Rat Pack Together Again Returns To Beach

The Rat Pack Together Again, a group of three entertainers playing Dean Martin, Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr., will return to the Fort Myers Beach area on Sunday and Monday, January 26 and 27 to awaken the spirit of the men who were called “the coolest cats in entertainment in the early 1960s” during one of six shows featured at the Moose Lodge Entertainment Center.

Robert Cabella as Dean Martin, Jeff Foote as Sammy Davis, Jr. and Tony Sands as Frank Sinatra will perform as the leading members of the Rat Pack during an evening that will last four-plus hours and include a disc jockey, dancing, a cash bar, hors d’oeuvres and live performances. The action begins at 6 p.m. with the shows starting at 7:30 p.m.

The rest of the 2020 lineup at the center includes performers portraying Johnny Carson, Danny DeVito and Rod Stewart on February 9; Joan Rivers, Danny DeVito and Bobby Darin on February 10; Don Rickles, Foster Brooks and Kenny Rogers on February 23 and 24; Dean Martin and Elvis Jr. on March 8 and 9; Barbra Streisand and Jerry Lewis on March 22; and Cher and Jerry Lewis on March 23.

Chef-prepared hors d’oeuvres will vary for each show, but will include a selection of Latin shrimp with avocado sauce, strawberry salad with black truffle dressing, beef tenderloin on a garlic crostini with herb cream cheese, spicy chicken satay with Asian peanut sauce, antipasto skewers, seared tuna bites with seaweed salad and Japanese dressing, and twice-baked potatoes.

Cost for each evening’s event is $55 per person. Reserve early as seating is limited in the 100-seat center.

The multi-evening shows began seven years ago when Alfredo Russo, the late owner of Junkanoo and the Fresh Catch Bistro on Fort Myers Beach, wanted upscale entertainment for his restaurant guests. Fresh Catch Manager Jerry Nolan decided to utilize some of his New York connections to find the talent. The shows were an overwhelming success with many sell-outs.

“This is upscale entertainment at affordable pricing,” said Nolan. “If you look at the pricing, with the dancing, food and live shows, it is very economical.”

Interest in the shows skyrocketed, and the crowds became too large for a restaurant environment, prompting a change in venue to the Moose Lodge Entertainment Center last year.

“We needed to move it to more of a night club atmosphere,” said Nolan, organizer of the shows. “Since the center is before the bridge, we made it more convenient to get to the venue with plenty of parking.”

The Moose Lodge Entertainment Center is located at 19090 San Carlos Boulevard on San Carlos Island. For more information and reservations, call 810-4587 or email jgn56bklyn@yahoo.com.✪

A Christmas Story For Everyone At Lab Theater

by Di Saggau

I had the pleasure of seeing two offbeat Christmas shows this past weekend. The first one I saw was Let Nothing You Dismay at Laboratory Theater of Florida. This farcical plot involves a young couple, Kevin and Allie (David Cooley and Amanda Collins), who are awaiting the birth of the baby they plan to adopt. They also play the birth parents, Leonard and Lizzie. Their transformations between characters is quite amazing.

That’s the fun part of this play, all eight actors play 22 different characters so there is a lot of hustling, and costume and wig changes. I found two of the wigs to be distracting while others found them funny. Different strokes. Christmas Eve in the

While I enjoy the traditional Christmas shows with holiday songs and glamour, it’s also fun to see the unconventional shows, like Inspecting Carol at New Phoenix Theatre. This satirical Yuletide show is about a down-and-out drama troupe that is heavily in debt, lost half of its subscribers and is trying to hang together with its 13th annual offering of the Dickens classic, A Christmas Carol.

When an amateur actor shows up looking to audition for any role, he is assumed to be from the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA), and there to evaluate the company. A NEA grant is the only thing that can save them from financial collapse so the director casts him in the play. As they continue to rehearse

Historic Downtown Fort Myers, Then And Now:

Railroad Brings Entertainment Avalanche

by Gerri Reaves, PhD

The extension of the Atlantic Coast Line's Railroad (ACL) to Fort Myers in 1904 had immediate economic benefits.

Initially, at least, the ability to ship citrus, fish on ice and agricultural produce to northern markets outweighed the significance of what was being transported in.

However, the non-agricultural "freight," for lack of a better word, came to have profound effects too, notably in terms of tourism and entertainment. Not only individual visitors but excursion groups began to show up in Fort Myers, invigorating the hotel, boardinghouse and restaurant business.

The town was now connected to the rest of the nation via the passenger and freight depots on Monroe Street between Main and First. Circuses and traveling theatre companies took notice, especially the former, for Florida's weather provided a haven for them during the winter months.

The first week of January 1905 was a case of too much of a good thing all at once – four circuses.

The Fort Myers Press lamented that it would have been preferable for the diversions to be distributed over time, not all bunched up in one week.

The glut of shows inevitably reduced audience numbers, the Press observed, not to mention profits.

Nevertheless, throngs of passengers headed for town, eager for something out of the ordinary.

The year began with three performances by the relatively small Jones Model Plate Railroad Show.

Then John H. Spark's Old Reliable Virginia Shows was scheduled for January 3, with advertisements promising it would be "larger, grander, and better than ever" and "TWICE THE FORMER SIZE."

There were two shows per day in a waterproof tent lighted at night by the circus' own portable light plant.

The show brought not only the first elephant to grace the streets of Fort Myers, but a pair of lions, two trained seals, a leopard, tigers, bears, wolves, hyenas, "a funny mule," "trained goats" and the "intelligent little pony Bolivar, the smallest in the world" – a captive menagerie sure to distress any animal lover today.

There were human performers, too: clowns, a contortionist, acrobats, wire walkers and tumblers.

The animal stands at the corner of First and Hendry, just in front of the soon-to-opened Bradford Building.

This photo might have been taken during the Golden Street Parade, a 10 a.m. event sure to grab the attention of potential circus-goers.

The unfortunate animal is being used as a billboard for Evans & Co, which was located at the same intersection. The advertisement reads, "Hammer, the Best Paint on Earth," a product still available today.

The very next day, on January 4, Sun Brothers delighted audiences with the "world's progressive railroad shows, museums, menagerie and trained animal exhibition" – talk about comprehensive entertainment.

That show included "a ponderous troupe of performing elephants," Comodore [sic], "the most wonderful mule in the world," and "the famous Hardell and Hart Trio, horizontal bar experts, just to name a few.

That show, too, began the performance day with a parade, this one named the Grand Picturesque Street Parade.

If circus lovers weren't saturated after this three-day extravaganza, there was more to come – the Miles Orton Dog and Pony Show the next day.

Also in town during the circus run was the Four Pickerts, a touring theater company that performed comedies, farces and dramas to rave reviews at Phoenix Hall, located on the floor above Evans & Co.

To top it off, a few weeks later the Charles King Dramatic Company came to town. No one could argue that 1904 began on a dull note.

Walk down to First and Hendry and imagine circus parades that introduced Fort Myers to its first visiting elephant and other things from the wide, wide world.

Then visit the following research centers to learn more about how the railroad changed Fort Myers forever.

Christmas Carol Sing To Feature Grammy Winner

Gaither Homecoming Soloist and Grammy Award winner Larry Ford will make a special guest appearance at the 29th annual Christmas Carol Sing at First Presbyterian Church on Tuesday, December 17. Because of the overwhelming popularity of the event, three sing-alongs are planned at 1, 4 and 7 p.m. The doors will open 30 minutes prior to show time.

Sponsored by the Galloway Family of Dealerships, the Christmas Carol Sing is a free event, although organizers request voluntary donations of at least two cans of non-perishable food for The Soup Kitchen, operated by Community Cooperative, and a voluntary cash donation, if you can.

"We are honored that Larry Ford has agreed to perform at this year's Christmas Carol Sing. He will sing several Christmas Carols and help lead the audience in singing carols and hymns that everyone knows and loves," said Carol Sing Founder and Organizer Sam Galloway, Jr.

Ford is a featured soloist on the Gaither Homecoming DVD series, which consistently ranks in the top of Billboard Magazine's music charts. The tenor was awarded a Grammy for Best Southern Gospel Recording in 2003.

The Christmas Carol Sing is a festival of holiday music and family fun. This year's 90-minute performance also will feature the First Presbyterian Church Choir, soloists John Goulet, Linda Digman and Beverly Cox along with the Spiritual Voices and other special guests singing favorite holiday carols with audience sing-a-longs.

There is a strong rumor that Santa Claus will be making a surprise visit for the "children in all of us."

Community Cooperative is an innovative nonprofit organization made up of social service entrepreneurs fighting to end homelessness and hunger in our community. It provides more than 15,000 meals each month through its Community Cafés and Meals on Wheels programs, distributes more than 500,000 pounds of groceries through its Mobile Food Pantries, and serves 6,500 individuals and families with homeless and comprehensive case management services through its Social & Education Resource Centers.

The church has been a strong supporter of the agency from the beginning and continues to support its ministry there by providing volunteers and other support for The Soup Kitchen and the Meals on Wheels program.

Galloway said cash donations are especially needed because Community Cooperative can buy five times as much food for the same amount of money that residents spend at local grocery stores.

Resident, who cannot attend any of the Christmas Carol Sing performances, may donate canned goods at either the Galloway Ford dealership on Boy Scout Drive or the Coconut Point Ford dealership on U.S. 41 in Estero or mail donations to Community Cooperative, P.O. Box 2143, Fort Myers, FL 33902.

In addition to the Christmas Carol Sing, the Galloway Family of Dealerships also annually sponsors Mrs. Edison's Hymn Sing scheduled for February 11, 2020. Both events benefit The Soup Kitchen of Community Cooperative.

Campaign Draws Most Successful Food Drive Yet

On November 15, Pushing the Envelope, Inc. (PTE) completed its 9th annual CAN IT! Campaign, a food drive benefiting those less fortunate in Southwest Florida. The campaign collected 3,296 non-perishable food items for Community Cooperative, Inc. (CCI), the most collected since the campaign's inception and far exceeding the 1,000-item goal.

From day care centers to car parts stores to churches and roofing companies, Pushing the Envelope partnered with a record 26 businesses and organizations to collect donations.

With its completion, the CAN IT! Campaign has donated thousands of items, amounting to more than 13,100 pounds of food to CCI since its inception in 2010.

"This food drive was an incredible display of the giving spirit that pervades Southwest Florida," said Samantha Scott, APR, PTE president. "We are overwhelmed by the support of like-minded people who donated and served as drop-off locations, but most pleased to know we've been able to help others this holiday season."

Giving back to the community is part of Pushing the Envelope's company culture. The firm plans to host the campaign again in 2020, marking 10 years of helping feed the hungry in Southwest Florida. For more information, contact juliana@getpushing.com.*

Family To Be Honored At Storybook Ball

Ronald McDonald House Charities of Southwest Florida will honor Barbara and Tom Fewster and Beverly and Tom Fewster Jr. at the 26th annual Storybook Ball at the Hyatt Regency Coconut Point on Saturday, February 15. NBC-2 anchor Kellie Burns will emcee the themed event featuring an interpretation of Mulan, a celebration of perseverance, family and Chinese culture.

"The Fewster family has been a part of RMHC long before the Ronald McDonald House was built," said executive director Laura Ragain. "Barbara and Beverly were both active board members and fundraisers for many years. The Fewster family owned and operated 10 McDonald's restaurants in Southwest Florida. Since selling the restaurants in 2015, Tom Jr. and Beverly have been generously volunteering their time at the Ronald McDonald House and the Ronald McDonald Family Room at Golisano Children's Hospital. Even the third generation of Fewsters, Tom Jr., and Beverly's son and daughter, have helped volunteer at numerous fundraising events such as the Storybook Ball, Golf Tournament and World Wine Tour. We are so grateful for the family's continued support."

In black tie optional or themed attire, guests will be offered cocktails and a silent auction at 6 p.m. Dinner and dancing to The Robert Williamson Band will follow, along with a live auction. All proceeds support Ronald McDonald House Charities of Southwest Florida in its mission to create, find and support programs that directly impact the health and well-being of children and their families.

Short Play Medley Returns to Bonita Center On Friday

by Tom Hall

Time travel, invisibility, the first interracial gay snow globe couple, sexy role playing and a helicopter Jewish mother-in-law will be just some of the topics covered in the eclectic and hilarious short play collection Funny Shorts LIVE! at Center for Performing Arts Bonita Springs' Moe Auditorium and Film Center on Friday, December 13 at 7:30 p.m.

Funny Shorts LIVE! is an extension of the center's wildly popular Stage IT! 10-Minute Play Festival, an annual competition and book publication that draws playwrights from around the world. With performances scheduled throughout the year, this Funny Shorts LIVE! event will feature playwrights from New York, California, Michigan, Maine and Florida.

In keeping with the center's mission of featuring local playwrights, Bonita Springs' Leslie Sanderson will see her play Invisible presented with the other comic gems. Her play explores the life of an aging woman who is figuratively and literally becoming invisible to everyone—including her husband and grown child.

Racial identity and relations are covered in biting satirical fashion in both The Snow Globe by Lynn Aylward, which examines the life of the first interracial gay snow globe couple, and the play Schnitzels and Noodles by singularly named playwright Chalmers, in which a black couple must use their "white voice" to encourage the Boston police to show up for an emergency.

Love is explored in That's Amore by Arnold Kane in which a couple spice up their marriage with role play only to achieve "interruptus" from the babysitter, while James Pfrehm's Yes vs. No explore the absurd complexity of today's relationship issues. Greg Atkins' Tempus Fugit is a fun, fast-paced time travel comedy in which a couple is visited by a Future Self trying to stop their impending engagement.

Other plays include Kitty Dubin's Cutting It Close about a young interfaith couple facing the Jewish mother-in-law over how to raise their new baby, and Bruce Guelden's Thanks for Holding, directed by local featured local playwright, Leslie Sanderson.

A team of directors includes Frank Blocker, Todd Irby, Gary Obeldobel, Luis Pages, Toni Palumbo and Marilee Warner. The cast will include Felicity Benson, Carolyn Bronson, Kevin Buja, Amanda Carrion, Leeanne Chiaramonte, Don Fox, Alberto Gayoso, Melissa Hennig, Nance Jones, Diana Lett, Rita Meehan, Skyler Moore, Lena Neal, Gary Obeldobel, Luis Pages, Sean Pritchard, Abby Reed, Anne Reed, Kevin Sandel, Leslies Sanderson, Annie Stout and Jennifer Valiente.

Funny Shorts LIVE! has become a popular hit with area residents, so get your tickets in advance of the performance. Best of all, wearing your own funny shorts is completely optional. Encouraged, but optional.

The Moe Auditorium & Film Center is located at 10150 Bonita Beach Road in Bonita Springs. Tickets are $20 for general admission (with 10 percent off for current CFABS members). For more information, call 495-8989 or visit www.artcenterbonita.org.

Youth Players To Perform Dickens-Themed Play

Magic Tree House: A Ghost Tale for Mr. Dickens Jr. will be performed by the CFABS Youth Players in the Hinman Auditorium at 7 p.m. Thursday, December 19 through Saturday, December 21, with a 2 p.m. matinee on Saturday, December 21.

Magic Tree House: A Ghost Tale for Mr. Dickens Jr. is an adaptation of book #44 of Mary Pope Osborne's award-winning fantasy adventure books from the Magic Tree House book series. The magic tree house whisks Jack and Annie back in time to the foggy streets of Victorian London, where they meet the famous well-off author, Charles Dickens, who has a severe case of writer's block. Jack and Annie also witness the hardships faced by the poor, and their efforts to help only land them in prison. Dickens rescues Jack and Annie, and they, in turn, help him escape the sad memories that haunt him. In the process, they inspire Mr. Dickens to write one of the greatest holiday stories of all time.

New McGregor Goodwill Opens

Thrift shoppers will get a chance to experience the new Goodwill Retail & Donation Center in Island Plaza Shopping Center at 15271 McGregor Boulevard on Thursday, December 12. Everyone is invited to a ribbon-cutting, scheduled for 8:45 a.m. just before shoppers are allowed in at 9 p.m. for the first time. The Goodwill bookstore, which opened as a Christmas Pop-Up store on October 12, will be permanently closing on December 24.

"The new location will allow us to have a full-size Goodwill retail store on McGregor with a more convenient donation experience and more parking," said John Nadeau, the CEO of Goodwill Industries of Southwest Florida. "A lot of our Goodwill bookstore fans are asking about the books from the previous location. We want everyone to know that the new McGregor store will have an expanded book section that will include all of the great finds from the bookstore."

The grand opening will carry on through the weekend with 25 percent off all donated goods on Saturday, December 14, and the opportunity for shoppers to register to win a large screen Smart TV throughout the four days. The winner to be drawn at the end of the business day on Sunday, December 15.

The new McGregor Goodwill will increase the number of thrift stores located in the plaza giving shoppers a one-stop thrift shopping opportunity. With the holidays just around the corner, shoppers will benefit from the savings. Plus, on December 14, several of the neighboring restaurants in the plaza are offering coupons, menus and food for sale onsite as part of the Goodwill Grand Opening festivities.*

Blankets Needed For Homeless Coalition

The Lee County Homeless Coalition is requesting donations of new and gently used twin blankets.

With nighttime temperatures dropping to the 40s and 50s this week and next, there is a need for blankets especially when an individual has no home or warm room to stay in. Blankets will be given to outreach workers and homeless provider agencies to distribute to those who are living on the streets or in their cars. Many low-income people don't have enough money to buy warm blankets – especially those who are without a home. A blanket is no substitute for having a safe place to sleep every night. However, it can offer warmth when the temperatures drop.

"A blanket can help to protect someone from the elements, it keeps them warm and safe, and gives them a sense of hope knowing that the community cares and that the community is helping them," said Janet Bartos, executive director of the Lee County Homeless Coalition. "In the next couple of months, we expect temperatures to drop in the evenings and have nights that can become uncomfortably cold. If you are able to donate twin blankets, please call the coalition at 322-6600 to schedule a time to drop off."✪

CROW Case Of The Week:

Red-Shouldered Hawk

by Bob Petcher

A red-shouldered hawk (Buteo lineatus) is a well-defined bird of prey, distinguishable by its “red” shoulder patches, checkered flight feathers and its striking “kee-rah” call. It is a vocal bird, especially during breeding season in early spring.

Red-shouldered hawks are generally perch-hunters that wait for their prey to come out in the open before swooping down to snatch it from land or water. Their extensive diet includes small mammals like mice and chipmunks, amphibians like frogs and geckos, and reptiles like snakes. They are also known to prey on birds, crayfish and insects in certain areas.

At CROW, an adult red-shouldered hawk was admitted from Cape Coral after reportedly being grounded in a yard for an extended period of time. Upon intake, the bird was lethargic and severely dehydrated. Veterinarians suspected the hawk was a victim of accidental rodenticide poisoning.

“Exposure from eating a rodent that ate the rodenticide is the most likely cause,” said Dr. Megan Cabot, CROW veterinary intern.

Rodenticides are labeled anticoagulants that prevent the blood from clotting normally and cause an animal that has ingested a toxic amount to slowly bleed to death. Rodents that ingest the poison often become disoriented or lethargic and become easy prey for hawks, owls and other predators, passing the poison through the food chain.

Over a two-day period at CROW, the hawk continued to lose blood, so veterinarians performed a blood transfusion to help restore its normal clotting factors. A healthier red-shouldered hawk recovering from puncture wounds to the top of its head donated the blood for the transfusion.

“We prefer to use a completely healthy donor but, in a wildlife hospital setting, this is not always possible, so we try to pick the healthiest in-patient to donate,” said Dr. Cabot. “Unfortunately, this has occurred a few times in the past month due to an influx of patients suffering from rodenticide toxicity. The rodenticide stops the patient’s ability to clot blood and can cause spontaneous bleeding. The blood transfusion replaces the blood lost and, in most cases, if the patient does not receive a blood transfusion quickly, it will die.”

The hawk that received the transfusion was noted to be bright, alert, responsive and standing the day after the procedure -- quite the quick recovery. The patient continues to recover with the help of vitamin K, iron and nutritional support.

“The blood transfusion is like a band-aid that works immediately to keep the patient alive while we treat the underlying clotting disorder caused by the rodenticide,” said Dr. Cabot. “Vitamin K is the treatment for rodenticide toxicity as it is required for the formation of clots. Iron supports the bone marrow as it tries to replace the blood by making new cells.”

The red-shouldered hawk rebounded quickly and is expected to make a full recovery.

“With treatment over the past week, the patient’s blood cell count has nearly doubled and is back in the normal range. The patient is doing well and was moved outside for continued monitoring post-treatment,” said Dr. Cabot. “If it continues to do well, it will be released in a few days.”

Rodenticide, much like glue traps, discussed in this column two weeks ago, is not a humane way of killing an animal.

“Just like glue traps, rodenticide causes significant animal suffering and frequently affects animals further up the food chain,” added Dr. Cabot. “In the case of rodenticide, the rodents and their predators including hawks, owls, and cats, essentially bleed to death after exposure.”

The Beloved Sheephead

by Capt. Matt Mitchell

So far this December fishing has been much better than in the past several years. Generally by this time of year, we have made that annual switch from shiners to shrimp fishing and are catching sheephead and rat redfish. Though this bite is going on while shrimp fishing, the bite on larger snook and redfish has been awesome around all our local passes. These unexpected bigger fish have required larger baits like pinfish and shiners. Catching multiple fish over 30 inches while flipping big baits is just not a normal December thing.

The sheephead bite is gradually improving with the cooler water. Clients looking to go home with dinner caught these striped fish on chunks of fresh shrimp rigged on small jig heads. Barnacle-crusting pilings and areas with a shell bottom that have a faster-moving current held some of the first decent sized sheephead we have seen this season. Most of these fish have been between 10 to 15 inches with no real giants showing up yet.

The fishing for this much-beloved food fish of winter will only continue to improve with February being the peak spawning month. Florida sheephead regulations are 12 inch minimum with a 8 per person limit. Personally, we don't keep anything smaller than 14 inches as there is very little meat and lots of bones on these little guys. Only take what you will eat.

I often hear people complain about how hard sheephead are to clean. With a sharp knife and a little practice, they are well worth the effort. A few pointers that help: do not cut through the rib cage when cleaning them; and do not cut the fillet completely off the carcass before skinning. Cutting through the rib bones doesn't give you a better yield and quickly dulls your knife. I see more and more people cleaning them with electric fillet knives, but I'm not a fan. I feel I get a better yield and end up with a better looking fillet with a quality sharp fillet knife.

Don't let the colder weather keep you off the water. Get out and fish.

Dogfennel

by Gerri Reaves

Dogfennel (Eupatorium capillifolium) is a native wildflower of the aster family that grows throughout the state in flatwoods, fields, marshes, swales, disturbed sites and along roadsides.

Although it will grow in almost any soil, it prefers dry sandy conditions. It can be aggressive and/or weedy and quickly overtakes an over-grazed cattle field, for example.

Reaching five feet or more in height, it resembles tall feathery grass as it waves in the wind and shimmers in the sun.

The stems are multi-branched and arise from a woody base.

The leaves, which are divided into thread-like segments, are alternate on the upper part of the plant and opposite on the lower.

Draping loose spikes of tiny creamy white flowers appear summer to fall. Grouped into heads that can vary in form from plant to plant, the flowers might have both disk and ray flowers or might have only one or the other.

Their fluffy tuft-like bristles aid in seed dispersal by wind.

Native dogfennel is a member of the aster family

photos by Gerri Reaves

When it's in bloom, dogfennel brings to mind native saltbush (Baccharis halimifolia), another member of the aster family that has fuzzy tufts of flowers.

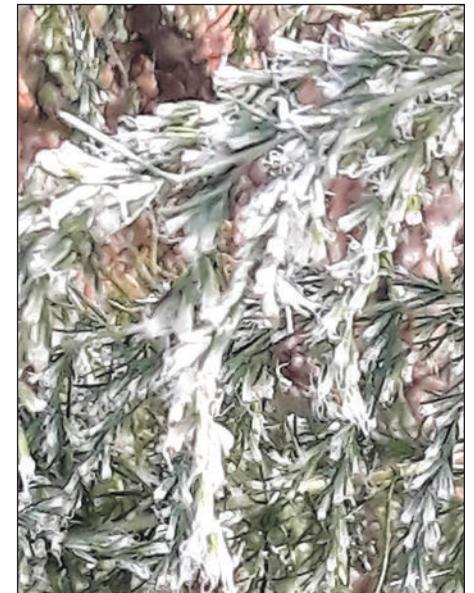

This perennial is a nectar source for butterflies and attracts bees and birds as well.

It produces a smooth dry one-seeded fruit.

Caution: Dogfennel contains pyrrolizidine alkaloid and is toxic to birds, people and other mammals.

Curiously, however, the scarlet-bodied wasp moth actually depends on that alkaloid for its survival. The adult male feeds on it to gain protection from predators and even conveys it to the female during mating.

Manatee Gift Adoptions

Adopting real Florida manatees for family and friends this holiday season is nature-inspired as well as thoughtful gift-giving that helps Save the Manatee Club increase efforts to protect the imperiled marine mammals and their aquatic habitat. This unique gift also lets gift-givers spark joy and appreciation among family and friends.

Last year, Sarah Young from Warrenton, Virginia, decided to adopt a manatee for her 14-year-old daughter Sophia. "I chose Aqua to adopt as this is my daughter's favorite color, and Aqua had just given birth to a calf at the time," Young said.

All of the 30-plus unique manatees available for adoption can be viewed on the club's website at www.savethemanatee.org/adopt. Millie and Illusion are two new manatees recently added to the list of adoptees.

Membership adoption levels at Save the Manatee Club start at $25 and feature a personalized adoption packet that includes an adoption certificate, photo and life history of a real Florida manatee, and a fact-filled membership handbook. Print and e-newsletters are

Entries Sought For High School Photo Contest

The 7th annual “Ding” Darling-Theodore Cross High School Photography Contest kicked off October 1, with a deadline of January 15, 2020. High school students in Lee, Collier, Charlotte, Glades and Hendry counties are invited to compete for prizes that include a Canon digital SLR camera package, chartered class trips to the refuge, and copies of Waterbirds: Portraits and Anecdotes from Birding Adventures by contest namesake, the late Theodore Cross.

Cross, who lived part-time on Sanibel, marched with Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.; advised the Johnson and Nixon administrations on anti-poverty programs; wrote the influential book Black Capitalism, among others; played a prominent role in President Obama’s election; and created Birders United – a birding website that ranked legislators according to their record of bird protection support.

Late in life, Cross decided to indulge his love for birds and photography and traveled the world to collect stunning portraits and stories to chronicle his adventures. He shot often at JN “Ding” Darling National Wildlife Refuge on Sanibel, and a number of the images in his book reflect his love for the refuge. Cross published Waterbirds in 2009 at age 85; he passed away shortly after that in February 2010.

NPR’s All Things Considered called Cross’ collection of 179 images and countless anecdotes “spectacular.” The New York Times described it as “part visual encyclopedia, part memoir.”

“The Theodore Cross Family Charitable Foundation has made possible this contest with a generous grant to the ‘Ding’ Darling Wildlife Society-Friends of the Refuge (DDWS),” said Birgie Miller, DDWS executive director. “We couldn’t be more thrilled that they wanted their donation used in this way for a seventh year.”

“We are so happy to be supporting a contest in my father’s name, a contest that will get our youth involved with nature by looking at it – as my father so loved doing – through a camera lens,” said daughter Amanda Cross.

Digital image entries can be shot from any outdoor venue in the state of Florida. A writing component to the contest requires entrants grades nine through 12 to submit a 100-word description of the “moment” captured and how it reflects what nature and wildlife mean to the photographer.

Guidelines and prize information are posted at www.dingdarlingsociety.org/articles/photo-contests. Call DDWS at 472-1100 ext. 4 for more information.

All entries and personal information must be submitted in digital format to the email address ddhsphotocontest@gmail.com. Submit your full name, high school, grade and an original photograph that you took of nature and/or wildlife in the open outdoors. Include a title for the photograph and a written description (minimum 100 words) of the “moment” captured and how it reflects what nature and wildlife mean to you. You and your entry must comply with the following requirements:

High school students attending schools in Lee, Collier, Hendry, Glades and Charlotte (Florida) counties in grades nine through 12 may enter the contest.

Only digital images are accepted and may be taken with any camera, including smartphones.

Images must be submitted in JPEG format and must have a size of at least 2000 x 1500 pixels or resolution of 2 megabytes.

The photograph must be taken of nature and/or wildlife in the open outdoors in the state of Florida, which may include parks, refuges, backyards and other open spaces.

Panoramic photos are not allowed. Filters, cropping, enhancements and borders are permitted. However, adding any elements not existing in the original scene will not be allowed. Judges, at their discretion, will disqualify any photos that appear to be manipulated beyond these guidelines.

Each participant may enter up to two photos but is eligible to win only one award.

Judging will be anonymous. Do not put your name or anything that will identify you on your photograph.

There are three judges: A refuge staff person, a professional photographer and a resident of the five-county region.

Judging criteria: Technical excellence (sharpness, lighting, composition, exposure);

Creativity; Explanation of photograph (minimum of 100 words).

All photos will become the property of the society. Photos may be used by the society in any way with appropriate credit.

After the images have been submitted electronically, they will be printed out for judging. The winners of the contest will have their images matted and displayed in the “Ding” Darling Visitor & Education Center.*

Bonita Dentist Completes Ironman Race

by Jeff Lysiak

She swam. She biked. She ran. She conquered.

On November 24, Dr. Toniann Conte – a Sanibel resident who operates a dental practice in Bonita Springs – competed in her first ever Ironman Triathlon race in Tempe, Arizona. The urban race course included a grueling 2.5-mile swim, followed by a 112-mile bicycle ride before finishing with a 26.2-mile run.

The 60-year-old physical fitness advocate completed the race in 15 hours and 14 seconds, good enough to place ninth among female athletes in her age group.

“What an amazing race I had,” said Dr. Conte, who reported that the most challenging aspect of the race was the Tempe Lake water temperature. “The water was 61 degrees and the air temperature 48 degrees. When I finished the swim, I started to show signs of hypothermia. I stayed in the T1 transition tent for an additional 10 minutes to elevate my core temperature.”

One of the reasons Dr. Conte wanted to compete in the Ironman race, in addition to challenging herself, was to raise support for children with cleft palates. As a member of Team Smile Train, she helped raise awareness and funds to support youth in need of cleft palate surgery. And thanks largely to the support of the island community, Dr. Conte was able to surpass her goal of $15,000.

In fact, her total of $16,620.60 made Dr. Conte the largest individual fundraiser for the Ironman race.

“I was honored to be the top fundraiser for Smile Train and it was a privilege to represent Southwest Florida,” said Dr. Conte. “I brought the spirit of giving that Sanibel and Captiva are known for to the finish line with me. Excluding the day I got married, it was the best single moment of my life when I crossed the finish line scholarships to Immokalee High students and other children each year. In the last five years alone, Lipman has awarded over $230,000 in school scholarships.

Lipman’s annual contributions to Redlands Christian Migrant Association and their Immokalee Community School is helping the non-profit group with its pre-kindergarten and daycare facilities, as well as its three charter schools. The donations, which have totaled almost $500,000, represent direct support for the migrant community and the organization that provides essential services for them.

Immokalee High School’s cross-country team is running faster thanks to Lipman. It was learned the boys and girls on the team were running on the same pair of shoes they wore to school. Lipman recently bought each member of the team new running shoes, and the boys’ team qualified for the state cross-country championships in Tallahassee this season.

Lipman’s partnership with Brighter Bites, a national non-profit organization that provides 30 pounds of fruits and vegetables each week to families along with nutrition education, sampling and recipe ideas, has served $350,000 worth of healthy food over the last three years.

“We are very passionate about Brighter Bites’ mission and support the growth of their programs in Immokalee and Southwest Florida in any way we can,” Weisinger said. “The community is what has made us successful and we want to give back to the migrant families.”

The Boys & Girls Club of Collier County has also benefited from Lipman’s generosity, having received a $1 million gift from the company to help with the club’s various programs.*

During mile 4 of the road portion of the Ironman race, Dr. Toniann Conte was all smiles and heard ‘Toniann Conte from Sanibel Island... you are an Ironman! Then, my sister placed the medal around my neck – best sister moment ever – and I cried.’”

Smile Train is an international children’s charity with a sustainable model that provides training, funding and resources to empower local medical professionals in more than 90 countries to provide 100 percent free cleft repair surgery and comprehensive cleft care in their own communities.

Charitable Work In Immokalee Recognized

Lipman Family Farms’ commitment to community, especially to school children, resonates throughout the company. That desire to give back and help those in need is being recognized by the Association of Fundraising Professionals of Collier/Lee, naming Lipman the Outstanding Philanthropic Organization for 2019.

Lipman was honored for its charitable work in Immokalee and Collier County during a recent ceremony in Naples. “It is an honor to be recognized by the organizations that we support, but the real reward is watching young people go on to lead successful lives,” said Jaime Weisinger, government and community relations director of Lipman Family Farms. “We certainly don’t offer support in search of awards, but it is humbling to get recognized for your efforts.”

That support is especially significant within the Collier County school system where over the last six years Lipman has provided over 10,000 students with school supplies during the company’s annual backpack giveaway and back-to-school event. “We have become a resource to help ease the hectic back-to-school season, while ensuring the children of our communities are set up for success,” Weisinger said.

The company’s commitment to opening academic doors for students remains resolute as Lipman offers

Book Review

The Deserter

by Di Saggau

Nelson DeMille's latest novel is co-authored with his son Alex, an award-winning screenwriter. It starts out with a bang and is a thrilling read right to the climactic ending.

The book revolves around Captain Kyle Mercer, a member of the Army's elite Delta Force, who went AWOL years ago in Afghanistan. Scott Brodie and Maggie Taylor, investigators for the Army's Criminal Investigation Division, are sent to Caracas, Venezuela to try and find him. Their orders are to bring him back to the United States. With new passports and visas with new identities, they take on this difficult mission.

Arriving in Venezuela, Brodie and Taylor find out that there is a ton of corruption and conditions in the country that involve bribery and violence. With the help of a driver named Luis, the two learn that Mercer has left Caracas and is now in the jungle south of the city. Brodie wonders what the war had done to Kyle Mercer, not to mention the years of captivity and torture. At one point, he thinks maybe Mercer didn't betray his country, maybe his country betrayed him.

As the two move in on their target, Brodie begins to suspect his commanders aren't telling him everything about Mercer. He suspects his desertion might be that he knows too much about military atrocities in Afghanistan. Mercer is in the jungle training a group of mercenaries who are very loyal to him.

When Brodie and Taylor learn the ugly truth about Mercer's defection, they find out he knows too much about a secret Pentagon operation. The Deserter has lively dialogue and characters in a thrilling plot with a shocking ending. There is also the signature DeMille humor throughout. With ripped-from-the-headlines appeal, this suspenseful military thriller is worth your time.*

School Smart

by Shelley M. Greggs, NCSP

Dear Shelley, This is such a busy time of year for my family, and we just don't seem to have enough time for any extra studying beyond the basics.

My twins are in middle school and they seem to need help with learning all the new vocabulary they have in their various classes. Do you have any good, quick ways to study vocabulary?

Jason L, Fort Myers

Jason,

Vocabulary is extremely important. You and your children are smart to spend a little extra time with this. Students with small vocabularies are more likely to struggle with reading, have difficulty understanding content and can be seriously at risk for academic failure. Getting vocabulary words into long-term memory is vital to helping students understand and remember content.

Middle school teacher and author Marilee Sprenger says, "If we can explicitly teach about 300 words per year to our students, it can make a big difference in their vocabularies. Some students will learn about 3,000 or 4,000 words per year due to the literacy that surrounds them, while others have limited access and will only learn 1,000. Imagine how much you will be helping those students who have limited outside access to greater vocabulary".

Ms. Sprenger says that vocabulary can be taught successfully in a 10-minute block and has published several 10-minute learning activities for teachers to use. I have adapted these for parents. Some of these activities can even be practiced while you are driving to school. They are listed below.

Say a word from the list and have your children respond with both a synonym and antonym for the vocabulary word. Keep going until your 10 minutes are up.

Ask your children to write or speak a sentence of 10 or 12 words demonstrating their understanding of one of the vocabulary words. Repeat until your time is up or you may want to practice the entire list for the week.

Ask your children to act out one or more of the week's vocabulary words. This may be enough fun to go beyond 10 minutes.

Have your children draw a picture or symbol representing a word and have them explain their picture to you telling how it symbolizes the word chosen.

Since these activities are rather unique, it's quite probable that your children will remember the words they study in these unconventional ways. Highly verbal children need one to two repetitions to learn new material, typical learners need

Millennial Millionaires

by Craig R. Hersch, Florida Bar Board Certified Wills, Trusts & Estates Attorney; CPA

According to a report by Coldwell Banker, there are 618,000 millennial millionaires (born between 1981 and 1996) in the United States, and they're set to inherit even more wealth from their baby boomer (1946-64) parents.

This "Great Wealth Transfer" will see an estimated $68 trillion passed down from the boomers over the next 30 years. It's estimated that by 2030, millennials will be many times richer than they are today.

"While the inheritance component is hard to quantify with the current data available, there are still many millennials who are not considered wealthy today, but will be in the future," the report stated.

In fact, 66 percent of millennials think they'll become wealthy one day, even though they have an average net worth of less than $10,000. Even more alarming, those currently of that age have only seen a $29 income increase when adjusted for inflation over their young adult counterparts in 1974.

Millennials' income hasn't kept up with their skyrocketing student debt, or with housing and medical costs, which over several decades now greatly outpace inflation.

Even so, Paul Donovan, chief global economist of UBS Wealth Management, believes that millennials will be the wealthiest generation ever. Because the millennial generation is smaller than the boomer generation they're inheriting from, he said, transferred wealth will be more concentrated. It isn't uncommon for boomers to have two or three siblings. Many millennials, in contrast, are either the only child or have just one other sibling.

"From a big picture viewpoint, millennials will likely receive the greatest wealth transfer in modern history... however, the reality is that the baby boomers are healthier and living longer than even they planned, so that wealth transfer might not happen for 20-plus years." Donovan added.

So, what are our takeaways from this data? Anecdotally, from my estate planning practice, my clients of the Silent Generation (1928-45) and those who are Baby Boomers don't necessarily want to wait until they die to leave family wealth down the line. They'd prefer to see their children and grandchildren enjoy benefits now.

But how is this best accomplished? Each family's goals and desires, including the attributes of the potential recipients, lead to their uniquely right answer. Getting there is a process, however.

I usually begin by asking some pointed questions. "What would you like to see your family wealth accomplish?" As an example, education might be the most important element for those clients adhering to the philosophy of "Give a man a fish and you feed him for a day, teach a man to fish and you feed him for a lifetime."

Once it's decided, the vehicle used to transfer that wealth is considered. This presents additional questions.

Going further with my education example, "How do you accomplish your goal when one grandchild is near university age but another is still in infancy? Who decides how the resources are invested prior to the transfers? How do you minimize income taxes? Who decides how much each beneficiary is entitled? Contrast, for example, the beneficiary who attends Harvard as opposed to one enrolled at FGCU."

A successful plan thinks through the answers to these questions and more.

Aside from education, there might be a variety of other reasons to transfer wealth now. But once transferred, "Are we concerned that one of your beneficiaries gets divorced and loses amounts that you earmarked for her?"

Some families hope to provide a retirement safety net for their loved ones, especially since company pensions from lifetime employment are largely relics from the past. "I'd like my children to continue to work and earn their own way," a client says, "but I want to provide them a comfortable safety net. I want their retirement to include a roof over their heads and adequate health care."

Here, different strategies are employed. It might involve purchasing long-term care insurance for the adult child beneficiary, or establishing a trust that doesn't pay income currently, rather it accumulates income until the beneficiary reaches retirement age. When irrevocable trusts accumulate income, however, there is a compressed federal income tax rate schedule that result in higher taxes. Consequently, growth rather than income strategies are called for.

Providing written direction to the trustee within the trust document is critical to success.

For those families that might encounter federal or state estate taxes, additional issues arise. While current federal exemption amounts shield more than $11 million, the next election may adversely affect the law. Even without a change in 2020, the current estate tax laws sunset in 2025 absent new legislation.

Families with a potential estate tax problem generally should not transfer assets dollar-for-dollar. In other words, it's not wise to fund a trust with $500,000 in cash or investments since you'll use $500,000 of your estate tax exemption. Here you want to employ strategies where you might transfer $2 million of value but only use $500,000 of your estate tax exemption.

By and large, these are good problems to have. I have millennial children who are just starting out to make their way in the world. Some financial struggles aren't necessarily bad. But assuming enough resources, I would like to build a safety net for them that I never had.

One thing's for certain. At least as far as my family is concerned, the millennial news articles are right. I won't inherit anything from my parents, nor my wife from hers. Whatever we leave our children will be more than what we received.

Family And Home Health Care

J. Brendan Ryan, CLU, ChFC, MSFS

Imagine a family where mom or dad lives alone and simply cannot do that anymore. The kids have been stopping in regularly, but now, whether because of a stroke, a fall, or just general frailty, something has to be done.

In this setting, the kids are not likely to say, "Oh, good! Now mom (or dad) gets to go to a nursing home!" Rather, the common response is usually to figure out how to arrange hands-on care to be provided in the home. This assumes that mom's condition allows it.

With few exceptions, seniors want to stay in their homes. Everything is familiar there, friends and neighbors stop by, lifelong routines can continue as much as practical. Going to a nursing home means dealing with a bunch of strangers, changes in routines, a lack of privacy and noise in the hallways. Who wouldn't prefer to stay home?

But where does the help come from at home? For many families, it means a daughter or daughter-in-law becomes de-facto caregiver and spends time at mom's house.

And that caregiver willingly volunteers. After all, what is a few visits a week for a few hours each time? How burdensome can that be? Well, a few hours each time turns into more hours as mom's health heads south and her ability to take care of herself decreases. A few days each week becomes every day.

Eventually, that gets to be too much, and mom moves in with the caregiver. That is still better than going to a nursing home. At least it is far less expensive. And it is also less expensive than having home health care professionals to come into the house and care for mom. Such in-home professionals who provide hands-on help easily cost tens of thousands of dollars a year for just part-time help.

But is having a family member or friend do it for free truly less expensive? Maybe for mom, but rarely for the caregiver. And these caregiver costs are not of the out-of-pocket variety.

Consider these losses for the family caregiver:

Lost wages. Caregivers who also work outside the home often have to reduce their hours or even take some time off to care for mom. And, sometimes, the needed time off is unpredictable, creating disruption at work. It may eventually lead to a termination of employment. A recent MetLife study calculated that the average lost wages of a caregiver to be $143,000.

Lack of job opportunity and advancement. If the caregiver has to give up her job for a while and then tries to get back into the workforce, jobs in her field may not be available. Even if they are, a gap of a few years in her work history may not look good on her resume. Even if she remains employed, she may well have to pass up opportunities for advancement that require that she move. She may have to say "no" to special assignments that would take her out of town for a bit.

Commensurate with the loss of wages and advancement is the reduction in retirement deposits and the ability to save for the future.

Health and healthcare costs. The physical and emotional strain on the caregiver can be immense, even causing permanent problems. And out-of-pocket costs for health care increase for the caregiver.

A recent study of the subject by MetLife concluded that caregiving resulted in average overall cost to the caregiver of over a half-million dollars. It should be obvious that avoiding paid home care is not a no-cost solution.

The safer action is to plan for such a need through insurance. If one can afford a long-term care (LTC) benefit linked to a life insurance or an annuity policy, that would be preferable. But, alternatively, a stand-alone LTC policy is a good solution for many. The worst decision – and potentially the most expensive decision – is to do nothing.

Window Treatment Trends To Try

by Katie Frederick

If you're working to design a stylish room with all the right furnishings and accessories, you've probably found that your window treatments can make or break your success at achieving the ambiance you're going for. Let's face it, if you try to ignore your windows and put more focus on other aspects of your space, you're going to end up with a room that looks bare or incomplete.

When it comes to choosing the perfect window coverings for your home, there's a lot to consider. Everything from the material you select to the color and style of your window treatments will significantly impact the look and feel of each room. Consider these window treatment options as you select window coverings that meet all your functional requirements and style preferences.

The push toward a more energy-efficient world doesn't exclude interior design, which is why one of the biggest emerging window treatment trends this year are shades that contribute to an eco-friendly home. For example, plantation shutters, honeycomb shades and motorized blinds are growing in popularity. They're particularly efficient at managing natural light, allowing more in during the day for enhanced energy efficiency. Natural, sustainable woods, like bamboo, are also starting to replace synthetics for blinds and shutters.

No other window treatment can add more to a room than gorgeous custom draperies. A custom drapery treatment becomes the center of attention when it perfectly frames a beautiful window, tastefully coordinates with the upholstery in the room, smartly inserts rich colors, and gracefully pulls together the intended design scheme of the entire room. Of course, no custom drapery design would be complete without an elegant top treatment or decorative hardware to literally top it off. Add lush sophistication to your room using a silk fabric in one of many embroidered patterns or a soft sophisticated solid color. If a more casual look is your desire, there are many attractive solid or printed cotton or linen fabrics from which to choose. Lining a drapery is always a must as it will hang better, last longer, protect your furniture and flooring from harsh sunlight and provide insulation around the windows.

Metallic accents have taken center stage when it comes to home decor. Incorporating a brass, chrome or stainless-steel table will always add a "wow" factor to the visual appeal of a room. Did you know, however, that this trend has also found its way to window treatments through the addition of metallic threads carefully woven through fabrics? The hint of a metallic thread in the fabric used in your window treatment will give that subtle flair to your room without making it look too flashy. Another place to add a metal accent is the decorative hardware for your custom drapery. Decorative drapery hardware comes in many different metal styles and, when combined with finials, will give your custom draperies and your room that added bling that makes a statement. Let the entertaining begin!

Roman-style window treatments stack up evenly when opened and lay flat when closed, unlike most other drapery styles that take up more space and have folds and pleats. They have grown in popularity for their ability to contribute elegance and sophistication to a room without requiring homeowners to sacrifice the functionality of their space. For example, they work perfectly in areas where full-length draperies aren't practical, such as above the kitchen sink, the tub in your bathroom or window seats and benches. Roman shades feel right at home in a traditional scheme as well as a contemporary one. Roman shades efficiently control lighting and add style to the area, but don't contribute as much weight to the space as draperies do because they end at the windowsill. Work with your personal decorator to find a fabric, color and pattern that work with your home. Roman shade window treatments come in a wide range of materials, hues and designs, catering to specific design themes. Some of the most popular materials include cotton, silk, denim cloths and jute.

To really transform your space, window treatments featuring head-turning patterns are the way to go. Patterned draperies offer warmth and visual stimulation that make a room both attention grabbing and inviting. Bold designs and colors will draw the eye to the outside view. Many homeowners are turning to trellis patterns and large-scale floral designs to dress up their homes. Remember that the pattern that's going to look best in your space depends on the window you're working with, so it's important to have professional assistance when selecting the window treatment that works best for you.

Use Your Year-End Bonus (Or Gift) Wisely

by Jennifer Basey

As 2019 draws to a close, you may be anticipating – or have already received – a year-end bonus from your employer. Or you might be receiving a substantial cash gift for the holidays. (If you're really lucky, you might get both.) You can doubtlessly think of many ways to spend this money right now, but how can you use it to help yourself in the long run?

Here are a few suggestions:

Pay off some debts – Virtually all of us carry some type of debt, and that's not necessarily a bad thing. For example, your mortgage not only gives you a place to live and a chance to build equity in your home, but the interest payments are typically tax deductible. Other debts, though, such as those on consumer items, are not so positive – you generally can't deduct the interest payments, and the items themselves probably won't enhance your personal wealth. Plus, the bigger your monthly debt payments, the less you'll have to invest for your future. So, you might want to use your bonus or monetary gift to pay off, or at least pay down, some of your less productive debts.

Start an emergency fund – If you were to face a large, unexpected expense, such as the need for a new furnace or a major car repair, how would you pay for it? If you didn't have the cash on hand, you might be forced to dip in to your long-term investments, such as your stocks and mutual funds. A much better option is to build an emergency fund, containing six to 12 months' worth of living expenses, with the money kept in a liquid, low-risk account. It will take time to build such a fund, of course, but your year-end bonus or gift money could give you a good start.

Contribute to your IRA – You can put in up to $6,000 to your IRA, or $7,000 if you're age 50 or older. And although you've got until April 15, 2020, to fully fund your IRA for the 2019 tax year, you still might want to put your "extra" money into your account right away. If you wait, you'll probably find other uses for this money. And if you're going to enjoy a comfortable retirement, you'll need to maximize every possible resource – and your IRA is one of your best ones. Furthermore, the sooner you get the money into your IRA, the more potential it will have to grow over time.

Feed your college fund – If you're already contributing to a college fund for your young children or grandchildren, you can use your year-end bonus or monetary gift to add to the fund. If you haven't already started such an account, you might want to use this money for that purpose. You could open a 529 plan, which provides possible tax benefits and gives you control of the funds until it's time for them to be used for college or some type of vocational school. (Depending on where you live, you might also get tax benefits from your state if you use a 529 savings plan to pay for K-12 expenses.)

To achieve all your financial goals, you'll need to take advantage of your opportunities – and your year-end bonus or monetary gift can certainly be one of them.

Babcock Ranch Home Model Certifications

The first house in Southwest Florida to receive both Platinum certification from the Florida Green Building Coalition and Gold Florida Water Star certification from South Florida Water Management District (SFWMD) was unveiled at Babcock Ranch at a ribbon cutting ceremony for Florida Lifestyle Homes' new Lily Rose model.

President of Florida Lifestyle Homes Bill Ennen accepted the certification awards from CJ Davila, executive director of the Florida Green Building Coalition and Robert Wanvestraut, senior conservation analyst at South Florida Water Management District.

Florida Water Star is SFWMD's water conservation certification program for new and existing homes and commercial developments. Standards and guidelines for water efficiency are included for indoor fixtures and appliances; landscape design; and irrigation systems.

Builders who use FGBC's residential green standards reach beyond minimum requirements in the areas of energy performance; water conservation; site conditions; healthier home; materials; and disaster mitigation. The Lily Rose received a certified home score of 195 points to achieve Platinum certification.

Babcock Ranch was recognized as the first Florida Green Building Coalition Platinum Certified Land Development project in 2018.

"When we envisioned Babcock Ranch, we decided that all our homes must receive a bronze standard of certification or higher from the Florida Green Building Coalition," said Syd Kitson, chairman and CEO of Kitson & Partners. "As a valued member of our builder team, Florida Lifestyle Homes has surpassed that standard and shares our commitment to making Babcock Ranch a leader in sustainable living."

Florida Lifestyle Homes' Lily Rose model in the Lake Babcock Estates neighborhood offers three bedrooms and two-and-a-half baths in 2,488 square feet of living space. The Dream Ready home is available for $625,000.

Babcock Ranch was created by Kitson & Partners with respect for the natural environment and the philosophy that smart growth and sustainability work hand in hand. Half of the town's 18,000-acre footprint is set aside as greenways, parks and expansive lakes, providing recreation and scenic backdrops for Babcock Ranch's homes and the Founder's Square downtown district.

WHERE THE WORLD COMES FOR PROPHETRY

Frankly Speaking

by Howard Prager

What do you think of the Mighty Mussels? After 28 seasons as the Miracle, Fort Myers' Florida State League team, the Class A affiliate of the Minnesota Twins, has a new image provided

name, logo and image.

There are several reasons for the name change. The team started off as the Miami Miracle in 1989. Last year, Andrew Kaufmann bought the Miracles and wanted to connect more with the Fort Myers community. He believed that a regionally specific moniker that also reflected a healthy lifestyle is what was needed. Hence the Mighty Mussels.

Now if he asked me, I would have said how about the Magnificent Manatees? I like Manatee Park, and think manatees are a little more muscular than mussels. Teams in our league have names of (Charlotte) Stone Crabs, (Daytona) Tortugas, (Jupiter) Hammerheads, (Tampa) Tarpons and (Clearwater) Threshers. But Brevard County has already claimed the Manatees, and I guess we can't have two manatees in Florida. So the Mighty Mussels – which is, of course, a double entendre with muscle – it is.

The Fort Myers Mighty Mussels

name was unveiled during a ballpark news conference a week ago alongside a logo set featuring the so-called “muscular” bivalves in a variety of athletic poses. There's even a logo with two mussels shaking hands (which I am sure is not anatomically correct, as I have never seen a hand on a mussel) to show the affiliation with the Twins, a relationship dating back to the team's inaugural 1992 season in Fort Myers. Hammond Stadium also serves as Minnesota's spring training facility.

So what's the history of the Mighty Mussels? The news conference included the unveiling of “a Mighty Mussels comic book which details the origin of the first Mighty Mussel, a baby mussel who, after being separated from his family by a rogue wave, stumbles upon a glowing bat. The bat transforms him into a benevolent bivalve giant, granting him the strength he needs to rescue his family from the clutches of a cadre of evil Gym Rats. The comic book is a big deal for character development,” said Kaufman, who noted there will be a new issue produced every season. “We'll hand those out and still have a couple hundred left for sale. It's an ongoing saga -- I can see there being ‘The Revenge of the Gym Rats.’”

Plus the team now has the opportunity to figure out ways to incorporate the Mighty Mussels into your game day experience. Fried mussels in the refreshment stands? A “muscle beach” competition for fans? Will mascots outmuscle each other? “There will be a lot of things that have that muscle theme,” said Kaufman. “Like a flex cam, muscle tees in the gift shop, a bar called ‘The Bar Bell’ and maybe a Gym Rat Race. And each year, there are more and more characters who may appear.”

I know Disney has already made a movie about the Mighty Ducks, and that later turned into a real life hockey team. Maybe they need to take the real life Fort Myers Mighty Mussels and have them become a feature length movie, especially if they can play as well as the Miracle did in recent years. The Mighty Mussels make their debut on April 9, playing at home against the St. Lucie Mets.

Finally, there's the NCAA bowl selection. As expected, LSU or Georgia had to lose, opening the BCS Championship to another team. LSU won handily and with Utah losing, that opened the door for formerly 6th ranked Oklahoma to get in. So, we have LSU versus Oklahoma and Ohio State versus Clemson in the play-in games on December 28 for the national championship, which doesn't take place until January 13. Either OSU or LSU could have been ranked first. Both flipped back and forth in the top spot and, with LSU's dominance against Georgia, they got the pick. There are quite a few other matchups that look enticing: USC versus Iowa, Penn State versus Memphis, Florida versus Virginia, Minnesota versus Auburn, Michigan versus Alabama, and Georgia versus Baylor to name a few. Choose your battle and start the popcorn.

Got A Problem? Dr. Connie Is In

by Constance Clancy

Dear Friends, As 2019 will soon come to a close and we embrace 2020, my wish is that this letter reaches you with feelings of joy, laughter, great health and abundance.

As we spend our holidays gathering with friends and family for holiday cheer, wherever you are, make each moment count and remember to fill your lives with daily gratitude.

In every spiritual tradition when you are being your true self, the happiness within you is permanent because you are authentic and genuine. We know what temporary happiness is: a beautiful sunset, shopping, a tropical island vacation, getting a new car. Christmas gifts are all nice, yet once this is all said and done, the issue of lasting happiness, the kind that no one can take away from you is the kind that really matters.

So as you move through the holidays (holy-day season), keep track of the things that bring you closer to embracing your true essence:

Love and compassion for self and others

Moments of peace and joy
Practicing gratitude
Giving and receiving
Feeling loved and safe
Practicing loving kindness
Having a feeling of belongingness
Being carefree and showing your genuine smile

Appreciating your own essence
Practicing extreme self-care
Having a sense of the sacred, living with grace

To capture this peace and joy, stay in the present moment to the best of your ability, and you will be more calm and less stressed. When mindful, you are experiencing right here, right now – of all your senses. Practice getting out in nature, practice yoga or simply stretch, meditate daily, be here now, not in the past of what was or the future, and feeling anxious about what is ahead. Embrace mindfulness and gratitude and treasure every moment. Try mindful eating. Sit down to a meal, close your eyes, and gently breathe in and out three times to bring your body into the present moment and prepare yourself to digest the meal. Practice the slow food movement. It is helpful to chew your food at least 10 times before swallowing.

You may want to take that special trip to a place you have always dreamed to visit or a place you love and wish to return. Make it happen.

If this seems easier said than done, here are a few suggestions to help you treasure every moment of the holiday season and all year:

1. Manage your expectations. Consider what is important and create a list of holiday activities and traditions that are meaningful to you.

Cut corners. You don't have to be a Martha Stewart, or participate in every holiday event. Put quiet time on your calendar as this will ease stress. Simply let go of perfection.

2. Have compassion for yourself and others. Try not to take things personally. Most people are trying to get their needs met perhaps through love or validation.

Instead of thinking where people should be, think about where they're coming from. There can be far less frustration and greater compassion.

3. Be creative on your gift giving. Be aware of shopping pitfalls. It's about friends and family, not grand commercialism day. Draw names or make homemade gifts. Take time to think about the person you are buying for, and what they mean to you. Be grateful you have the means to give a present to someone you care about.

4. Perform simple acts of kindness. Let everyone in your life benefit from your attitude of gratitude. Volunteer, donate to your favorite charity, and you will appreciate how your act of kindness has brightened someone's day. Spend time with your pets and let them know how much you love and appreciate them. Visit a shelter and walk a dog. Better yet, adopt an animal who is just waiting for your love and care.

My yellow lab, Archie, and I volunteer in the pet therapy program at Aspen Valley Hospital monthly, and the smiles and healing I see in the patients (and staff too) is priceless.

5. Remember to laugh it off. It is the best way to reduce stress. Instead of watching the news, switch to a comedy.

6. Notice little moments of beauty and sweetness. Notice beauty all around you: a smile, a gracious act, a loving gesture. It's contagious!

7. Pamper yourself. Take some time for healthy self-indulgence... perhaps a massage, or a walk in nature, or a luxurious bath and a well-deserved nap.

8. I always loved this saying: yesterday is history, tomorrow's a mystery.

Today is a gift, that is why they call it the present!!

May you all have a beautiful holiday season and a happy fulfilling New Year.

Peace and Love,
Connie

Natural Solutions For Burning Mouth Syndrome

by Suzy Cohen, RPh

Dear Readers: Holiday foods are all around us at this time of year. And enjoying these pies, cakes and delicious meals is taken for granted by most of us. But what if you had chronic mouth pain? This occurs with a condition called Burning Mouth Syndrome, which feels like its name. There are usually no sores in the mouth... it is just the sensation of burning, or heat, or pain. The medical term for people who suffer with this is called "idiopathic glossopyrosis."

Burning Mouth Syndrome (BMS) is common in people who take medications for blood pressure or cardiovascular disease. The nutrient depletions that cause neuropathy are fully discussed in my paperback book Drug Muggers.

There isn't a lot that conventional medicine offers. There aren't a lot of drugs to try, just a handful. Physicians work you up for the obvious, like GERD (gastroesophageal reflux) or Sjogren's Syndrome, an autoimmune disorder. Some doctors admit that they don't know what is causing the pain (termed "idiopathic"), but they'll still try to help by prescribing a medication called gabapentin. This reduces the sensation of pain, but its use is limited due to side effects. You will be told to drink plenty of fluids (to avoid dry mouth), suck on ice chips and avoid acidic foods that could aggravate the pain. Some acidic foods include tomatoes, citrus fruits, soda/carbonated water, sauerkraut, pomegranate juice and coffee.

A study once determined that B12 deficiency was definitely associated with BMS. They also checked levels of iron, folate, calcium and magnesium but none of those were deficient in the patients they checked. So if B12 is deficient in people who have this type of oral pain, it begs a new question about their intestinal microbiome. I say that because B12 is manufactured in the human body from your gut flora, and if you have an unhealthy probiotic stash down there, you won't make adequate B12. Could probiotics help? I think so, they're worth a try anyway.

I can confirm that high levels of homocysteine are associated with BMS, and the only way to lower homocysteine is with high quality B vitamins, not medicine. In 2013, researchers found that reducing high homocysteine could improve things. But be careful about the type of B vitamin you choose to take.

Some reports suggest that elevated blood levels of B6 are seen in patients with BMS. Higher serum levels of B6 imply lower cellular levels. Why isn't the B6 getting inside the cell? You could exacerbate the pain if you don't take a biologically active form of B6, or other B vitamins.

Research has found that hypothyroidism

(often undiagnosed) reason for both depression and oral pain. There's a lot more information regarding low thyroid (and another vitamin that helps) in the longer version of this article (which I'm happy to email to you) after you sign up for my free newsletter at www.suzycohen.com.

I truly hope this information helps you feel better and makes mealtime more enjoyable.

Strengthen Your Immune Function With Food

by Ross Hauser, MD
and Marion Hauser, MS, RD

The stronger one's immune system, the less likely they are to get sick or catch the latest flu or cold going around. A couple of months ago, we wrote about what supplements to take to ward off the cold and flu, thus enhancing your immune system. Check that out at www.hauserdiet.com for more information.

Do you ever wonder why colds come on mainly during colder weather? As the weather cools, our body's biochemistry develops a need for more good protein and fat sources such as avocado, olive oil/olives, coconut oil, nuts, fish and lean meats, along with plenty of fresh vegetables.

However, if we feed the body lots of simple sugars, our chemistry is going to be off, and we are going to get sick. With the cooler weather comes the holiday season, starting with Thanksgiving and going through New Years Day. With that comes lots of candy, cookies, desserts, special beverages, combined with late nights, shopping, planning, hosting and the like. We eat less healthy, get less sleep and are exposed to more germs. It's a tough battle!

We don't want to be Debbie Downer, but remember that sugar does lower one's immune function every time we eat it. Thus, it is a good idea to keep intake of simple sugars to a minimum all of the time, not just during cold season.

We try different recipes that contain healthier choices but taste "sweet" – for example chia seed pudding, avocado chocolate mousse and pumpkin brownies. Chia seeds are awesome – a couple tablespoons mixed into about two cups of your favorite milk of choice with a splash of maple syrup, cinnamon and vanilla, stored in the fridge overnight, will make for a tasty treat. Top with nuts and cocoa nibs or some coconut whipped topping!

Lab Theater

waiting room of a hospital maternity ward is not where you want an extended assortment of dysfunctional family members and friends to join you. But that's what happens, and that's what adds to the hilarity.

Other cast members – Danielle Channell, Scott Davis, Kristen Wilson, Todd Lyman, Holly Zammerilla and Ken Johnson – take on all the other roles. This includes an aunt who is a nun, Kevin's trophy stepmom whose face is still paralyzed from a Botox injection, Allie's competitive sister, and a host of crazy characters. All do a terrific job changing personalities. Kristen Wilson provides many laughs with the dialogue that goes with her three characters. Situations include an uncle-to-be who tries to bribe the couple into naming the baby after him, and a friend who feels a water birth would be best for the baby.

Prior to the show, the audience hears a hospital intercom sending out messages including one that tells a couple they left their baby and stroller in the lobby.

Let Nothing You Dismay is co-directed by Annette Trossbach and Steven Coe. It's a fun show and you might even spot a relative or two among those on stage. The show runs through Sunday, December 22 at Laboratory Theater of Florida, located at 1634 Woodford Avenue in downtown Fort Myers. For tickets, visit www.brownpapertickets.com or call the box office at 218-0481.*

Baby Grey And Peloton

Baby Grey

Hi There! We are Baby Grey (grey and white) and Peloton (black and white tuxedo). While we aren't biological siblings, we've spent our entire lives together so we would really like to get adopted together. Baby Grey is a 6-month-old male, and Peloton is a 5-month-old female. We've been neutered and spayed and have all of our vaccinations. We are very playful and sweet.

Baby Grey likes to give kisses, and will cuddle and sleep with you – just like a human child. Baby Grey needs a lot of attention and really needs to have another kitty around to help keep him company and play with him. Peloton is very easy going. They both get along great with other cats and would do well in a multi-cat household. Baby Grey has extremely soft fur and feels like a marshmallow, while little Peloton is sleek and shiny. Peloton has a white tip at the end of her tail.

Come see us at the PetSmart on Six Mile Cypress Parkway in Fort Myers.

*We are being cared for by Haven on Earth Animal League. For more information, call Diane at 860-833-4472 or email haveneearthanimalleague@yahoo.com.

SUDOKU

To play Sudoku: Complete the grid so that every row, column and every 3x3 box contains the numbers 1 through 9 (the same number cannot appear more than once in a row, column or 3x3 box.) There is no guessing and no math involved, just logic.

HOCUS-FOCUS

BY HENRY BOLTINOFF

FIND AT LEAST SIX DIFFERENCES BETWEEN PANELS

Differences: 1. Boy's pants are black. 2. Ball near boy's foot is missing. 3. Mom's hat is gone. 4. Drapes are wider. 5. Girl's bow is different. 6. There's more trash on floor.

Roasted Radishes

3 cups radishes, trimmed and halved
3-4 sprigs fresh rosemary, minced
1 bunch fresh parsley, for garnish
1 tablespoon garlic, minced
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 tablespoon butter, melted
Sea salt and fresh ground pepper, to taste
Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Combine ingredients and toss to evenly coat. Pour onto a sheet pan and roast for 35-40 minutes, stirring halfway through cooking time. Taste and readjust seasoning if needed. Garnish with fresh parsley, if desired.
Fresh tip: A final sprinkle of sea salt after roasting brings out the sweetness of the radish.*

FOR WEEK OF DECEMBER 16, 2019

Aries (March 21 to April 19) That change in holiday travel plans might be more vexing than you'd expected. But try to take it in stride. Also, it couldn't hurt to use that Aries charm to coax out some helpful cooperation.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Your Bovine determination helps you deal with an unforeseen complication. And, as usual, you prove that when it comes to a challenge, you have what it takes to take it on.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20) Although a romantic theme dominates much of the week, all those warm and fuzzy feelings don't interfere with the more pragmatic matters you need to take care of.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22) Best not to ignore those doubts about an upcoming decision. Instead, recheck the facts you were given to make sure nothing important was left out. A weekend surprise awaits you.

Leo (July 23 to August 22) No time for a catnap – yet. You might still have to straighten out one or two factors so that you can finally assure yourself of the truth about a troubling workplace situation. Stay with it.

Virgo (August 23 September 22) News from an old friend could lead to an unexpected (but nonetheless welcome) reunion with someone who had once been very special in your life. Be open to the possibilities.

Libra (September 23 to October 22) It might be time for a family council. The sooner those problems are resolved, the sooner you can move ahead with your holiday preparations. Don't let the opportunity pass you by.

Scorpio (October 23 to November 21) Take some time out to give more attention to a personal relationship that seems to be suffering from a sense of emotional neglect. Provide that much-needed reassurance.

Sagittarius (November 22 to December 21) Cheer up. That unusual circumstance that might faze most people can be handled pretty well by the savvy Sagittarian. Look at it as an opportunity rather than an obstacle.

Capricorn (December 22 to January 19) Someone you believe has hurt you in the past might now need your help. Reaching out could be difficult. But the generous Goat will be able to do the right thing, as always.

Aquarius (January 20 to February 18) Prioritizing is an important part of your pre-holiday scheduling. Try to give time both to your workday responsibilities and those personal matters you might have neglected.

Pisces (February 19 to March 20) With the vestiges of your anger about that painful incident fading, you can now focus all your energy on the more positive aspects of your life, including that personal situation.

Born This Week: You have a way of bringing your own strong sense of reassurance to others and encouraging them to hope.

colonists disguised as Mohawk Indians board three British tea ships and dump 342 chests of tea into the harbor. The raid was in protest of the British Parliament's Tea Act of 1773, which granted the East India Company a virtual monopoly on the American tea trade.

- On Dec. 19, 1843, Charles Dickens' classic story "A Christmas Carol" is published. Dickens was sent to work in a factory at age 12 when his father was thrown into debtors' prison.
- On Dec. 22, 1864, Union Gen. William Sherman presents the city of Savannah, Georgia, to President Abraham Lincoln. Sherman captured the key Confederate port after his famous March to the Sea from Atlanta.
- On Dec. 18, 1878, John Kehoe, the last of the Molly Maguires, is executed in Pennsylvania. The Irish secret society, which had allegedly been responsible for incidences of vigilante justice in the coalfields of eastern Pennsylvania, defended their actions as attempts to protect exploited Irish-American workers.
- On Dec. 21, 1945, Gen. George Patton, commander of the U.S. 3rd Army during World War II, dies from injuries suffered not in battle, but from a freak car accident less than two weeks earlier. He was 60.
- On Dec. 20, 1963, more than two years after the Berlin Wall was constructed by East Germany to prevent its citizens from fleeing its communist regime, nearly 4,000 West Berliners are given one-day passes to cross into East Berlin to visit relatives.

Moments In Time

• On Dec. 17, 1979, Hollywood stuntman Stan Barrett blasts across a dry lakebed at California's Edwards Air Force Base in a rocket- and missile-powered car, becoming the first person to travel faster than the speed of sound on land. He reached an estimated top speed of 739 mph.

STRANGE BUT TRUE

• It was noted 20th-century American humorist and journalist Don Marquis who made the following sage observation: "Procrastination is the art of keeping up with yesterday."

• Kangaroos can reach speeds of up to 44 mph, but they can't take a single step backward.

• As the holiday shopping season gets well under way, here's an interesting tidbit to keep in mind: According to the annual Coinstar Holiday Survey, 31% of Americans don't remember what gifts they received last year. Perhaps unsurprisingly, more women remember those details than men do.

• No less a notable than William Shakespeare described Limburger cheese as "the rankest compound of villainous smell that ever offended nostril."

• In the Shetland Islands you can find a breed of small, hardy cows that eat fish.

• Did you ever wonder why the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks is better known as the Elks Lodge – chose that particular animal as its symbol? Other animals were considered and rejected for a variety of reasons: Foxes were thought to be too cunning, beavers too destructive and bears and too coarse and brutal.

• Before World War II, suspenders were more popular than belts, but the trend reversed after the war.

• You might be surprised to learn that in 1766, students at Harvard University protested against their living conditions; evidently, the butter they were served in the refectory left something to be desired. In what became known as the Great Butter Rebellion, students shouted, "Our butter stinketh!"

• Those who study such things say that if your dog has fleas, they don't actually live on your pet; they spend 90 percent of their time elsewhere.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

"Bankruptcy is a legal proceeding in which you put your money in your pants pocket and give your coat to the creditors." – Joey Adams

Dispose Of Gas, Cooking Oil And Other Chemicals

Lee County Government reminds residents that gasoline supplies purchased for hurricane readiness can be used in lawn mowers and other equipment now that the 2019 hurricane season has ended.

Gasoline naturally degrades and loses combustibility over time, so it is not advised to store gasoline from year to year. It begins to lose potency after a few months, depending on storage conditions. Lee County residents brought 1,350 gallons of old gasoline to Lee County's household chemical waste facility for safe, responsible disposal during the first two weeks of the 2019 hurricane season. Putting that gasoline to use now means it won't need to be disposed of in June.

Residents are also encouraged to bring leftover oil from holiday turkey frying, old paint, fluorescent lightbulbs and other household chemicals to the facility located at the Topaz Court Solid Waste Annex, 6441 Topaz Court in Fort Myers. For more information or operational hours, visit www.leegov.com/solidwaste/facilities/topaz.

Know The Signs Of Drug Abuse

Narconon reminds families that many people will be spending more time with family and friends around this holiday season. Be familiar with the signs that your loved one may be struggling with addiction to drugs or alcohol. Be mindful of the things that will actually tell you if they are doing well or not. If you notice that things aren't right, you need to be prepared to confront your loved one and get them into treatment. You are giving them the gift of a new life.

For more information on how to confront your loved one, visit www.narconon-suncoast.org/blog/how-to-confront-your-addict-this-holiday-season.html. Call 1-877-841-5509 for a no cost screening or referral.

Avoid The Heat

The weather outside isn't quite frightful, but it is chilly for sunny Southwest Florida. As tempting as it might be to switch on the heat at night, Lee County Electric Cooperative (LCEC) reminds customers that heating is the most intense use of electric energy and the most expensive electric appliance. On average, heating costs two to three times more than cooling.

Rather than risking a high electric bill, bundle up with blankets or cuddle up with your favorite person or pet. If it is still too chilly for your Florida blood, consider investing in heating blankets and small portable heaters. Blankets and space heaters work well, but caution must be used and all the manufacturer instructions read before use. If you must turn on the heat, LCEC recommends setting the thermostat between 65 and 68 degrees Fahrenheit.

For more ways to save on your electric bill, visit www.lcec.net.*

Students Should Learn About Credit Scores

Students should be familiar with credit scores, according to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

Your credit score is a three-digit number that has a long-lasting effect on your buying power. When you apply for credit, your credit score will be checked. The higher your credit score, the better the chances you will be approved.

Although there are several scoring methods, the most widely accepted one comes from FICO. Your FICO score ranges from 300 to 850. These items make up your FICO score:

35 percent is based on your payment history. Early payments will have a higher number than on-time payments, which will have a higher score than late payments.

30 percent is based on outstanding debt. This outstanding debt is how much you owe on car loans, mortgages, credit cards, etc. The number of credit cards you have and if those cards are near the maximum borrowing limit will hurt your score.

15 percent is based on the length of time you have had credit. The longer you have been borrowing money and paying it back in a timely manner, the better your score.

10 percent is based on new credit. If you have opened several new accounts, that will have a negative effect on your score. Also, the more inquiries on your credit report in a year, the lower your score.

10 percent is based on the types of credit you currently have. It helps to have a mix of loan types. If you have a credit card, an installment loan will even the credit out.

KHEAA is a public, non-profit agency established in 1966 to improve students' access to college. It provides information about financial aid and financial literacy at no cost to students and parents. KHEAA also helps colleges manage their student loan default rates and verify information submitted on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). Shore Fishing:

Don't Harm The Fish

by Capt. Matt Mitchell

Landing a big fish from the beach can be hard on the fish. Dragging a fish up onto the sand if you're going to release it is not an option as it usually damages or kills the fish.

Hold the fish in the water while you unhook it if you're going to release it.

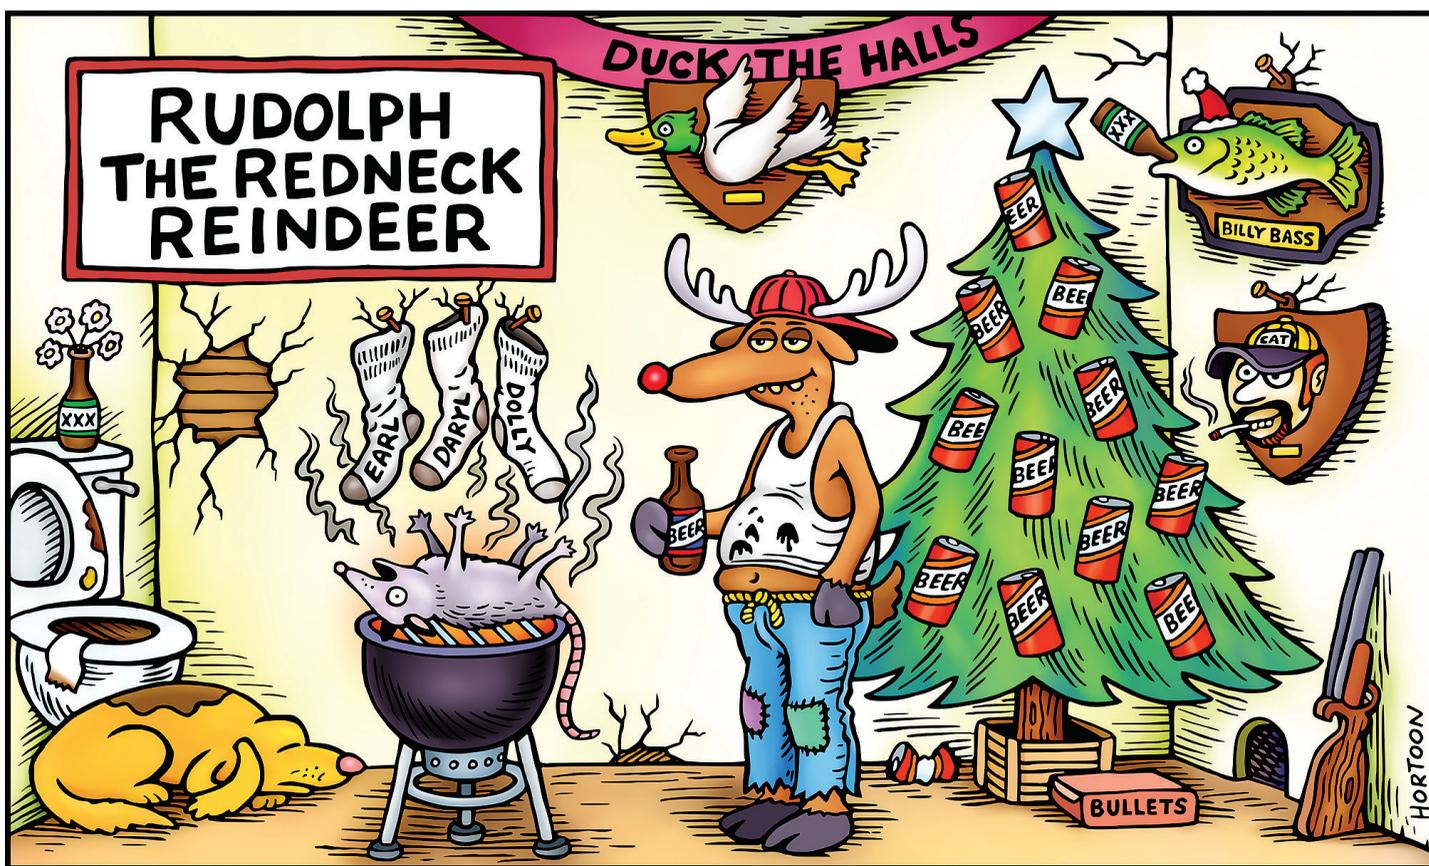

The less you can touch a fish before release the better for the fish.

If you want a picture with the fish, support it as you lift it out of the water – and do it quickly.

Before releasing, revive the fish while holding it in the water; moving it slowly back and forth so water goes over its gills. The fish will let you know when it's ready to swim off.

Florida residents as well as out of state visitors need a fishing license to fish from shore.
