Theater Delves Into Fake News

With “fake news” on the minds of many Americans these days, Players Circle Theatre will present The Lifespan of a Fact from Wednesday, October 27 to Sunday, November 14. The play is a tru-ish story, showing the importance of truth in journalism in the age of fake news.

Based on the true story of D’Agata’s essay What Happens There, The Lifespan of a Fact follows Jim Fingal, who has a small job: to fact-check articles for one of the best magazines in the country. His boss has given him a big assignment – to apply his skill to a groundbreaking piece by legendary author D’Agata. But now Fingal has a huge

Grant Recipients Showcasing Work At Historic Home

The Uncommon Friends Foundation and Fort Myers Public Art Committee will host the Biennial Individual Artist Grant Recipient Show during the month of November at the Langford Kingston Home in downtown Fort Myers.

Opening on Friday, November 5 in conjunction with Art Walk, the exhibition showcases the work of visual and performing artists who received grants from the City of Fort Myers in 2018 and 2019. But this is no ordinary 2D/3D visual arts show. Rather, it will be headlined by artist Lily performing her renowned Paper Grotto Live! with musical accompaniment by Kat Epple and a separate performance by Strange Arrangement.

The show will also feature busts cast in 1990 by North Fort Myers sculptor DJ Wilkins for the Harborside Event Center. The busts have been stored in an upstairs bathroom since the convention center underwent renovations, and they are being reintroduced in the wake of Wilkins’ death on October 10.

In addition, the public can view a display of selected paintings, prints and photographs from the city’s indoor portable works collection that are typically only seen by people coming to meetings at city hall.

The exhibition will be open and available to the public at no charge on weekdays from 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. by reservation and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Additional Paper Grotto Live!

Art And Reggae At Davis Center

The Sidney & Berne Davis Art Center offers two unique art exhibitions for the month of November. The opening night reception takes place during Art Walk on Friday, November 5 from 6 to 10 p.m. The Roots Almighty reggae band will perform at Sidney’s Rooftop from 7 to 11 p.m.

The Art on a Plate exhibition fills the Grand Atrium gallery and features intuitive designs, portraits, geometric puzzles, strange characters and fantasies. Each artwork is unique, provocative and well-crafted.

The Kendal Art Collection was conceived by Leonardo Rodriguez and developed in the Fine Arts Ceramic Center in Miami. The word “ceramic” comes from the ancient Greek “keramos” meaning “potter soil,” a clay made of inorganic composite material. The clay is malleable in its natural form but becomes stiff after drying or firing. The technique of firing clay began with utilitarian objects for prehistoric society. Over the years, people learned that clay could change color depending on the mixtures of different oxides and that it could be coated (glazed) and decorated. Soon, crude pottery was transformed into more substantial objects of varied shapes and suitable for painting.

Opening upstairs in the Capital Gallery, When Stone Speaks gives a voice where there was none. Working with material as old as the earth itself, Alice Kiderman’s series of sculptures explores themes of transition and reinterpretation. It is also a study in bridging past and present.

Several sculptures are accompanied by poetry written by Shira Atik, conveying human emotion and experiences that are translated into sculpture for the viewer to contemplate.

Both shows will be on display through November 22.

The Sidney & Berne Davis Art Center is located at 2301 First Street in downtown Fort Myers. For more information, www.sbdac.com.

Historic Downtown Fort Myers, Then And Now:

'Betty Boop' In The Pulpit

by Gerri Reaves, PhD

This historic postcard image of St. Michael Lutheran Church was likely taken just after the $4,000 parsonage (left building) had been built in late 1946.

By then, the congregation had been worshipping in the diminutive church at Lafayette Street and Grand Avenue for four years.

The church's origins date to 1939, when a Rev. Hartman of Delray Beach headed a 38-member delegation from the Florida District Walther League in a mission to organize the church. (Note: The league is named for theologian Carl Ferdinand Wilhelm Walther [1811-1887], who is considered the spiritual father of the Lutheran Church by the conservative Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, of which the new church became a member in 1946.)

The league's plan of visiting 800 families in Fort Myers resulted in the organization of the church and a rotation of pastors. In 1941, a full-time one was hired.

The congregation worshipped in this first church from 1942 until 1953, after which they sold the church and built a new one on McGregor Boulevard.

It then became the Unity Church of Christianity, whose leaders included Pastor Ann L. Werner, perhaps one of the most unconventional church leaders ever to grace a Fort Myers pulpit.

Werner, whose stage name was Little Ann Little, was always described as the first voice of the iconic classic cartoon character Betty Boop, the kewpie-doll-faced pixie known for the phrase "Boop-Boop-a-Doop!"

The background information she shared in The News-Press interview in 1959 seemed too tantalizing to be true. Indeed, research reveals that over the decades, like the biographical facts of many celebrities, there were contradictions and inaccuracies of Werner's, although the gist of her bio was true.

This photo of St. Michael Lutheran Church was likely taken in 1946 soon after the construction of the frame parsonage (left). That church worshipped in this church on Lafayette Street at Grand Avenue from 1942 until 1953.

In 1959, however, at least the facts that she weighed 97 pounds, stood four feet ten inches tall, and taught dance would have been easy to verify about the widow who had grown up in New York City.

In addition to being pastor at the Unity church, she was teaching tap and Hawaiian dance in Fort Myers. She contended that her church did not consider dancing a sin but rather a healthy activity for the mind and body. It also endows the dancer with grace and poise, she said. Nor did she order church members to not drink or smoke. She did neither herself, however, and advised against the habits.

When she died in Fort Myers in October 1981, newspapers across the country printed her obituary citing her as the voice of Betty Boop.

Contradictions indicate that, over the years, facts had become fuzzy. For example, being ordained "by 1954" becomes "in 1954" and her husband Louis H. Werner morphed from a tax counselor at Consolidated Edison to its president.

She married Werner as a first husband and Joe Rothschild much later – and the reverse. And, she was born in both 1902 and 1910.

She started early in show business, thus the term "baby star." But was that at age 8 in a sister act or was it in 1925 at age 15 in the pony chorus of the Greenwich Village Follies? The answer depends on the source.

She toured as a dancer and comedienne on RKO's circuit and had her own radio program on the NBC network. Despite the conflicting information, reports generally support a common biographical account.

Little Ann Little wasn't the first Betty Boop voice, but was indeed a "Boop-Boop-a-Doop" girl in 1930. In later life, she recounted many times how she was discovered by a theatrical agent from Paramount Studios for Max Fleischer's new and now-classic Betty Boop cartoon character.

However, she didn't debut in the role for Fleischer Studio until 1933, according to the exhaustively researched Betty Boop Fandom website.

Further complicating the research are the facts that apparently several "Boop girls" played the voice roles concurrently from 1930 to 1933, and there were not only the cartoon voice roles but appearances by Betty Boop in non-cartoon films.

The resulting confusion was probably one factor that led to a 1934 law suit that Werner brought against another Boop girl.

The Detroit Free Press summed it up best in 1938: "There were so many claimants to the honor of creating the Boop-a-Doop voice in the animated cartoon that Miss Little went to court about it, and can produce a court order, a copyright and

Courtroom Play Part Suspense, Part Psychodrama

by Tom Hall

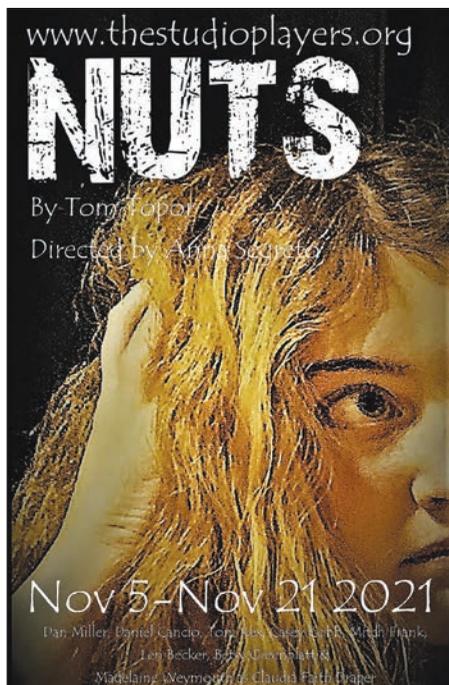

For several years now, America has been divided over pop star Britney Spears' struggles to end the conservatorship that a California court ordered in 2008 at the behest of her father. While there is growing sentiment to "Free Britney," there are those who point to instances of bad behavior as evidence that the singer/entertainer is "nuts" and needs to have every aspect of her personal, professional and public life managed and controlled.

Claudia Faith Draper knows exactly how Britney feels. In The Studio Players' production of Tom Topor's Nuts, Draper too struggles for control of her life when her mother and stepfather seek to have her declared mentally incompetent after Claudia kills a violent "john" in self-defense and is charged with manslaughter in the first degree.

Nuts has been called the best courtroom melodrama since Witness for

the Prosecution and The Caine Mutiny Court Martial. But Artistic Director Scott Lily and Director Anna Segreto will tell you at great length that there is so much more to Nuts than this. Part suspense, part psychodrama, the play is a raw and somber examination of dysfunctional family dynamics, childhood sexual abuse and the way in which the criminal justice system operates to enforce white patriarchal social structures and concomitant societal demands and expectations.

Just as Spears' erratic behavior complicated her efforts to end her conservatorship, Draper's distrust of everyone around her combined with public altercations with her court-appointed lawyer hamper, if not impede, her own defense. While that certainly complicates matters within the confines of the play, her insistence of playing by her own rules rather than those imposed upon her by the courts and the legal system makes her a sympathetic, if not entirely endearing, character in the minds of the audiences who will come to the Joan Jenks Auditorium to see this play.

With recent roles like Vandy Jordan in Venus in Fur (for The Studio Players), Clarice Orsini in Botticelli in the Fire (for Lab Theater) and Jolene in Darlyne Franklin's Critic's Choice screenplay Florida Couple (for last year's Lab Theater 24-Hour Screenwriting Challenge), Madelaine Weymouth is uniquely qualified to portray Claudia Faith Draper. Weymouth is a rare talent, capable of highs and lows, and a full range of murderous-to-vulnerable emotions in between. She needs to be. Draper is a deep, complex and beautifully flawed character, but played correctly (like Anne Twomey did when Nuts played on Broadway in 1980), it can be the role of a lifetime (no pressure).

Weymouth has the benefit of a strong cast, with Dan Miller playing Officer Harry Haggerty, Daniel Cancio playing Draper's court-appointed attorney Aaron Levinsky and Tom Rex playing Franklin MacMillan. But every drama needs a strong antagonist, and here Casey Cobb and Mitch Frank get to portray Claudia's mom and rich stepdad, Rose and Arthur Kirk.

Nuts opens Friday, November 5 and runs through November 21.

The Studio Players perform in Joan Jenks Auditorium, located at 4701 Golden Gate Parkway in Naples. For more information or tickets, visit www.thestudioplayers.org.

other documentary proof to her title."

After an impressive performance career, in 1948 she moved to Florida with her retired husband, Werner, and taught acting, singing and dancing.

She came to Fort Myers in 1951, sent by the Unity Village School in Kansas City, Missouri after being ordained.

In the early 1960s, she had a weekly program titled The Unity Viewpoint, broadcast by local WINK Radio on Saturdays at 12:10 p.m.

She retired from the pulpit in 1959 and married Joe Rothschild shortly after that. She continued to preach occasionally and perform locally for organizations and fundraisers and, just for fun, in theatrical productions in her Seven Lakes community in Fort Myers.

She died in Fort Myers in October 1981.

Cleanup Nets 540 Pounds Of Litter

Keep Lee County Beautiful, Inc. (KLCB) partnered with Gutteridge Haskins & Davey (GHD) and the City of Fort Myers on Public Lands Day, September 25, to clean up Manuel's Branch Neighborhood Park and a section of the 3.5 mile stream that is a part of the Caloosahatchee Watershed. The 38 volunteers spanned over one mile of waterway, one mile of roadway, one acre of public lands and ultimately collected 540 pounds of litter and debris.

"This project was important because the debris needed to be cleaned up before it reached the Caloosahatchee Watershed," said Executive Director Trish Fancher. "Our team and volunteers made this clean-up possible, and we could not be more grateful."

The volunteers cleaned three different parts of Manuel Branch from 8 to 11 a.m. including the Manuel Branch Neighborhood Park, south of Lee Memorial Hospital and alongside Canal Street east of Fowler Street. A majority of the debris were wrappers, plastic bottles and other common waste products. However, the volunteers also gathered other items including softballs, wiffleballs, tennis balls, buckets, car scraps and a laundry basket.

Keeping this watershed free of litter is important because it affects the water quality of the Caloosahatchee, and it affects the quality of life of the plants and animals who live in it as well as our water supply.

"As members of the Fort Myers community, GHD was excited to work with the City of Fort Myers and Keep Lee County Beautiful at this event and we look forward to participating in more cleanups in the future," said associate and senior geologist Lori Coolidge.✧

Theme Revealed For Wine And Food Festival

Southwest Florida Children's Charities, Inc. is celebrating the raising of over $25 million of donated funds in the past 13 years. The 2022 Southwest Florida Wine & Food Fest theme of 25 Million Reasons to Sip Sip Hooray honors the power of the community to come together and elevate the future of the local pediatric health care system.

The 14th annual Southwest Florida Wine & Food Fest will take place on January 21 and 22. The two-day celebratory-themed event will have honorary local chefs and notable vintners come together to showcase exquisite food and wine pairings.

"Achieving this goal could not have been possible without the dedication of our organization's team, sponsors, trustees and donors," said President Ed Bell. "We are proud of the work we have done for the past 13 years, and we will continue to make strides in our pediatric healthcare systems for many years to come."

The two-day event kicks off at the Chef Vintner Dinners to be hosted in private luxury homes throughout the region to experience culinary creations from honorary chefs and mindfully paired with exclusive wineries.

The festivities continue at The Grand Tasting and Live Auction on Saturday, January 22 at Florida SouthWestern State College, where guests will mingle with culinary specialties and enjoy wine from selected vintners. ## Clips For Cancer Raises $300,000

Clips for Cancer raised $300,000 to ensure that programs and services are available for the increasing number of local children diagnosed with cancer at Golisano Children's Hospital of Southwest Florida.

While Childhood Cancer Awareness Month and Clips for Cancer ended recently, donations for the event are still being accepted to help as many children as possible.

More than 50 community leaders from throughout Southwest Florida volunteered to let pediatric cancer survivors shave their heads on Facebook Live during the month for awareness of the effects of cancer treatment, which often includes hair loss, while also raising funds for Barbara's Friends – Golisano Children's Hospital's cancer program.

"The real impact of Clips is in the joy it brings our patients, said Dr. Emad Salman, regional medical director at Golisano Children's Hospital of Southwest Florida. "For our current patients, it's encouraging and shows them that the whole community is behind them and supporting them. For our survivors, it's a celebration of their difficult journey. It's not only about raising the critical funds and awareness around pediatric cancer but bringing hope and letting kids be kids."

Among the highlights of the event: Frank Haskell, 92, who founded

Dr. Dave Johnson and Kadin Williams

Barbara's Friends with his late wife Betty, met his goal of raising $50,000.

Armando Llechu, chief officer of hospital operations and women and children's services at Lee Health, who was inspired to create the event after he met cancer survivor Mackenzie Hummer, raised over $50,000 towards his goal of $100,000 to shave both his head and beard. Mackenzie prevailed and was able to take both his beard and hair in the spirit of the event and the empowerment it brings to all the children battling cancer.

Cal Bruno of Bruno of Brooklyn's Restaurant, joined by first responders and community leaders, had his head shaved during the restaurant's seventh anniversary outdoor block party celebration in downtown Fort Myers with the event raising over $40,000.

First responders from the Lehigh Acres, San Carlos Park, South Trail, Iona McGregor, Bonita Springs, Estero and Port Authority fire departments, as well as Lee County EMS, Collier County Sheriff's Office and the Sanibel Police Department participated in the event.

Riverdale High School students sold a T-shirt designed by a current cancer patient at Golisano and raised over $5,000 for Barbara's Friends.

Florida Radiology Consultants not only sponsored the event but offered another $25,000 to support head shavings of leaders, including two of their radiologists.

Behind the clippers were 20 pediatric cancer survivors from Golisano Children's Hospital ages 8 to 23. Collectively, these survivors endured more than 30 years of treatment. Since it started in 2018, Clips for Cancer to date has raised over half a million dollars to assist families during their child's cancer journey.

Since the beginning of the pandemic, 100 children have been diagnosed with cancer and blood disorders. To date, Barbara's Friends has cared for more than 10,000 local children. The program helps offset the cost of medical expenses, programs and services to keep kids close to home for lifesaving care.

In addition to the shaving events, Barbara's Friends Advisory Board members Jenna Montone held special donation classes at the Pure Barre Fort Myers and Gateway studios she owns, raising $2,000, and Justin O'Brien and his partners at 3 Peppers Burrito Co. donated 100 percent of proceeds from all kids' meals sold throughout the month, raising over $3,500.

Clips for Cancer would not have been possible without the support of presenting sponsor Florida Radiology Consultants, location sponsor Great Clips and the support of The John E & Aliese Price Foundation and Dorsey Law Firm.

For more information about Barbara's Friends and how you can help local children in need, visit www.barbarasfriends.org.

Plant Smart

Obedient Plant

by Gerri Reaves

Obedient plant (Physostegia virginiana) is a showy wildflower that attracts bees, butterflies and hummingbirds.

A member of the mint family, this perennial is native to most of the U.S. and eastern Canada and cultivated as an ornamental. It is also called false dragonhead.

Its native status in Florida is in some dispute, but the authoritative Atlas of Florida Plants lists it as nonnative. Similar relatives in the Physostegia genus, such as the more vividly marked eastern false dragonhead (P. purpurea), are native.

A fast grower, it reaches a height of three feet or more, with prominent erect spikes of tubular flowers in white, pink, lavender, or purple.

The opposite oblong or lanceolate leaves are serrated with paler green undersides. The stems are square, a characteristic of the mint family.

The odd common name comes from the flowers' obedience in staying put when manipulated, for example, in a flower arrangement.

The common name, false dragonhead, is said to derive from the flower's resemblance to snapdragons. Another explanation is that "dragonhead" derives from Dracocephalum, the genus's former classification.

The flowers are arranged vertically in pairs on the four-to-six-inch spikes. The lower flowers open first.

The showy flowers have a two-lobed upper lip that is somewhat flat or slightly hooded and a three-lobed spotted lower lip.

There are four stamens with dark anthers and five sepals.

Tiny nutlets ripen in the fall.

This species is typically used as a border, where it will spread via creeping rhizomes. Give it a moist spot in partial shade and sun.

It is moderately drought tolerant but not salt tolerant.

Since it can be aggressive, consider growing one of the many cultivars in pots and enjoy the long-lasting cut flowers.

Regulations Proposed For Goliath Grouper

At its October meeting, the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC) approved a draft proposal for a limited, highly regulated harvest of goliath grouper in Florida state waters. Staff were directed to explore additional changes before bringing the proposal back for final approval at the March 2022 meeting.

If approved in March, this proposal would provide additional stakeholder access to goliath while continuing to allow access through catch-and-release, ecotourism and dive viewing opportunities.

The proposed draft rules include:

A recreational harvest of up to 200 goliath per year, with a maximum of 50

from Everglades National Park;

Requiring a recreational goliath harvest permit and tag, issued via a random-draw lottery, to legally harvest a goliath (staff will explore setting the cost of the tag, currently proposed to be $500, based on the cost of managing the program);

Limiting harvest to one fish per person per open season with permit and tag;

A March 1 through May 31 season;

Allowable gear would be hook and line;

A slot limit of 20 to 36 inches total length (staff will explore raising the slot minimum size limit to 22 or 24 inches total length);

Harvest would be permitted in all state waters except those of Palm Beach County south through the Atlantic coast of the Keys (staff will update the proposal to include Martin County); and Harvesters would also be subject to post-harvest requirements.

In addition, staff will explore modifying gear regulations to minimize impacts from catch-and-release fishing on goliath grouper spawning aggregations.

The FWC will continue to monitor the status of the stock using alternative metrics approved by the commission in 2018.

The FWC will also continue ongoing efforts that recognize goliath's role in the ecosystem and promote stock rebuilding.

First Responders Appreciation Day

The Veterans Club of America, Post #1, will hold its second annual First Responders Appreciation event on October 28 at 2 p.m. First Responders, including emergency medical service, fire fighters, police officers and Coast Guard officials, will be offered free barbecue meals and homemade cookies. Any veteran in the surrounding communities is invited to come and participate. A military band is scheduled to play.

"As veterans, we are often honored by citizens for the duties we have done, yet we are aware that there is another group of individuals who spend their time completing duties that saves many lives and helps those near them, yet are often ignored or even ridiculed," said Veterans Club member Robin Perkins Matthews. "Our first responders, fire EMS, Police Sheriff and Coast Guard are members of our local community that need to be appreciated every single day. As veterans we realize that it is more than just a job for these people."

The Veterans Club of America, Post #1, is located at 16701 San Carlos Boulevard in Fort Myers. For information, visit www.facebook.com/veterans-club-of-america-121705027843536.✪

Fall Hunting Season

by Capt. Matt Mitchell

Fall tarpon fishing continues to get better and better. Out along the beaches, I'm seeing lots of fish. Unlike our springtime pre-spawn tarpon, these fish are hungry and eating. They will stay here on the unlimited bait buffet until the first hard cold front. With so much bait out along our beaches, they pack on lots of calories before that upcoming annual journey south.

The most difficult part of getting in on this amazing world class fishery is locating these fish. Conditions will be the main factor as calm waters make spotting these rolling fish much easier. Some days we find these fish within the no wake buoys and can return to them for days as long as weather conditions remain consistent. Then there are those other days you can run for miles and just never find them.

With great risk comes great reward, and running the beach looking for these fish can either be a slam dunk or a big goose egg. No other fish we target draws as many comparisons to hunting... they are our big game. Once you do locate them, you must position the boat within casting range so your angler has a shot. Wind direction plays a huge part in this as a down-wind cast is a much longer cast than one up or cross wind.

Slowly drifting through these fish works really well, while gently pointing your bow using the trolling motor as little as possible. Letting these fish come to you takes much more patience but works much better than aggressively chasing them. The more relaxed and happy these tarpon are, the better they feed. Wait till they come into range before making a cast.

Finding birds and bait fish is usually the first part of a tarpon hunt. Giant schools of threadfin herring are where these tarpon want to be. Time of day has been critical as most days the bite was over by 9 a.m. Although the bait was still there, the tarpon had done their thing and simply quit showing in any kind of numbers. A few ways to get to these fish early is by catching your threadfins while out looking for these tarpon. You can do this either with a heavy cast net to sink or with a sabiki rig. My favorite is to set a few pinfish traps the day before and pull them on the way to the beach tarpon grounds. Either way, don't miss out on those few magical hours that these tarpon are most active.

CROW Case Of The Week:

Nine-Banded Armadillo

by Bob Petcher

The nine-banded armadillo (Dasypus novemcinctus) is the only species of armadillo found in the U.S. – even though there are nearly 20 varieties of armadillo in the world. It is a medium-sized mammal found mainly in the southern portion of North America, as well as Central and South America, making it the most prevalent species of the armadillos. It is reportedly working its way north in the U.S. as some have been seen in Illinois.

The “little armored one,” as its name translates in Spanish, is generally only 2 ½ feet long from the tip of its nose to the end of its tail and averages 12 pounds in weight. Amazingly, this type of mammal can traverse smaller streams and creeks efficiently. It has been known to hold its breath for close to six minutes and can move (walk) along the bottom of rivers.

At CROW, an adult female nine-banded armadillo was admitted after being found drowning in the current at Fort Myers Beach. The patient may have tried to negotiate a section of the back

Patient #21-5229 had a short stay at the clinic after almost drowning in the Gulf of Mexico

bay and reached the gulf by mistake. “Armadillos swim to cross bodies of water as needed, this serves the purpose of extending their range,” said Dr. Charlotte Cournoyer, CROW veterinary intern. “It is possible that the armadillo was swept to the beach by a strong current, even if that was not where it began its swim.”

Upon examination, the patient had some lacerations on its back and tail as well as abrasions on its nail base.

“We suspect it received its lacerations from struggling, possibly during the drowning,” said Dr. Cournoyer. “The wounds were cleaned with chlorhexidine and saline but did not require further attention.”

Veterinarians were also concerned that the patient had inhaled some of the salt water since radiographs showed evidence of this. Dr. Cournoyer explained how salt water shows up on x-ray imaging.

“Lungs should appear dark grey to black on x-ray since they are filled with air,” she said. “Water in the lungs causes them to appear light grey instead, which can also cause reduced outline to other structures – such as vessels or the heart.” Unlike fish, which absorb water through their skin and gills in a process called osmosis, and many marine mammals that have specialized organs, land mammals do not have the capacity to take in excessive salt water. They can drown, just like a man or woman.

“It is as serious as any other mammal, including humans. Inhalation of water, if it does not lead to drowning, can lead to infection in the lungs and reduced oxygen exchange,” said Dr. Cournoyer.

Medications and antibiotics were administered and, over the next few days, the patient showed steady improvement.

“On presentation, oxygen support was provided and fluids under the skin to rehydrate the armadillo were also given,” said Dr. Cournoyer. “The armadillo was placed on systemic antibiotic therapy for pneumonia from the inhalation of salt water, thus the antibiotics were also helpful in the healing of the lacerations.”

After six days in care, the nine-banded armadillo regained strength through nutritional support and was released back on land on Fort Myers Beach. Log it as another successful rehabilitation case by the folks at CROW’s clinic.

Party Band Returns To The Heights Center

The Heights Party Band will perform a concert fundraiser at The Heights Center on Thursday, November 11 at 7 p.m. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. The evening will include familiar and forgotten favorites, classic rock, country and a little “chaotic spontaneity,” according to The Heights Foundation.

The Heights Party Band is a group of rotating high-quality local musicians who call The Heights Center home for several concerts each year. Admission is $10 per person and includes complimentary appetizers and a cash bar. Social distancing precautions will be in place. The event is sponsored by CRE Consultants.

The party band is led by Randy Thomas (formerly with Shania Twain, Allies and Sweet Comfort Band). He will drive a professional veteran rock, pop and country jam. Thomas is best known as the Grammy award-winning songwriter of the crossover hit Butterfly Kisses.

The concert features well-known local musicians: Kevin Kenworthy (formerly with Loretta Lynn) on vocals, keyboards and guitars; Rob Robinson (producer for Lynyrd Skynyrd) on vocals, keys and guitar; Willie Miller (formerly with Deb and the Dynamics) on drums; and Nashville’s Matthew Chapman (formerly with Allies) on bass. Lori Thomas will also join on vocals.

Randy and Lori Thomas perform the country club circuit in Naples and Fort Myers. “When we play country clubs they are dressy and fun, but they are private events,” said Lori Thomas. “The Heights Party Band is a chance to do a mix of singalongs with our friends. Everyone is invited.”

“This is a band that can pivot on a dime. Everyone is so professional, that the song choices are improvised,” said Randy Thomas. “Any of us may start a song – unannounced – and the rest follow. The chaotic nature of this band makes it a lot of fun. We surprise ourselves every year!”

The Heights Center is located at 15570 Hagie Drive in Fort Myers. For tickets, visit www.heightsfoundation.org/heightspartyband or buy them at the door. For more information, call 482-7706.✪

Junior League Hosts Women’s Conference

The Junior League of Fort Myers will virtually host “She Is...,” its first women’s conference focused on celebrating women who have persevered, triumphed and navigated adversity in life, on Saturday, October 23 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Four motivating speakers will share tools women can use to tackle their personal goals.

“Our hope for this conference is that attendees will learn, build connections and experience a community of women in Southwest Florida and beyond. It’s called “She Is...” because we hope women can fill in the blank after ‘She Is...’ with anything they can dream of for themselves,” said Junior League of Fort Myers Advancement Director Meghan Warner.

Added Erin Cowan, Junior League of Fort Myers president, “Our mission has always publicly focused on improving our community through voluntarism, but an equal part of that mission is to develop the potential of women. A conference like this one brings that part of our mission to life. We hope this will become an annual must-attend event for women throughout our community who want to grow.”

Children's Advocacy Celebration

The Children's Advocacy Center (CAC) of SWFL will celebrate 40 years of providing services to children and families at the Burroughs Home and Gardens on Saturday, December 4. The featured keynote speaker is Sasha Neulinger, director of the acclaimed documentary, Rewind, his personal story of surviving multi-generational child sex abuse. Neulinger now travels the world, sharing his story and providing a voice for children that deserve access to justice and healing. Additionally, Sheriff Carmine Marceno and Sheriff Mike Scott (ret.) will serve as the honorary event chairs.

This event is possible thanks to the generosity of several sponsors. Event signature sponsors include the Lee County Sheriff's Office, the Fort Myers Mighty Mussels and The Arnold Simonsen Foundation.

"We are looking forward to celebrating the work of our CAC in December and are so grateful for the support of our sponsors to ensure that this celebration is a joyful evening that brings in additional funding for the agency," said Cole Peacock, CAC board president. "This agency is critical for our community to assist children who have been victims of abuse and neglect providing a child-friendly environment where they can be heard and begin to heal."

Current sponsors for the CAC support of this event and the agency include: The Bobby Nichols Fiddlesticks Charity Foundation; Barraco & Associates; Brown & Brown Insurance; the Burnside family; Busey Bank; Candis Loving; Clinger, Sizemore & Associates - Merrill Lynch - John Clinger and Steven Sizemore; Karla Y. ## Schools Chosen As Models Of Positive Behavior

Twenty-nine schools in the School District of Lee County have been chosen as Positive Behavioral Interventions and Support (PBIS) model schools by the Florida Department of Education PBIS Project. PBIS encompasses research-based strategies used to increase quality of life and decrease problem behavior by teaching new skills and making changes in a person's environment.

The 29 schools are: Bayshore Elementary; Bonita Springs Elementary; Bonita Springs Middle Center for the Art; Buckingham Exceptional Student Center; Caloosa Elementary; Caloosa Middle School; Cape Elementary; Colonial Elementary; Cypress Lake High School; Dr. Carrie D. Robinson Littleton Elementary; Edison Park Creative and Expressive Arts School; Gulf Elementary; Harns Marsh Middle School; J. Colin English Elementary; Manatee Elementary; Mariner High School; Mirror Lakes Elementary; North Fort Myers Academy for the Arts; Orange River Elementary; Patriot Elementary; Rayma C. Page Elementary; River Hall Elementary; Royal Palm Exceptional Student Center; Sunshine Elementary; Three Oaks Elementary; Three Oaks Middle School; Tortuga Preserve Elementary; Trafalgar Elementary; and Trafalgar Middle School.

The PBIS Resilience Award was introduced this year as a way to recognize schools for their successes in continuing their schools' positive behavior interventions and support initiatives, while also navigating the challenges of virtual instruction and activities that had to be modified due to the pandemic. All schools chosen as model schools also earned the resilience distinction.

Several middle schools still have their applications being reviewed, so it is possible more schools will be awarded

PBIS Model School and PBIS Resilience awards.

The FLPBIS Project's Model Schools program recognizes schools that have received training in PBIS, demonstrate improved school-wide outcomes as well as equitable student outcomes and have shown fidelity of implementation.

To earn this level of achievement, schools must meet the following specific criteria: exemplify high levels of PBIS implementation fidelity; demonstrate generally low rates of exclusionary discipline when compared to similar school types across the state; and demonstrate equitable student outcomes.

The 29 PBIS Model Schools will plan celebrations to unveil their new PBIS banners once they arrive. To learn more about the FLPBIS Project Model School program, visit www.leeschools.net.

Lee Health Awarded Grant For Disparities

The U.S. Health Resource Services Administration (HRSA) has awarded Lee Health $3.2 million to fund efforts by Lee Community Healthcare to address health disparities in the community.

Created by Lee Health, Lee Community Healthcare is a community health center that provides primary medical care to the medically uninsured and economically distressed residents of Southwest Florida.

The funds from the HRSA grant will be used over the next two years for several initiatives, including:

Help fund salaries and benefits for staffing of the planned expansion of the Dunbar Lee Community Healthcare office;

Establish a mobile medicine program in partnership with a local organization;

Create six telemedicine "hubs" in facilities serving underserved communities; and Streamline the referral process for smoking cessation services for Lee Community Healthcare patients.

"This grant is going to have a huge impact on our region," said Dr. Larry Antonucci, Lee Health's president and chief executive officer. "At Lee Health, we are doing so much work with health disparities in underserved communities, and this funding from HRSA will allow us to grow our services even more in these communities that need care."

The planned expansion at the Dunbar clinic will provide additional primary care and behavioral health services to the community through renovation of space and the addition of 14 full-time employees, which includes family practice physicians, a psychologist, a licensed clinical social worker, advanced practitioners, medical assistants and other key positions.

Additionally, the mobile medicine program, which will be funded through the grant, will include an established mobile medical unit to be used for COVID-19 testing, vaccinations and primary care.

Book Review

Falling

by Di Saggau

On the inside cover of Falling, it reads, “You just boarded a flight to New York. There are 143 other passengers on board. What you don’t know is that 30 minutes before the flight, your pilot’s family was kidnapped. For his family to live, everyone on your plane must die. The only way the family will survive is if the pilot follows his orders and crashes the plane. Enjoy the flight.” Well now, if that doesn’t get your attention, I don’t know what will.

Falling is an intense thriller with characters you will care about. With a flight scheduled for a family reunion, I was not anxious to read about this kind of scenario, but I couldn’t resist. The book is full of suspense, and I didn’t cancel my flight.

The pilot Bill Hoffman is flying a red-eye from Los Angeles to New York, which means he’ll miss his son’s baseball game. That’s the least of his troubles. He soon learns what has happened to his family and what he is being asked to do. Newman focuses on a small group, the pilot and his family,

the flight’s crew, a few passengers, the bad guys and some key people on the ground.

One of those people is Jo, a longtime colleague who knows what is going on and, in turn, gets her FBI-agent nephew Theo involved. It’s a race against time to save the family and the passengers. Newman’s background includes being a flight attendant, and she wrote much of the book on cross-country, red-eye flights while her passengers were asleep.

The story is set in real time spread over three time zones. Brief flashbacks show how characters became who they are. We see Bill in flight school, then as a husband and father. As to the bad guys, we see them as children, bonding as they watch an American movie in a faraway country. This first-time novel by Newman is full of authentic suspense.

Don Winslow said, “A bullet train of a thriller with incredible tension and personal stakes. The real engine of this stunning and relentless book is how far would you go to save your family? I read Falling with my heart in my throat. This is Jaws at 35,000 feet. An extraordinary debut and the perfect summer page-turner.”✱

School Smart

by Shelley M. Greggs, NCSP

Dear Readers,

As we approach one of the biggest holidays of the year, Halloween, feelings of great excitement as well as some feelings of fear may emerge. Most kids and adults enjoy Halloween and dressing up in costume, however there are a significant number of children who dread Halloween.

They hate getting dressed up and are fearful for a number of reasons. Some kids and their parents alike are often secretly embarrassed to say that they do not like this widely loved day and feel uncomfortable about not fitting in like everyone else.

There is no need to be embarrassed. Halloween can be a real stressor! Some children find the holiday quite challenging. For kids who are shy or have challenges acting appropriately, dealing with surprises and disappointments, following directions, getting along with peers, Halloween is difficult. And the arguments about wanting to eat all the candy immediately, or requiring kids to share their candy can make Halloween a disaster.

There are some things that you can do to address a child’s anxiety about Halloween. As you know, routine and anticipatory guidance can help those with anxiety. Make sure your child understands exactly what will happen and what is required of them. Go out early to avoid the “mayhem” of later hours and give as much information about the timetable as possible. If a little chaos is unavoidable, kids with anxiety will likely be reassured by a return to routine at home afterwards, like a regular bedtime story or activity.

There are some real fears associated with Halloween for young children who still have trouble distinguishing fantasy from reality. They could get a very unpleasant surprise, particularly if they have specific phobias or anxiety associated with Halloween images like witches or monsters. Also, parents should be aware that older children passing into their “tweens” are developing a better understanding of death especially in light of all the school shootings. The holiday could be unsettling for them.

Make sure that the costume your child will wear, especially if they have sensory issues, will meet their needs.

For some kids, particularly those with sensory issues, the wrong item of clothing can destroy a wonderful night, for you and for them. Many parents have concerns about the sexy or gruesome Halloween costumes marketed to kids, so be cautious with the costume choices.

Halloween is supposed to be fun but going out or dressing in costume isn’t required. The comfort and joy of your child should come first. If this isn’t the year for your child to trick or treat or be able to handle extended activities with peers, there is always next year. Make sure that the teacher is aware of your child’s apprehension. You may want to ask her if they can miss the party at school.

If you choose to stay at home, have a clear agreement about who will speak at the door, so that anxious kids know what’s expected of them. Should you decide to stay in, your child can still participate from a safe place and gain some social experience, even if it’s not a lot. Remember, this night is supposed to be fun, but it can also be a learning experience for a child that allows them to enjoy it more fully in the future.

You may just want to make up your own unique routines for the day. Pumpkin carving, pizza for dinner and spending the evening together at home as a family may just be the right thing to do for your child this year. If having your own routine makes both you and your child less anxious about Halloween, celebrating it your own way may make this holiday much more enjoyable.

Causeway Project Discussed At Meeting

Lee County's primary goal in improving the Sanibel Causeway is to keep intact the two islands' Sanibel feel and their historical usage, according to Jesse Lavender, director of Lee County Parks & Recreation, who told members of the Sanibel & Captiva Islands Chamber of Commerce during a virtual Power Hour on October 6.

Jesse Lavender

"That's kind of why I wanted to get these renderings drawn up to share with the public," he said during his Zoom slide presentation. "I've lived here my whole life. If I look at these renderings, I feel it's in keeping the nature of the island. We're not looking to change that up. It's not Marco Island, it's not Naples, it's not even Fort Myers Beach. We want to preserve what we've had."

Work began this summer on the project, which has a hard completion date of June 20, 2024. County crews have taken down invasive, nonnative Australian pines and started to build T-groins on Island B, closest to Sanibel. Lavender emphasized that design planning is only 30 percent decided, and the county welcomes feedback on the plans, which are available to view at www.leegov.com/parks.

Improvements already decided include

Jesse Lavender shared renderings of the proposed improvements

more T-groins on both islands with beach renourishment, designated ingress and egress for parking areas, a roundabout for dropping off paddlecraft and small sailboats, native landscaping that will provide more shade than the Australian pines did previously, stormwater management measures, pavilions on both islands and permanent restrooms on both sides of Island A. Key to the new design, a dunes system with crossovers between parking and the beach will stabilize the islands and slightly raise their elevation to counteract sea-level rise.

Still on the drawing board, the county is considering a bike lane, a pervious walking path, rock enhancements on the south side of Island A to keep down wave action, fishing enhancements such as a cleaning station and restrictions for waverunners.

"We want to keep the historical activities on each island and make it safer and prevent erosion," Lavender said. "Jet skis sometimes get careless and close to swimmers. We're talking about swim zones, but that won't come until later in 2024."

Questions from meeting attendees reflected concern about changes to parking. On the two islands, there will be a total of 238 designated parallel and pull-in parking spots, including four RV spots. Lavender compared that to vehicular counts on the causeway this past Labor Day weekend – a total average of 411 a day on both islands. Some of the parking on Island A will be converted to event space for Easter Sunrise Service and the Sanibel-Captiva Conservation Foundation (SCCF) annual fundraiser for Sanibel Sea School.

Commissioners will be meeting soon to decide on whether or not to institute parking fees on the causeway, plus other facets of the project, Lavender said.

"We appreciate what you're doing on the project," said John Lai, chamber president and chief executive officer. "You're on the hot seat today. I think we had more than 20 questions. The community is very engaged with this project, as it should be. I know it will be something we can be proud of when it's completed."

Lavender has served with Lee County Parks & Recreation for the past 17 years at almost every level. Prior to that, he graduated from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro with a bachelor's degree in travel, tourism and commercial recreation. He also worked as a fishing guide in Pine Island Sound and Everglades National Park.✪

Will Power

Proposed Tax Legislation Creates More Issues Than It Solves

by Craig R. Hersch, Florida Bar Board Certified Wills, Trusts & Estates Attorney; CPA

In my last column, I reviewed how the proposed tax legislation treats Intentionally Defective Grantor Trusts (IDGTs) as being owned by the grantor at his or her death rather than outside of the estate for estate tax purposes. (You can read that column at bit.ly/30w7Ev2.) Today I'm going to wonk-out and describe why the proposed legislation creates more issues than it solves.

To fully understand why I say this, we must first review why the grantor trust rules were enacted. In the 1950s, the top income tax rate was 91 percent. High-bracket taxpayers saw an opportunity to shift income by dividing their investment assets among dozens (and, in some cases, hundreds or even thousands) of trusts that could claim to be separate taxpayers, each with their own set of lower marginal rates.

To combat this practice, the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 included a set of rules under which a trust would be ignored for income tax purposes where the grantor retained certain powers over the trust assets (see Sections 671-678), resulting in the trusts being conglomerated on the grantor's individual tax return. That's for federal income tax purposes.

At the same time, certain retained powers will not result in trust assets being included in the grantor's estate for federal estate tax purposes. This asymmetry is the source of the current problem. By treating grantor trust income differently for income rather than for estate tax purposes, clever estate planning attorneys found several ways to take advantage.

A parent, for example, can create a trust that pays income to children and grandchildren, yet the parent is taxed on that income, creating the means to transfer additional wealth, as the payment of tax for the children is not treated as a gift. Further, a trust that is ignored for income tax purposes is free to loan and/or purchase assets with its grantor, or both, without the economic impact of those transactions being subject to income or capital gains tax. Therefore, a parent can "sell" an asset to an IDGT that benefits his children, taking back a promissory note, and that parent won't recognize any capital gains or interest income, yet he transfers the asset and the future appreciation out of his estate for estate tax purposes.

Consequently, creating irrevocable trusts that are respected for gift and estate tax purposes but ignored for income tax purposes became a staple of estate planning and wealth transfer. Combine these with valuation discounts and IRS qualified below-market interest rates, IDGTs have been used to help facilitate the transfer of substantial amounts of wealth to younger generations without gift or estate tax. I frequently use these strategies for my clients in my practice.

These are the strategies that Congress is trying to eliminate.

Does the proposed legislation achieve their goals? Yes, but they also raise unresolved issues. The proposed law would make all grantor trusts included in the grantor's estate for federal estate tax purposes. This would include, for example, a life insurance trust that uses any income, past or present, to pay policy premiums.

There are other ambiguities as well. The current grantor trust rules, for example, provide that an IDGT is a disregarded entity and treated as if it were the grantor. The legislation would contradict this treatment by saying that a grantor trust will not be disregarded in the context of a transfer of property between a grantor trust and its grantor. Presumably, the purpose is to cause a taxable recognition of gain on any sale or exchange between a grantor and a grantor trust. But what if the grantor trust is the one with the gain? Doesn't the trust now pay its own tax on that gain? Or is the carve out just for the recognition of gain and not for the payment of tax? What is the effect when the grantor pays the tax?

These are as much income tax questions as gift/estate tax questions.

What about a swap power? The code now provides that a trust is a grantor trust if the grantor has the power to reacquire the trust assets by substituting other property of an equivalent value. I use this frequently to swap appreciated property (that has large, unrealized capital gains) for cash so that on the grantor's death, there is a step-up in tax cost basis on the appreciated property. The proposed law, if enacted, would eliminate this strategy.

Grantor Retained Annuity Trusts (GRATs) and Qualified Personal Residence Trusts (QPRTs) might also be at risk despite having specific code sections authorizing their use. Unlike the grantor trust statutes that appear in the income tax section of the code, GRATs and QPRTs are found in the transfer tax (gift, estate, generation skipping transfer) section of the code. Would they be eliminated or not?

Which brings us to the $64,000 question. What exactly is Congress trying to do? Is the goal to stop taxpayers from taking advantage of the asymmetry between the income and transfer tax rules, or is the goal to sweep away the use of many types of trusts commonly used as estate planning tools?

As happens most often, in writing sweeping changes to the tax laws, Congress creates as many conundrums as it solves.

Campaign For Matching Funds

Earn to Learn Florida (ETLF) is instituting a campaign to raise $420,000 locally to match federal funding from AmeriCorps, in partnership with Volunteer Florida. Community members are asked to sponsor a near peer coach by contributing matching funds to leverage the federal grant of $648,000 for a total budget of $1 million.

The funding will allow 72 AmeriCorps members to be deployed as near peer coaches for postsecondary success to serve 900 hours each during the program year August 1 through July 31, 2022. More than 720 students will receive Near Peer Coaching.

"In 2020, an AmeriCorps grant launched our near peer coaching for secondary success," said Brenda Tate, CEO of Earn to Learn Florida. "This year's funding, along with the generous support of our local community, will help additional students pursue their dream of completing a postsecondary education with little or no debt."

Local matching fund partners include: United Way Suncoast; Suncoast Credit Union Foundation; United Way of Lee, Hendry, Glades and Okeechobee Counties; Comerica Charitable Foundation; and Regions Bank.

Near peer success coaches support students as they transition from high school to a postsecondary education institution. Members focus on advising students, especially those from low-income backgrounds, through the complex steps toward college enrollment, including the admission and financial aid processes.

Each near peer coach will receive a stipend of $9,900, plus a $3,000 scholarship for their continued education upon completion of 12 months of service.

Foundation Provides Grant To Golisano Hospital

Nearly five years after Golisano Children's Hospital of Southwest Florida opened with significant help from philanthropy, The Wasie Foundation has committed to bringing new, vital programs through the children's hospital and its satellite campuses with a challenge grant of $3 million. This investment will significantly impact the landscape of children's healthcare for the families and children of Southwest Florida.

"The Wasie Foundation is honored to partner with Golisano Children's Hospital on three different initiatives," said Jan Preble, vice president of programs for The Wasie Foundation. "Our hope is for improved access and care for children needing mental health services, pediatric oncology and specialty services, or pediatric neurosurgery. Ultimately we want to assist Golisano Children's Hospital in creating a better quality of life for children facing various health challenges."

The Wasie Foundation has pledged $1 million each in community challenge matches for:

Expanding the Naples Pediatric Specialty & Hematology/Oncology Clinic for cancer care; neurology; developmental pediatrics; cardiology; endocrinology; nephrology; surgery; ear, nose and throat; urology; sleep medicine; neonatal intensive care unit follow-up clinic; gastroenterology; infectious disease; allergy; asthma and respiratory therapies, and the addition of ophthalmology.

Creating a pediatric neurosurgery program at Golisano Children's Hospital of Southwest Florida, including recruiting world-class pediatric neurosurgeon(s) in collaboration with Johns Hopkins All Children's Hospital, equipping operating suites and patient care units with state-of-the-art pediatric neurosurgical equipment, as well as providing critical training and simulations to the clinical team.

Investing in Kids' Minds Matter, by expanding support for pediatric mental and behavioral health, including establishing a new Behavioral Health Clinic at the Bonita Health Center to provide space for five child psychologists and a testing center.

"These grants from The Wasie Foundation, with additional help from the community, will allow us to expand our ability to provide quality care close to home to the patients and families of Southwest Florida," said Dr. Emad Salman, chief physician executive at Golisano Children's Hospital. "These three priorities are directly in line with our strategic plan to provide more health services to the children of our region."

The Wasie Foundation grants will allow:

Renovation of the Naples Clinic to add six exam rooms, two procedure rooms and more telehealth capability, as well as addition of a new state-of-the-art total immersion chemotherapy infusion room and three additional exam rooms for the Hematology/Oncology Clinic. The clinic will be the first in Florida to provide total immersion therapy during treatment. Construction is expected to begin in December, with completion in 2022.

Bringing pediatric neurosurgical specialty to the hospital as early as the fall of 2021, with plans for additional programs that require a neurosurgery foundation (e.g. pediatric trauma) to be added in the future. Currently, neurosurgical procedures and conditions such as shunt placement, brain tumor biopsy or resection, swelling of the brain, spinal injuries, head trauma and head deformities require children to leave the region for care.

Construction on the Behavioral Health Clinic at the Bonita Health Center will begin in fall 2021, with the clinic operational by spring 2022. Recruitment for additional mental health providers and support staff is currently underway.

For information on the projects and how to help meet the challenge grants, visit leehealthfoundation.org.

Virtual Support Group For COVID-19 Loss

Open to the community at no cost, the support group provides an opportunity to discuss emotions such as anger, guilt, blame or resentment and learn from the experiences of others.

Despite COVID-19's continued presence in the community, participants can discover positive healthy steps that lead toward healing by creating meaningful rituals and receiving validation for the experience of loss. ## Lee Health Adds Chief Physician And Executive Ryan Brown, MD, SFHM, FACP, has been named chief physician and operations executive for Lee Memorial Hospital.

Brown comes to Lee Health with more than 20 years of healthcare leadership experience.

In his new role, Brown will be responsible for overseeing all hospital operations at Lee Memorial, jointly with Julia Liebscher, RNC, MSM, BSN, chief nurse executive. That includes ensuring overall quality of medical care while supporting a culture of performance, quality, service, accountability and transparency for clinicians and staff across Lee Memorial.

Most recently, Brown held leadership positions with Atrium Health in Charlotte, North Carolina, including specialty medical director for hospital medicine and medical director for acute care health informatics. He also previously served in leadership roles with Carolinas Medical Center-NorthEast in Concord, North Carolina and the Naval Hospital Corpus Christi Health Care System in Corpus Christi, Texas.

"Dr. Brown is a seasoned physician leader, and we are very excited to welcome him to our team," said Armando Llechu, Lee Health's chief officer hospital operations and women and children's services. "I look forward to all that he'll accomplish while leading Lee Memorial Hospital as the chief physician and operations executive, and I have no doubt he will continue the exceptional job Dr. James Kasiewicz did while serving in the interim position."

Brown is filling the role previously vacated by Dr. Scott Wolf, who left Lee Health last year to pursue another opportunity. Dr. Kasiewicz, MD, FACS, served as the interim chief physician executive while a national search was conducted to fill the position. During Dr. Kasiewicz's tenure, Lee Memorial Hospital effectively responded to the COVID-19 pandemic and developed capacity management solutions, thanks to his exceptional leadership. Dr. Kasiewicz will continue his roles as trauma medical director, chief of surgery and division chief of trauma surgery.

Brown earned his medical degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and completed his internship and residency in internal medicine at the National Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Maryland.

Frankly Speaking

by Howard Prager

This week, let's explore the comeback of the Chicago Sky, who won their first WNBA championship, and the big change throughout the minor leagues.

The Chicago Sky needed the finishing touch to bring them to the tournament. Here's how The Athletic described it: "When all-star Candace Parker was weighing her decisions in free agency last winter, (Sky Coach James) Wade went to Courtney Vandersloot and asked if she thought the Sky should go all-in on the Sparks veteran. The answer was a resounding yes. Vandersloot told him: 'She's somebody that we need to help take us to the next level.' Vandersloot and Allie Quigley, both decade-long Sky veterans, then put the full-court press on Parker. They shipped treats from Portillo's (Parker's favorite Chicago restaurant) and deep-dish pizza to Parker's home in Los Angeles. They talked on the phone about what the Sky's ceiling could be with Parker. 'Great teams need great players,' Vandersloot told Parker. And all three of them believed that.

Wade took a less culinary approach. He discussed the Xs and Os of what Parker's addition would mean to the Sky's system. They talked about game film and game planning, Vandersloot's passing and the ability for Chicago to space the floor with five 3-point shooters on the court at any given time. When the schematics were exhausted, Wade addressed the biggest piece of what it would mean for Parker to play for Chicago: She was coming home. She grew up in the Chicago suburb of Naperville. Parker was already one of the most recognizable women's basketball stars in the world. Would she willingly take on more attention, with added expectations and critics? She said she wanted in.

The Chicago Sky went 16-16 during the regular season. Consistency was not their middle name. The sixth seed in the playoffs, they first had to win two single elimination games. As reported by the Chicago Tribune, "It didn't matter what others thought of their chances. The Chicago Sky knew they were going to win the WNBA championship heading into this postseason. The Sky completed their miracle run with an 80-74 victory over the Phoenix Mercury on Sunday in which they came back from an 11-point fourth-quarter deficit, after trailing nearly all game. They set a WNBA record for most wins in one postseason with eight en route to the franchise's first title." They are sky high indeed!

Much closer to home is the changes finally taking place in the minor leagues. For the first time, MLB will provide housing (or housing allowance) for minor leaguers. This is a huge win, and just the first step towards providing better conditions for these future major leaguers. Last year, MLB decided to condense the minor leagues, and teams developed stronger affinity with their parent teams (like the Mighty Mussels and Twins organization have done).

As reported by The Athletic, "The culture around the minor leagues for decades has been one of silence, where players were expected to keep quiet and endure exploitative and frankly dehumanizing conditions," said Harry Marino, executive director of the non-profit Advocates for Minor Leaguers. "We saw a real drastic and important break in that this year. Minor League players now understand that they don't have to stay quiet. And the players who took the lead and spoke out... deserve an enormous amount of credit, because this change - which will have a drastic impact on minor league players for generations to come - wouldn't have happened without that courage." The league said in a statement that it expects the change to go into effect for next year, but some details remain unclear. Not every minor-league player will reap the benefit. In mid-September, MLB and its owners agreed to provide housing for "certain" minor-league players, the league said. An MLB spokesperson declined to explain the parameters around inclusion, citing a process that has yet to be finalized. "MLB is engaged in a multi-year effort to modernize the minor league system and better assist players as they pursue their dreams of playing in the Major Leagues," the league said in its statement. Marino said housing has always been top of mind for many players he's spoken with.

The good news story is also a baaaaa news story. It's about a sheep and a former rugby player. The Good News Network reported that former Australian rugby player Nick "Honey Badger" Cummins was driving and saw a sheep stuck in a barbed wire fence bucking like a bronco to get out. The humanitarian in him came to life, and he immediately jumped out of his car and started to try and free her horns from the barbed wire. It wasn't easy. This was an animal in great distress and it took great patience from Nick to try and calm the sheep down while working aggressively to free it from its binding. Adult sheep weigh between 100 to 300 pounds, and this one wasn't little. Finally successful, Nick picked up the sheep and put it over the fence to go bleating happily home. This is one of those times you may need to watch it (www.goodnewsnetwork.org/nick-cummins-shepp-rescue-australia) to take it all in. Nick played rugby for eight seasons in Australia and Japan, and then transitioned into a successful acting career in TV and commercials, including an appearance on The Bachelor. Maybe an animal rescue is his next career?!

Have You Lost Your Curve?

by Ross Hauser, MD
and Marion Hauser, MS, RD

Some of us have lost our girlish figures, but that is not what we are talking about here! We have been treating patients' ligament and tendon injuries to every area of the body for nearly 30 years at Caring Medical – low backs, knees, elbows, TMJs, wrists, ankles, toes, shoulders, hips, pelvis and, of course, necks. However, in recent years, we have seen an astounding increase in neck or cervical spine injuries, causing people to develop a wide array of symptoms that patients may not realize come from injuries to the neck – causing them to lose their healthy neck curves. Why? It is our opinion that the dreaded “facedown lifestyle” is the culprit leading to ligament creep – a condition where ligaments start to stretch and stretch until they are no longer able to handle the load. A whiplash-type injury from a fall, car accident, sports injury, or even coughing may lead to worsening of the cervical injury, resulting in cervical spine abnormalities with eventual cervical dysstructure and pain.

Let's look at the types of curvatures of the neck that we see. You can see pictures of these at www.caringmedical.com if you want more information. The lordotic curve (or the C curve) is the correct curve of your neck. As injuries continue, cervical vertebrae then sublux, or move, and you see a gradual loss of lordosis to a straightening or military curve, an eventual reverse curve or Kyphotic curve, and eventually a reversal of the curve or an “S” curve signifying spinal instability.

You may ask, well, does it matter if I have lost my natural lordotic curve? Some patients that we see may be walking around with loss of their cervical curves and remain completely asymptomatic. That is until something happens! Discs begin to narrow between the C3-C4, C4-C5 and C5-C6 segments, as well as at the upper cervical levels. Strange sensations begin to develop such as headaches, neck pain, dizziness, tingling down the arms, brain fog, ear fullness, blurry vision, feeling of spinning and ringing in the ears. As this condition worsens, some patients experience even more terrible symptoms such as heart arrhythmias, fluctuations in blood pressure, GI disturbances and brain problems.

When the force per unit area becomes greater than the strength of the tissue, the results are tissue injury and pain. Since joint instability is the cause of almost all chronic pain, curing chronic pain involves tightening the loose joints by stimulating the appropriate ligaments to tighten, and thus resolving the destructive joint forces. As tissue further weakens, destructive joint motions are produced every time the joint is used, creating a vicious cycle of worsening joint destruction and pain.

At Caring Medical, we document cervical instability utilizing digital motion x-ray, along with physical exam and other modalities. Healing protocols include regenerative injection treatments, such as prolotherapy from one of our skilled prolotherapists and/or cervical realignment therapy for curve correction performed by our chiropractic physician. We also encourage our patients to do things at home to work on improving their cervical curves, such as sitting with shoulders and chin back and tummies tucked in, standing regularly, especially if you work at a computer for a long time, getting regular exercise and, most certainly, implementing a dramatic reduction in cellular device usage in the facedown position. So, if you have lost your curve, remember that there are ways to get it back.

Improper Thyroid Testing Leads To Years Of Misery

by Suzy
Cohen, RPh

Dear Readers:

Thyroid disease is occurring at epidemic rates, yet many physicians still do not know how to properly evaluate a patient for a thyroid or adrenal condition. Most of the time, you have to take control of your own health care decisions and lab evaluations in order to get well.

That's what I had to do many years ago, so it surprises me that today there is still resistance to many simple lab tests that could uncover the problem. My book, Thyroid Healthy, gives you the simple education you need to empower yourself with information so you can get well.

As an example, for the last 45 years, doctors have been taught to evaluate a patient for a thyroid problem by ordering a thyroid stimulating hormone (TSH) blood test. Unfortunately, this is not the best way to determine if you have a low thyroid. This test, while very cheap, has many limitations which is why getting free and total values for T4 and T3 is useful, along with a panel that assesses thyroid antibodies. Furthermore, the basal body temperature test should be part of your thyroid workup.

Just checking your thyroid levels or your TSH is not enough. The adrenal glands are connected chemically speaking, and if your adrenal glands are over-producing cortisol, you will not feel well, and no amount of thyroid medication will solve it.

Knowing your cortisol levels are important because cortisol can raise thyroid binding globulin (TBG) that then causes you to have reduced free thyroid hormone available to your cells. In other words, stress which raises cortisol will ultimately lead to hypothyroidism. Cortisol changes, according to your circadian rhythm, and should be measured with a four-point urine test such as DUTCH or another equivalent.

Adequate testing for this condition has barely budged in decades and, as a result, you may be suffering needlessly. One more test that I suggest is for iron, specifically the “ferritin” test, which is a good place to start. The reason I recommend drawing a ferritin level at the time of your “complete thyroid panel” is because hypothyroidism often causes people to have a low body temperature. That's why they always say they're cold, even when the ambient room temperature is comfortable. The situation causes fewer red blood cells to be manufactured by bone marrow (which is temperature sensitive). So if your body temperature is low and so are your ferritin levels, it builds the case for hypothyroidism. It's all about putting the puzzle pieces together. The normal reference range varies from lab to lab, but it should be somewhere around 70 to 90 ng/ml. There are ways to raise your iron without having to take supplements which can be very hard on the stomach. ## Encourage More Use Of The Dining Room

by Marcia Feeney

The dining room offers so many opportunities to mingle with loved ones and catch up after time away from each other. Whether you're hosting a holiday, having a game night with your children or wine and dining with old friends, the dining room table has a way of bringing people together and making the conversation flow in an effortless manner.

But when was the last time that you retreated to this area of your home? You might have talked about gathering in this space with your favorite people, but did you ever make it to this cozy space, or did you resort to the living room instead? There's nothing wrong with getting together on the sofa, of course, but you should certainly make use of your dining area if you have one.

If you're having a hard time motivating yourself and your guests to sit down at the dining room table and enjoy a meal and conversation, maybe you need to spruce the space up to encourage more usage.

It's easy to assume that you only need enough seating to take care of your live-in family members, but that's likely the reason you don't make use of this space when guests come around. A larger table with more chairs can solve this problem, but you can also keep a bench nearby to accommodate those who don't necessarily need to sit at the table, but still want to be a part of the conversation.

Perhaps the reason you're avoiding the dining room is that it's dark and gloomy. First, decide how much natural lighting you have available. If your current window treatments are keeping you from embracing the natural sunlight, switch them out for something more flowy and transparent like sheer treatments. If your dining room is in the middle of your home with minimal natural lighting, you may consider a new light fixture that gleams down on the middle of the table. This will not only illuminate the space, but it can also be the perfect focal point of the room.

Every dining room needs a conversation starter. Sometimes it's your favorite relative, other times it's a beautiful piece of artwork, furniture or accessories sitting on the shelf. If you want to make the latter a true statement, find something that brings the room together and intrigues guests from the moment they enter the room until the second they leave.

Sometimes, your dining room needs more than a new table or centerpiece to get the conversation flowing. It may be time to give the entire room a floor-to-ceiling makeover if you want to turn it into a space that's visited on a more frequent basis. Think new paint color, window treatments, chair cushions, area rugs and other accessories that will make the space feel more complete.

Your dining room space shouldn't go to waste. Instead of treating it like an extra coat closet or storage space for holiday decorations, take advantage of the opportunity to gather with the ones you love. Committing to the project is just the first step. Once you're ready to execute your ideas, evaluate your dining space and your style preferences to establish an overall theme. Next, select décor and furniture based on the available floor space and your dining room will be stylish and welcoming. Maybe, it may even be the only room you want to retreat to in your home.

Lucy And Lana

Hello, my name is Lucy. I'm a brindle 9-year-old female pit bull. I'm a low rider whose pint-sized body holds a ton of personality. I was recently taken to an adoption event at Miromar Outlets, and I loved everyone I met. I may be a senior in age, but not mindset. I'm very well-behaved and affectionate. My adoption fee is $25.

Hi, my name is Lana. I'm a patch tabby 2-year-old female domestic shorthair. I'm a beautifully patterned patch tabby that knows how stunning I am and will pose for a picture as soon as I see a camera. Shy is not a word

My Stars ★★★★★

FOR WEEK OF OCTOBER 18, 2021

Aries (March 21 to April 19) You're moving from a relatively stable situation to one that appears to be laced with perplexity. Be patient. You'll eventually get answers to help clear up the confusion around you.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) A vexing situation tempts you to rush to set it all straight. But it's best to let things sort themselves out so that you can get a better picture of the challenge you're facing.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) Financial matters could create some confusion, especially with a torrent of advice pouring in from several sources. Resist acting on emotion and wait for the facts to emerge.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) That goal you've set is still in sight and is still in reach. Stay with the course that you're on. Making too many shifts in direction now could create another set of problems.

Leo (July 23 to August 22) It might be time to confront a trouble-making associate and demand some answers.

But be prepared for some surprises that could lead you to make a change in some long-standing plans.

Virgo (August 23 to September 22) Congratulations. You're making great progress in sorting out all that confusion that kept you from making those important decisions. You're on your way now.

Libra (September 23 to October 22) A difficult experience begins to ease. That's the good news. The not-so-good news is a possible complication that could prolong the problem awhile longer.

Scorpio (October 23 to November 21) Your self-confidence gets a much-needed big boost as you start to unsnarl that knotty financial problem. Expect some help from a surprising source.

Sagittarius (November 22 to December 21) Congratulations. Any lingering negative aftereffects from that not-so-pleasant workplace situation are all but gone. It's time now to focus on the positive.

Capricorn (December 22 to January 19) Your self-confidence grows stronger as you continue to take more control of your life. Arrange for some well-earned fun and relaxation with someone special.

Aquarius (January 20 to February 18) As usual, you've been concerned more about the needs of others than your own. You need to take time for yourself so that you can replenish all that spent energy.

Pisces (February 19 to March 20) Stronger planetary influences indicate a growing presence of people eager to help you navigate through the rough seas that might mark your career course.

Born This Week: You can balance emotion and logic, which gives you the ability to make choices that are more likely than not to prove successful.

MOMENTS IN TIME

- On October 26, 1775, King George III speaks before both houses of the British Parliament to discuss growing concern about the rebellion in America. He urged Parliament to move quickly to end the revolt and bring order to the colonies.

- On October 31, 1864, Congress quickly admits Nevada as the 36th state in the Union. President Lincoln's proposed 13th Amendment banning slavery was the decisive factor in easing Nevada's path to statehood.

- On October 27, 1873, Joseph Glidden, an Illinois farmer, submits an application to the U.S. Patent Office for his new design for a fencing wire with sharp barbs on two strands. Barbed wire would forever change the face of the American West.

- On October 25, 1929, during the Teapot Dome oil reserve scandal, Albert Fall, who served as secretary of the interior under President Warren Harding, is found guilty of bribery and conspiracy. He was the first former cabinet officer sentenced to prison as a result of misconduct in office.

- On October 30, 1941, President Franklin Roosevelt, determined to keep the United States out of the war while helping those allies already mired in it, approves $1 billion in Lend-Lease loans to the Soviet Union. The terms: no interest, and repayment would not start until five years after the war ended.

- On October 28, 1962, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev orders the withdrawal of missiles from Cuba, ending the Cuban Missile Crisis. In 1960, Khrushchev had launched plans to install ballistic missiles in Cuba that would put the eastern U.S. within range of nuclear attack.

Moments In Time

• On October 29, 1998, almost 40 years after he became the first American to orbit Earth, Sen. John Glenn Jr. is launched into space again as a payload specialist aboard the Space Shuttle Discovery. Glenn, 77, was the oldest human ever to travel in space.

NOW HERE'S A TIP

• Update window treatments to compensate for dropping temperatures. Trade your sheers for sturdy, draft-blocking panels.

• To easily get keys on a keychain, use a staple remover to create an opening to slip the keys on. It is very effective and will keep you from getting frustrated.

• When hammering a nail, try this save-your-finger trick: Use a clothespin to hold the nail steady, and then use your hammer to drive it in. Hammering into the wall? Push the nail through a strip of cardboard, and then hold the cardboard over the right spot. No more banged-up fingers or thumbs!

• "At a party, someone spilled a cup of red wine on one of my throw pillows. I love the pillow, since it is just the right size and really soft, but I could not get the stain out. So I covered it with a new fabric. I ended up doing all the assorted pillows in the same fabric, and it made a big change in the room. I wish I had done it sooner." – IF in Pennsylvania

• Bringing some plants indoors? Use styrofoam packing peanuts in the bottom of pots when planting. They aren't as heavy as rocks, but they do just as good a job. It makes the pots easier to move around should you need to.

• "For easy-cleanup pancakes, use a turkey baster to 'squirt' the batter in the griddle or skillet. No drips, and it usually results in a pretty good circle, too!" – AJ in Florida

STRANGE BUT TRUE

• Bob Marley gave a songwriter credit on No Woman, No Cry to his friend Vincent Ford, who ran a soup kitchen in his hometown of Trenchtown, to ensure the royalty checks would keep it open.

• You're more likely to die on your way to purchase a lottery ticket than you are to actually win the lottery.

• Stenocereus Eruca, commonly known as the Creeping Devil, is a species of cactus that lies on the ground and grows at one end while the other end slowly dies "creeping" (growing) up to two feet a year. It can also clone itself to survive.

• Babe Ruth paid a fan $20 to return the baseball he hit for his 700th career home run.

• When he retired in 1990 after molding 1.4 billion crayons, Crayola's most senior crayon molder, Emerson Moser, revealed he was actually blue-green color blind.

• In 2017, social robot Sophia was given citizenship by Saudi Arabia – the first robot to be given legal personhood anywhere in the world.

• The Western lowland gorilla's scientific name is Gorilla gorilla gorilla.

• Speaking of names, SpongeBob was originally created as SpongeBoy, but Nickelodeon discovered that the moniker was already copyrighted by a mop.

• A study revealed that people scored higher in a mental agility test while wearing a lab coat they believed was a doctor's coat. The effect was not there when they believed the same white coat was a painter's coat.

• Using &#x2013; instead of swear words is called a Grawlix.

• In Singapore, you can't walk naked in your own house. Well, you could, but you'd be facing a possible fine of $1,136, so we don't recommend it.
