problem. But a sign of progress should soothe the anxious Aries heart. Meanwhile, invest some of that waiting time in preparing for the change ahead.
- Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Bovines tend to excel at solving problems, not creating them. But you risk doing just that if you're slow to respond to a timely situation. If necessary, seek advice from someone you trust.
- Gemini (May 21 to June 20) The Gemini Twin might need to do more than a routine check of both a job-linked and home-based situation. Dig deeper for more data on both fronts to avoid unwanted surprises later.
- Cancer (June 21 to July 22) Moon Children facing an important workplace decision are encouraged to use their perceptiveness to see through any attempt to win them over with a supercharge of fawning and flattery.
- Leo (July 23 to August 22) Good news catapults Leos and Leonas into reconsidering a deferred decision. But time has moved on, and it's a good idea to recheck your plans and make

- adjustments where necessary.
- Virgo (August 23 to September 22) The week favors relationships, both personal and professional. Take the time to look for and immediately repair any vulnerable areas caused by unresolved misunderstandings.
- Libra (September 23 to October 22) A friend's problems bring out your protective instincts. Be careful to keep a balance between meeting the obligations of friendship without being overwhelmed by them.
- Scorpio (October 23 to November 21) The temptation to take an extreme position on an issue is strong, but moderation is favored both in personal and professional dealings. Move toward finding areas of agreement.
- Sagittarius (November 22 to December 21) Getting another boss or teacher? Try to see the person behind the image. It will help you adjust more easily to the changes that new authority figures inevitably bring.
- Capricorn (December 22 to January 19) Much as you might dislike the idea, keep an open mind about using the assistance of a third party to help resolve problems that threaten to unravel an important agreement.
- Aquarius (January 20 to February

- 18) Career choices that seem too confusing to deal with at this point probably are. More information would help uncomplicate them. On the personal side, a friend might need your advice.
- Pisces (February 19 to March 20) A challenge that seems easy enough at first could take an unexpected turn that might test your resolve. Decide if you feel you should stay with it, or if it's better to move in another direction.
- Born This Week: You can be strong when standing up for justice, both for yourself and for others.

MOMENTS IN TIME

- On May 4, 1776, Rhode Island becomes the first American colony to renounce its allegiance to King George III. Ironically, Rhode Island would be the last state to ratify the new Constitution more than 14 years later.
- On May 8, 1792, Congress passes the second portion of the Militia Act, requiring that able-bodied males between the ages of 18 and 45 be enrolled in the militia. The act was quickly tested when farmers in Pennsylvania, angered by a tax on whiskey, attacked the home of a tax collector. President George Washington responded with 15,000

- militia members.
- On May 7, 1915, the British ocean liner Lusitania is torpedoed by a German submarine off the coast of Ireland, sinking within 20 minutes. Of the 1,959 passengers and crew, 1,198 people were drowned. The British Admiralty had warned the ship to avoid the area, but the Lusitania's captain ignored the recommendations.
- On May 3, 1946, in Tokyo, the International Military Tribunals begins hearing the case against 28 Japanese military and government officials accused of committing war crimes during World War II. All but three of the defendants were eventually found guilty.
- On May 9, 1950, Ron Hubbard publishes Dianetics: The Modern Science of Mental Health. The book introduced a self-help psychology called Dianetics, which morphed into a belief system called Scientology, popular due to its high profile in Hollywood.
- On May 5, 1961, Navy Commander Alan Shepard Jr. is launched into space aboard the Freedom 7 capsule, becoming the first American astronaut to travel into space. The flight lasted 15 minutes.
- On May 6, 1994, a rail tunnel

Moments In Time

under the English Channel officially opens, connecting Britain and the European mainland for the first time since the Ice Age. The "Chunnel" runs under water for 23 miles, with an average depth of 150 feet below the seabed.

NOW HERE'S A TIP

- Spring clean your tools. Ditch half-used tubes of caulk, stiff paintbrushes, random hardware that doesn't have any obvious use, especially screws or nails that have been pulled out of the wall.

- "When cleaning the microwave, boil a couple of cups of water in the microwave first. The steam will help loosen any stuck-on food." – OD in Idaho

- Defrost meats on the bottom shelf only. Ideally, you should have a large bowl or container to put packages of meat in that require defrosting, so that if they leak, the leakage will be contained and will not get on any of your other foods.

- "The plastic liner in cereal boxes makes a good, strong container for kitchen scraps if you are saving them for composting." – YT in Oregon

- Another reason to get the newspaper: Crushed newspaper makes a great rag for shining windows in your home and in the car. No lint left behind.

- "Wipe out the insides of a cornstarch container to make a handy catch-all for craft supplies or crayon sets for kids (labeled so they all have their own). These are a really good size, and several brands seem to come with a clear lid." – HD in Florida

STRANGE BUT TRUE

- Guns N' Roses frontman Axl Rose once earned $8 an hour for smoking cigarettes, for a science experiment at California's UCLA.

- If you translate "Jesus" from Hebrew to English, the correct translation is "Joshua." The name "Jesus" comes from translating the name from Hebrew, to Greek, to Latin, to English.

- The tongue is the only muscle in one's body that is attached from one end.

- In 2007, Scotland spent 125,000 British pounds devising a new national slogan. The winning entry was: "Welcome to Scotland."

- The suicide palm gets its name from how it meets its demise. At the end of its life, the stem tips explode in a massive array of tiny flowers capable of being pollinated and developing into fruit, and their nectar attracts insects and birds. However, the flowers also exhaust the plant and drain its nutritional supply until it dies.

- There is a punctuation mark used to signify irony or sarcasm that looks like a backward question mark.

- Lipstick was considered an essential item for female nurses in the armed forces during the World War II, both to remind women they were ladies first and military second, and because it might have a calming effect on the male soldiers.

- A 2013 exhibition in Dublin displayed a variety of cheeses made with bacteria samples obtained from people's feet, armpits and navels. No one actually ate them, so we can't comment on the taste.

- We goofed! Our Feb. 8 "Strange But True" column contained this statement: "Baked beans aren't baked. They're stewed." It should have read, "In the U.K., baked beans aren't baked, but stewed." We apologize for the error.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

– Robert Louis Stevenson

Shore Fishing:

Don't Harm The Fish

by Capt. Matt Mitchell

Landing a big fish from the beach can be hard on the fish. Dragging a fish up onto the sand if you're going to release it is not an option as it usually damages or kills the fish.

Hold the fish in the water while you unhook it if you're going to release it.

The less you can touch a fish before release the better for the fish.

If you want a picture with the fish, support it as you lift it out of the water – and do it quickly.

Before releasing, revive the fish while holding it in the water; moving it slowly back and forth so water goes over its gills. The fish will let you know when it's ready to swim off.

Florida residents as well as out of state visitors need a fishing license to fish from shore.
